St. Mary students make quilt for Trimpers

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

These St. Mary students made this Sponge Bob blanket for Sam, Maddie and Max Trimper who suffer from a rare genetic disorder.

Fifth and sixth grade students at St. Mary school are recognizing the 43 days of Lent leading up to Easter by helping others.

Since the school year started the 13 students in Amy Putman's class have followed the story of the Trimpers, three sick children with close ties to Charlevoix — Sam, 4, Max, 8, and Maddie, 5.

In 2002 all three of the kids were diagnosed with a rare genetic disorder called Metachromatic Leukodystrophy (MLD).

MLD is the result of an enzyme deficiency that allows for destruction of the myelin sheath around nerve fibers. The result is mental and physical deterioration that leads to death. If left untreated children diagnosed with the disease often die within five to six years.

The Trimper children's grandparents Marcia and Don Trimper, who have lived in Charlevoix for 27 years, joined forces with their son, Jeff, who was raised in Charlevoix and his wife Jane, to help slow the progression of the incurable disease in the kids and to work toward a cure.

Putman's students have followed the story on the Trimper's Internet web site at, www.caringbridge.org/mi/trimpermld. There they learned the story of the kids through photos and daily testimonials written by Jane and Jeff.

They watched and learned as Max recovered from a dangerous stem cell transplant. And now are watching as Sam and Maddie fight back after the treatment they underwent in October of 2003.

Jane said Max is very busy working to regain his skills clocking 10 hours a week with occupational, physical and speech therapies. And Sam and Maddie are just getting past their first year of the transplant and haven't had any complications yet.

"It's been an incredible year. They are all doing well. We are lucky to have all three kids here," she said.

This incredible journey touched the hearts of many and hit home for the St. Mary students.

School principal Janet Troppman, who has been delivering the Lenten message to all St. Mary students, said part of the significance of the season is to reach out. The students took a proactive approach to what they were learning in school and reached out using their own little hands.

They made a fleecy Sponge Bob blanket big enough for all three of the kids to curl up under. The Sponge Bob idea came from the Trimpers themselves who the students say love the cartoon character.

"The Trimper kids have had it hard. We thought it would be nice for them to know we are praying for them," sixth grader, Shauna Bradley said.

Jane said the token will be a welcome addition to their home.

"They'll love it," she said.

The students are hoping to see a photo of the three peas in a pod snuggled into their creation on their next visit to the web site.

While the kids are recovering and relaxing in their new blanket, Jane and Jeff are busy raising money for two doctors to do an MLD fellowship, a research endeavor, at Duke University in North Carolina.

They have raised $160,000 already and only need 20 more people willing to commit to donating $1,000 a year for two years to make it a reality. She said this would make their work toward a cure 10 times faster.

For more information about the fellowship visit the Trimper web site that was listed above.

Charlevoix grad training for marathon

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

> "While I train for this marathon, there are local residents who are battling leukemia. By committing to run this marathon, I hope others will show their support by contributing to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society in their effort to find a cure for this disease."
> Katie Romig,
> Charlevoix graduate training for marathon

Charlevoix native Katie Romig is an official member of the Team in Training 2004, a group of about 900 people who will run a marathon this spring to help fight cancer.

Romig, 21, the daughter of Charlevoix resident Marjorie Romig-Neal, has committed to run 26.2 miles, a full marathon, on June 26 in Anchorage, Alaska. The event, "Mayor's Midnight Sun," will benefit the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, a non-profit agency dedicated to seeking the cure for leukemia, lymphoma, Hodgkin's disease and myeloma and to improve the quality of life for patients and their families.

"Leukemia and Lymphoma research is very important — many consider it to be the gateway to finding a cure for all cancers," Romig said.

Romig caught the marathon bug a few months ago when Tricia Hodge, her friend and former teammate on the Charlevoix High School cross country team, approached her with a list of runs to pick from.

Romig saw that 80 percent of the proceeds Team in Training runners raise actually go to the research effort and quickly dedicated herself to it.

"It has one of the highest rates of funds returned and that's really important to me — most non-profit societies can't claim that," she said.

Romig is currently living and working in Big Sky, Mont. where she is taking a semester off from her studies at Grand Valley State University in Allendale.

She is busy training for the spring event, running 13 miles once a week and between five to seven miles five days a week.

She said the training has been a great way to familiarize herself with Montana's breathtaking countryside. To stay motivated she keeps in mind 8-year-old Zachary Good of Helena, Mont. who she is running in honor of. Good has leukemia and is currently in remission. Romig has been keeping in touch with his mom via e-mail and plans to meet courageous little Zachary before she heads to Alaska.

According to information provided by the society, leukemia is responsible for the deaths of more children than any other disease. Plus leukemia and lymphoma are the leading fatal cancers in young men and women under 35 in the United States.

Romig, the Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen from 2001, will be back in town April 12 to start meeting her fund raising goal. Her sponsorship target for this event is to raise $6,000 for the society. She needs $5,000 more to meet that mark.

"While I train for this marathon there are local residents who are battling leukemia. By committing to run this marathon, I hope others will show their support by contributing to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society in their effort to find a cure for this disease," she wrote in a letter requesting donations.

Those who would like to sponsor her should make checks payable to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society with Romig written in the memo and send them to Katie at 711 East Dixon, Charlevoix, MI 49720. For more information about the event contact her at kathrynrom@hotmail.com.

Donations are 100 percent tax deductible.

Spring fever

Marley Niewendorp and Nancy Eldredge who work at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency opted to throw their cabin fever out the window and caught a little spring fever March 29. Business in Charlevoix is looking up

BY B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

Despite Michigan's higher than national average unemployment numbers and struggling economy, many of the business owners in Charlevoix are optimistic about the upcoming season.

Jackie Dipert, owner of The Clothing Company in downtown Charlevoix, said, "I'm down about 10 percent, but I don't think its limited to Charlevoix. I was just at a market in Minneapolis and everyone was complaining about business being down."

She added, "It has been a long cold winter, but it's bound to get better. Business is always slow in the winter and I expect it, just like I always look for an increase in summer. I don't feel there is a recession. This is business as usual, it's not something I lament. We had an excellent 2003 and we expect the same for 2004."

Tom Johnson, director of Northern Lakes Economic Alliance, said, "We've had a steady number of requests from people wanting to start a new business."

He added, "We still haven't seen the same level of growth that we did three or four years ago, but I know people whose sales and productivity are growing."

According to Johnson, saying the economy is slower now than its peak in the late 1990s is stating the obvious. However, slow periods are not all bad.

"A positive point of economic slowdowns is the increased number of people wanting to start new businesses," he said. "I see a number of economic outlooks showing small businesses expanding more than larger ones."

Johnson said cautious optimism is the prevalent theme in northwest Michigan.

"Our economy is diversified. We still have a strong manufacturing, tourism and business service base coupled with an outstanding quality of life," he said.

Johnson said these contributing factors coupled with telecommunications advances have positioned us to attract high quality, high paying jobs.

He added, "We are at the forefront of these possibilities."

Sherry Bender, owner of Flapjack family restaurant, said, "My numbers are up from last winter. Every month has been up. We are very fortunate to have so man regular local customers."

She added, "Business is dragging for many people right now. I don't know if things will pick up or get worse. My salesmen tell me all the time the top 100 accounts are down an average of 10 to 12 percent."

Like so many businesses, Bender added, "One day you're deader than a doornail and the next you are getting slammed."

Dudly Marvin, president of Stafford's Hospitality, which includes Staffords Weathervane in Charlevoix, said, "Ever since we got snow in January, things have been good. There was a good movement of skiers and snowmobile enthusiasts in January and February. We are really pleased with the amount of traffic coming through the area."

Marvin added business is up from other years in the neighborhood of 5 to 10 percent.

"We're seeing the beginning of what could be a fantastic summer. Our customers seem more pleased as well as more confident. I know the rest of Michigan is lagging behind the rest of the economy. We've been watching Florida's economy as an indicator and it seems as though this season will be great," he said.

Rumors of an economic downtown have not hindered the Weathervane's plans for the future. They are expanding with an open deck project.

Bob Woodrow, public relations with Northern Michigan Works, said, "Like so many things it is a recession if you have a significant decrease in employment and hours. If you are making money then you probably don't think it impacts you as much."

According to Woodrow, unemployment numbers, not seasonally adjusted to reflect the highs and lows of Charlevoix's tourism based economy, were an average of 8.8 percent in 2003 with a high of 10.7 percent in February 2003. The numbers dropped in January 2004 to 9.7 percent.

"My gut reaction is that it will be the same thing this spring. Unemployment will drop and business will pick up. We just haven't seen a resurgence of business like the increase in employment and decrease in unemployment in fall 2003. For instance, fall unemployment was just under 7 percent statewide, but if you're laid off, your unemployment rate is 100 percent," he said.

Woodrow said orders for labor haven't picked up yet, which is slightly unusual compared to years past, where employers would already have begun to place job orders in later winter and early spring.

"Some people I've talked to and the lack of new job orders show me people here haven't yet experienced the expansion of the economy which many southern states are experiencing," he added, "Our economic base is losing much of our long term foundation in business and manufacturing and control engineering."

"We are really pleased with the amount of traffic coming through the area."

Dudley Marvin,
President of Stafford's Hospitality

With companies like Dura Automotive Systems and Industrial Manufacturing already gone and the Leer Corporation in the process of leaving, the economy in this area is changing, "which tends to be the trend in this sector of northwest Michigan," he said.

An option for those concerned about the job market, "would be to upgrade skill levels. We have some top of the line training facilities in many fields," Woodrow suggested.

He added, "Individuals who haven't been upgrading their skills through education will find it harder and harder to get the better paying jobs."

State investigating channel dying prank

CHANNEL

Weathervane Restaurant to the Town House Bar, someone slipped dye into the water.

This decision was in direct violation of information the MDEQ had given the chamber five times.

In early January, Linda Mason, a chamber board member, talked to Dean Mikulski at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency about dying the channel. Mikulski contacted Shoemaker with the request. Shoemaker said he never received a permit application from the chamber but looked into it anyway. After further investigation he contacted Mason to inform her it would not be allowed.

Shoemaker said the department does allow tracer dyes to be used for legitimate water resource management projects but a St. Patrick's Day celebration isn't a reason for the department to allow it.

"It is not a legitimate water resource management project. It's cosmetic," he said.

In spite of the department's initial rejection of the request, Shoemaker said Mason would not take no for an answer.

"She told me, 'Chicago does it why can't we do it?'" he said. "And I said, 'We don't regulate what happens in Chicago, we regulate what happens in Michigan.'"

Mason tried to go around Shoemaker and get approval from his supervisor, the Sault Ste. Marie post of the Coast Guard and even Senator Jason Allen. But the answer was still no.

Then, someone took matters in to their own hands on St. Patrick's Day dying the channel anyway.

"You can see why this is something we want to pursue further. Someone knowingly did that when they knew they weren't supposed to," Shoemaker said.

He said the MDEQ didn't say no just to be a party crasher.

"We don't know what it was and we want to find out exactly what it was. There are some dyes that have a high toxicity," Shoemaker said.

He explained the MDEQ is concerned about two things — the nearby intake valve for the city of Charlevoix's drinking water and its impact on the fish.

"It could have killed some fish or other critters if there was a high enough concentration," he said.

If someone is charged in connection with this incident it could cost them $25,000 or more. The dye shenanigan is, a violation of the state's water resource law which deals with discharging substances into the water without a permit. This violation carries a fine of up to $25,000 a day. The responsible party could also be found in violation of the state's litter law which also carries a fine.

Shoemaker has asked that anyone with information about the incident call his office at (989) 705-3424. Anonymous calls will be accepted.

DDA to give $600,000 to library

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has dedicated $600,000 to the Charlevoix Public Library building project.

"I don't see it as a gift, I see it as an investment. It's an investment in the downtown," city manager Mike Wiesner said.

At their meeting March 29 the DDA members showed they are 100 percent behind the library and unanimously voted to dedicate $30,000 a year for 20 years to the project. Because the DDA will dissolve in 2013 this agreement is contingent on extending the life of the DDA at that time.

Under this arrangement the library will pay off the debt for the $7.3 million project up front and the DDA's yearly payments will reduce the size of the bond the library will ask voters to approve on June 14 from a maximum of .82 mills to a maximum of .78 mills for 20 years.

"On the bond I think that makes a big difference to voters as to whether or not they'll vote yes," Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson said.

Meyerson said the DDA's decision will also strengthen grant requests and will help solidify the public's trust in this project.

"This will be a big benefit all around," she said.

The DDA's support of the library project started in 2002 when it expanded its boundaries to include the old middle school property off Grant Street. It did this in order to buy the property and save it from sale to developers. The purchase of the property bought the library some time and secured three of the 13 lots for possible use by the city for marina parking.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of those lots from the city for $488,460 if voters pass the bond in June. From there the library project will renovate and expand the old middle school, where it plans to relocate.

The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor. This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room. The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, plenty of quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

The DDA plans to explore a naming opportunity in one of the rooms in lieu of its sizable contribution.

Library representatives are now hard at work looking to raise about $1 million in contributions and grants.

Weathervane to expand its outdoor dining deck

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Outdoor dining options overlooking the Pine River Channel at the Weathervane Restaurant will likely be expanded this summer.

Dudley Marvin, executive director of Staffords Hospitality, Inc. the company that owns the restaurant, recently revealed plans to extend the current deck, which stretches off the Round Lake Room. The final product will expand out and around that room to offer 2,400 square feet of dining space which will seat about 60 people.

The new deck will look similar to what currently exists with custom-made metal rails and will be a seasonal replacement for the 86-person lower level dining room. The two areas will not operate at the same time to avoid any impact on the restaurant's parking requirements.

Deck seating they have now was added in the 1970s when the Round Lake Room was added on and it accommodates about 12 people.

General manager of the restaurant, Jeff Spreckseil said when the weather is good that deck is always packed.

"We have reservations all night long for deck, deck, deck. We can't accommodate everyone," he said. "All the time people are saying add on, get a bigger deck."

While there are plenty of users out there pushing demand for more seating, the staff at the restaurant has also been after Sprecksell to make it happen.

He said the project will be costly with the major expense going toward the engineering side of things but he said he is expecting it to pay for itself in a season or two. Aside from the profit Staffords expects to see from the project Sprecksell said he is also excited to be able to offer the outdoor lake view dining experience to his guests.

"They want to enjoy the casualness of sitting outside. They come up north to enjoy our sand. They don't want to be in a building. And we want to go above and beyond their expectations," he said.

Final approval for this project is pending. The project requires an outdoor cooler be moved which means Staffords will have to get a variance from the city zoning board of appeals for a parking spot and a half. Sprecksell is hoping to have the project complete before the summer rush.

The Weathervane has been operated as a restaurant since 1954. Staffords took over the operation in 1987.

Northwest Academy took top honors at Festival March 27

While it seemed that everyone from Charlevoix was in East Lansing March 27, a group of 22 Northwest Academy students and their parents attended the State Solo & Ensemble Festival in Manistee.

"The student musicians from NWA received high praise for their musical achievements as well as their demeanor during the day," Gary Stutzman, director of bands at NWA, said.

The music department at Northwest sent 14 events to the festival on Saturday and returned with 12 first division awards and two second divisions.

The adjudicators had high praise for the musicians and at one time asked, "Does this school specialize in music or what curriculum do you follow?"

Due to the tight scheduling of a state festival, several groups performed very close together so it was evident to the judges that they were listening to an elite group of students.

"The musicians from NWA perform at a level that many students never realize and the judges that listen to them are very impressed with their sensitivity to the music and the way they approach their craft," Stutzman said.

The following events and solos received the highest rating possible of a one: Flute Quartet - Kristy Trudeau, Liz Shepard, Emily Hagen and Kelly Young; Clarinet Quartet - Celia McGee, Kelly Hand, Anna Kroon, Phoebe Allport, Amanda Seidel and James Slough; Sax Quartet - James Slough, Dan Sanchez, Alanna Leslie and Kelly Young; Sax Quartet - Joe Sievertson, Dan Sanchez, Peter Lundgren and Liz Shepard; Brass Sextet - Gina Attee, Devin Toton, Trisha Watkins, Trevor Lundgren, Jenny Fisher, Patrick Hand; Trumpet Duet - Gina Attee and Devin Toton; Flute Duet - Kristy Trudeau and Emily Hagen; Sax Trio - Joe Sievertson, Dan Sanchez and Peter Lundgren.

Students that received a Division I rating for their solos include Peter Lundgren, Elizabeth Shepard on Bari Sax, Joe Sievertson on Alto Sax and Gina Attee on Trumpet. Two students received a Division II rating in Proficiency I, they are Devin Toton on Trumpet and Emily Hagen on Flute. Proficiency includes memorized scales, sight reading and a prepared solo.

Library will feature barn songs during its story hour

This April there will be some strange sounds coming from the Charlevoix Public Library.

There will be a "moo moo" here, and a "neigh neigh" there, and everywhere a "cock a doodle doo."

It is part of a statewide project called Michigan Reads. One preschool book, "Barnyard Song" by Rhonda Growler Green, will be the focus of this special program designed to highlight the importance of reading and sharing books with children.

"We are very excited to participate in this statewide program to help promote reading to our preschoolers," said Amy Spegele, Youth Services Assistant at Charlevoix Public Library.

Spegele will be touring area preschools to present the barnyard story and invite all preschoolers to participate with the Charlevoix library by keeping a reading log and visiting the library.

Children will receive stickers on their logs and small prizes for their accomplishments each week. They may join in the program any time during the month of April.

April story hours featuring farm themes are from 10:30 - 11:15 a.m. Thursdays and from 12:30 - 1:15 p.m. Saturdays. There will be handouts available with activities to do at home.

To wrap up the program, the library will host an Ice Cream Party May 1 for families that participated. For more information, contact Spegele at the library at 547-2651. For more information on Michigan Reads, visit the web site: www.michigan.gov/michiganreads.

Rayders fall to Saginaw Knights in state final play

By Allen Telgenhof
Sports writer

Some nights in basketball, the shots just won't fall.

Unfortunately for the Charlevoix Rayders, which ended their season with a 22-6 record, their collective shooting touch went cold at the most inopportune time.

Charlevoix lost to Saginaw Buena Vista, 63-52 in the Class C state finals at the Breslin Center in East Lansing, shooting only 23.1% from the floor and 2 for 24 on three-point attempts.

"It was one of the greatest efforts that I've ever seen in a state final game, for a team that couldn't make a shot from the perimeter," Rayder coach Keith Haske said after the game.

"The fact that we hung in there and even had a chance to be in the game that late in the game was tremendous. The kids did exactly what we asked them to do the whole game. Part of basketball is putting the ball in the hole and tonight we didn't do that."

"I felt good that the kids really put in a state championship effort in every phase of the game but shooting."

Charlevoix was making its third trip to the Breslin Center in Haske's seven years as Rayder head coach.

Scott Friske, named earlier in the week by the Associated Press as a Class C first-team all-stater, picked up two fouls in the first 1:06 of play in the game.

With Friske on the bench for much of the first quarter, the Rayders trailed by seven, 14-7 but he returned in a gutsy coaching move by Haske and scored on a lay-in to cut the lead to 14-11 later in the quarter.

Charlevoix scored the first six points of the second quarter to take its first lead, 20-18 on two Jared Hunt free throws. Buena Vista responded with an 8-0 run for a 26-20 advantage with 2:34 left in the half.

Hunt was perfect on five more free throws in the half to pull the Rayders into a half-time tie at 29-29.

"At half-time, I really was fired up," Haske said. "I told the kids, we're going to make some shots and we'll win this game going away. It just never materialized."

The Rayders shot 24 percent from the floor in the first half on 7 for 29 shooting but their 14 for 16 free throw shooting and tough defense kept them in the game. Hunt was a perfect nine-for-nine from the line in the half. Buena Vistas all-stater, Tory Jackson was held to only four points in the first two quarters.

In the third quarter, Jackson and Friske staged an all-state battle of one-upmanship as the 5'10'' Jackson scored 10 points, mostly from the outside and Friske scored nine points, mostly from the inside.

The Rayders led briefly at 38-35 with 4:54 left in the quarter but a 9-0

Rayder basketball season ends with heartbreaker

Knight run gave them a 44-40 margin as the period ended.

The teams traded baskets to begin the final quarter, but Buena Vista then had a decisive 9-0 spurt to take a 55-42 lead with only 4:21 to play. Charlevoix got no closer than nine the rest of the way.

Friske fouled out, ending his high school career, on a charging call with 2:21 to go. The call, drawn by Jackson, negated a made basket and effectively ended the game for the Rayder hopeful.

"The interesting thing is that most of the year, our problem was never scoring," Haske observed. "In our close games or games where we didn't fare so well, it was typically because we didn't play as well defensively as we should have."

"I was so proud of the kids (in the final) that they kept their poise, played great defense and rebounded the ball. They did everything we wanted them to do, we just couldn't put the ball in the hole."

Hunt, a junior, scored 20 points and pulled down eight rebounds, including six on the offensive glass.

Friske finished with 19 points and 13 rebounds, despite being bogged down with the foul trouble. Haske called Friske's game very intelligent and Haske brilliantly made offense-defense substitutions to protect Friske throughout.

"It was tough. We couldn't hit shots," Friske said after the game. I kept hoping we'd go on a little bit of a run but they stayed pretty composed. They just kept coming after us."

Charlevoix posted a 66-12 record in Friske's three years of varsity play, with two of the losses coming this season by forfeit.

The Rayders out rebounded Buena Vista, 50-37 and surpassed the Knights, 29-13 in offensive rebounds, keyed by Ben Bergmann's seven offensive and nine total boards.

Bryce Daly closed out his high school career with three points, four rebounds, two assists and two steals in a tough performance.

When asked if it was the toughest defensive team he'd seen, Daly answered, "Definitely, they were very aggressive and played really well defensively."

Ironically in the semifinals, just two days earlier, Charlevoix played its best game of the season, thrashing Kent City, 86-49.

"It was awesome," Haske said. "It's not very often you see a team win in the semis by 35. It was obvious the guys felt real comfortable out there."

Daly scored 19 points to lead the Rayders. Friske had 13 points, 19 rebounds and four blocks. Bergmann scored 12 points and added five rebounds. Kyle Kramer scored 10 points.

In the quarterfinals, Charlevoix overcame an early 17-point deficit to defeat Rudyard, 71-64.

The Rayders trailed 30-13 with six minutes to go in the first half but in an 18 minute blitz, Charlevoix outscored the Bulldogs, 47-23 to take control of the game.

Friske led a balanced scoring attack with 19 points. Daly had 12. Bergmann scored 11 while John DiMartino finished with 10.

Cody Crain scored eight and Hunt added seven.

Several trying for seat on city council from the first to the third ward and said he could no longer serve due to family responsibilities. Now, after a one-year hiatus from politics, he said he's ready to jump back in the ring, but doesn't want to run against Chamberlain, who he supports.

Carlson said he doesn't have a major beef with Mayor Campbell, who will fight for his second term in office, but said his run for the seat is just a logical next step in his political career.

While Carlson doesn't want to run against Chamberlain, who isn't positive he'll run for a third term, third ward resident Dave Scott does.

Norman Carlson

Alvin Russell

Scott, 45, burst onto the political scene in the spring and summer of 2003 when he started questioning operations at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport and now, almost a year later has taken an interest in other topics at council meetings that he regularly attends.

"I think the people of Charlevoix would be better represented by someone who doesn't rubber stamp everything that comes out of the city offices," Scott said.

A battle for Haggard's first ward seat is also brewing. Haggard has served on and off council for a total of four terms and said he plans to run again. But he isn't a shoe-in for the fifth term — Becky Doan is planning to contest him.

Doan, 42, has lived in Charlevoix for the past 18 years. She said her interest in politics peaked in March of 2003 when the city planning commission started exploring a zoning ordinance amendment to include assisted living in the single family residential district as a special use.

Since then Doan has attended most council meetings and said she belongs at the big table.

"I've enjoyed it (being politically involved). I want to run," she said.

While competitors in the first and third wards and for the mayor's job have staked their claim to be in the running, second ward competition has yet to be confirmed.

Campbell plans to run for a second term and it looks like she'll face former mayor and councilman Alvin "Butch" Russell. Russell lost to Mayor Campbell in the 2002 election and said he is "considering getting back into the swing of things vying for a second ward council seat

No nominating petitions have been officially filed. Those petitions have to be returned to city hall by 4 p.m., May 11.

Charlevoix named Tree City for the twelfth year in a row

Charlevoix has been named a Tree City USA by the National Arbor Day Foundation to honor its commitment to its community forest.

It is the twelfth year Charlevoix has received this national recognition.

The Tree City USA program is sponsored by The National Arbor Day Foundation in cooperation with the National Association of State Foresters and the USDA Forest Service.

Charlevoix has met the four standards to become a Tree City USA: a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program, and an Arbor Day observance.

"This year's record number of Tree City USA communities shows a growing level of dedication and care for our urban forests," said John Rosenow, president of The National Arbor Day Foundation. "It shows the people of Charlevoix value trees for the beauty, grace, comfort, and practical blessings they bring."

He added, "The trees in Charlevoix help clean the air, conserve soil and water and reduce heating and cooling costs by moderating temperatures. Tree City USA honors the countless men, women and children in Charlevoix who are working hard to ensure a greener, healthier tomorrow for us all."

DDA against Wal-Mart

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer
And by JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) opened its pocketbook to help fuel the fight against a proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter.

Representatives from This Is Our Town, a group opposed to a Wal-Mart Supercenter locating on the south side of Charlevoix Township, attended the DDA meeting March 29 to request the development group's support.

This Is Our Town president Bob Hoffman and member John Winn made a presentation about why they feel Charlevoix should fight Wal-Mart.

"If there's one group that should be behind us, it's the DDA," Winn said.

The two claim that a Wal-Mart Supercenter would have a devastating impact on the character and economy of Charlevoix.

"It basically decimates a downtown area. It has happened in town after town, state after state, all over the country. Local merchants can't compete," Hoffman said.

Winn said Wal-Mart is approaching $300 billion in annual sales.

"Who can compete with that?" he said.

The DDA, whose mission is to help ensure the vitality of downtown Charlevoix, voted unanimously in favor of supporting This Is Our Town. Not only did the DDA verbalize its anti-Wal-Mart stance it also showed its backing by writing the group a check for $5,000.

City Mayor and DDA member Gabe Campbell, who made the motion to give This Is Our Town $5,000, said, "I think the DDA should be involved. If they (Wal-Mart) come in we'll look like all the other little towns they've destroyed. We have empty stores right now and I don't want to see a town full of empty stores."

The group has also received support from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the environmental group Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH), Keep Charlevoix Beautiful and about 3,200 people who visit, work and live in Charlevoix that

Second Chance back in lawsuit

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A group of plaintiffs claiming damages from the July 27, 1997 Venetian Festival fireworks accident, may finally have their day in court.

On May 1, 1998 nine plaintiffs claiming injuries related to a catastrophic premature explosion during a fireworks display at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival that claimed the life of Charlevoix resident Mark Yager, filed suit against 18 defendants.

Since then the plaintiff group has been in and out of court to address requests by those defendants to be dismissed.

As of March 24 the defendant list had dwindled to include six names and another, Second Chance Body Armor, a Central Lake based retailer that sells bullet proof vests, was still on the fence.

Residents' group doesn't want settlement

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A group of residents may stand in the way of a settlement in the lawsuit Dawson and Mark "Barney" Way filed against Eveline Township.

At 2:15 p.m., tomorrow, April 8, 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas will hear a request by a group of 15 residents to intervene in the Way suit.

If this intervention is granted Pajtas said all three parties will have to agree to any settlement. And it doesn't look like the resident group wants any part of the agreement that is currently on the table.

Susan Parks, an Eveline Township resident requesting the intervention, said, "We need to be involved. At this point I wouldn't agree to the settlement. I don't think this is a reasonable site for high density development period."

At a special meeting of the Eveline Township Board March 30 details were disclosed in a pending settlement agreement being negotiated between the township and the Ways.

Township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski stressed that specifics would not be disclosed because the township is still in negotiations.

The case lodged against the township in September of 2003 by the Ways alleges the township acted on an exclusionary zoning ordinance in March of 2003, when it turned down their request to have their property rezoned from agricultural to R-4, a residential zone that accommodates mobile homes.

The request applied to two pieces of property spanning over 150 acres, located adjacent to one another, with frontage on M-66 and Brock and Ferry roads.

The Ways claim that the development planned for the property would include about 200 manufactured homes and would provide needed affordable housing.

The township's master plan supports this and states that there exists, "a lack of low cost housing or rental homes and apartments in the township." In spite of the apparent need, the board acted on recommendations made by the planning commissions for both Charlevoix County and Eveline Township that it deny the request.

The commissions both recommended against the rezone as it could bring on higher density development than is supported by the township's master plan. If fully developed, the Way property in the R-4 district could accommodate a 1,200 unit manufactured home community.

The Ways claim the board's decision to deny the request for rezoning the whole piece constitutes exclusionary zoning which violates the Township Rural Zoning Act, the Mobile Home Commission Act and their constitutional rights.

In working through the lawsuit the township has discovered that if this case goes to trial a judge could find its ordinance is exclusionary.

In January while the township was dealing with depositions they came across old master plan paperwork that showed specific plats in the Ironton and Advance areas where R-4 development would be allowed. However, none of the plats are large enough to meet the 10 acre minimum requirement for the R-4 district as outlined in the township's zoning ordinance.

"That's where we have the exclusionary problem. And we would more than likely lose that in court," Skreczkoski said.

He explained that if the township were to lose the case that would be the end of any local control over the project and control would revert to the Michigan Mobile Home Commission whose regulations for this type of development are less stringent.

"Once we discovered our case wasn't strong and saw the consequences of what would happen if we lost — aesthetically, financially and so forth. We decided to negotiate to lessen that impact," Skreczkoski said.

Negotiations so far would permit separate types of development on the 77 acres that make up the north half of the property between Shaw and Roberts roads and the 78 acre south half from Roberts Road west to Ferry Road.

Skreczkoski said current settlement discussions have included allowing under 40 percent of the 1,200 home site maximum which would be under 480 homes. This would be split between the two parcels with under 25 percent or 300 homes permitted on the south parcel and under 15 percent or 180 homes on the north parcel.

The township is also negotiating details including utility concerns, site preparation, open space, driveway cuts and maintaining development plan review rights. This agreement is not set in stone and if Judge Pajtas grants the resident group its intervention it likely never will be.

Parks said, "It (the development) would change the whole character of this neighborhood. I didn't purchase land next to a mobile home park and I don't want to end up next to a mobile home park."

Other resident concerns include the impact of the development on area wells and possible pollution problems from runoff and sewage disposal. The intervention group supports the township's denial of the Ways' rezoning request and members have said if the intervention is granted they will likely push for it to go to trial.

If the case goes to trial, the Ways will ask Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas to decree the township's zoning ordinance invalid and illegal and to allow them to develop their property as a manufactured home community.

If the Ways lose, the township's decision stands and Pajtas has been asked to award the township its costs and attorney fees. Both sides have submitted exhibit and witness lists for trial. If the case is not settled before the final pre-trial/settlement conference April 12, a trial date will be set at the conference.

Mark Way is on vacation and did not return calls regarding this issue by press time.

Even on vacation writer can't stop thinking

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

My wife made me take a vacation last week.

Apparently I was getting irritable. It happens to newspaper editors often. I guess it is a job hazard. I tend to avoid vacations. They take too much time and I have to work double to catch up when I return.

But, this vacation was different. I actually got a chance to just sit around and think. Which can be a good thing at times. During this thinking period, I noticed a few issues kept dancing around my head.

Let me share them with you.

Don't talk to the press

Lately I have been hearing many tales from city and county government workers telling me they have been teased or chastised by co-workers for talking to the media about public issues.

I have heard on more than one occasion that a government worker who informed the Courier about something that the public needed to be informed of was told they are not working for the "good" of the county or city by speaking with us.

Excuse me? Not working for the good of the government? It seems to me some government folks do not realize that they work for the public. Therefore, the public has a right to know if there are problems that need to be addressed in their government.

By speaking with the newspaper, civic-minded government workers are doing their duty for the people. Those who are saying they are not are really saying these workers are not acting in the best interest of back-room politics.

I salute any government worker or elected official who speaks with the newspaper to inform the public about something that needs their attention. Shame on any government worker or elected official who criticizes these people for doing their duty.

Part-timers

In a recent conversation with a candidate for state office, we were talking about various ways for the state to save money in the face of budget deficits. Jokingly, I said one way to save money was by making the state House and Senate a part-time position.

But, as I sat on a beach in South Carolina last week, the idea started to appeal to me.

Think about it. Do we really need full -ime representatives?

With a part-time representative, this means our officials will be more in touch with the issues their constituents are dealing with on a daily basis. Plus, they have less time to debate or pass silly issues like dove hunting and if we are going to change the state bird. More time will be spent on issues that really matter, like the budget and schools, and at half the cost to the taxpayers.

Wouldn't that be wonderful? A representative who really knows your pain and does not have to rely on information given to them by a lobbyist or their press secretary. A representative who is a part of the community they represent, rather than the community of. Lansing. A representative that doesn't have time for time-filling issues that are pushed by special interest groups and only time for issues that truly impact our lives.

Ah, what a beautiful dream on the beach that was.

Dove hunting

As I noted in the last little section, I am not really a fan of the dove hunting drive. It is a silly, meaningless issue that I wish would just go away.

I have been a hunter most of my life, both small game and large animals. And before I could hunt legally, I used to go out into the woods with my uncles and watch as they hunted.

I love it. There is nothing more relaxing to me than sitting out in the woods and waiting for a deer to approach. Most of the time I never even take a shot because I am just too relaxed to pick up that gun or pull back the drawstring.

But, I am a firm believer in eating what I kill. I am not a trophy hunter and look upon those that are with disdain.

I believe they make my sport look bad in the eyes of the general public. (I do not believe rocker Ted Nugent is a good representative of hunters.)

Which is what dove hunting is to me. There is not much meat on the bird, therefore hunters really are just shooting at them because they are a challenge to hit. If that is what you are after, visit a gun club or shooting range and try shooting clay targets thrown in the air.

In the meantime, our representatives in Lansing need to move on to other more important issues than this.

On the record

Wal-Mart sales

Editor:

In Jeremy McBain's article, "Wal-Mart will have big impact on area business" that appeared in the March 24 Charlevoix Courier, I question the annual sales volume estimate of "$35 to $40 million" volunteered by the Wal-Mart spokesperson. In 1999, Wal-Mart averaged sales of $385 per square foot in its stores.

Taking that number and applying it to the 157,400 square feet of the proposed Charlevoix Wal-Mart Supercenter would be $60.5 million dollars. That's over $60 million dollars that would leave Charlevoix and surrounding communities and go straight to Bentonville, Ark. Right now, we have three grocery stores, a Kmart and a variety of small retail businesses. In addition, we have approximately 50,000 square feet of chronically vacant retail space. If Wal-Mart comes to town, there will be one place to shop — the Wal-Mart Supercenter. Charlevoix doesn't need a Wal-Mart, we already have one only 17 miles away.

Great job

Editor:

It has been said, "Success Breeds Success." Nowhere is this more true than in the Charlevoix High School boys basketball program. Six district championships, four regional championships and three trips to the Breslin Center in the last six years. Student athletes come, they participate, and they graduate and move on. The program continues to win. Throughout this period of success two constants remain, thank you Keith Haske and Bret Erskine for helping spell SUCCESS.

Congrats

Editor:

My congratulations to Coach Keith Haske and the Charlevoix Boys basketball team on a great season! You all have much to be proud of and it is truly difficult to describe the pride I feel because of the poise, maturity and class you have shown throughout the year.

You have fulfilled many goals and dreams that had been set months, and possibly even years ago.

As a fan, I look forward to many more years of exciting play from all the Charlevoix sports teams. To the Charlevoix fans: You are simply the best! When I played sports at Charlevoix High School, the fans were supportive, enthusiastic and loyal. You still are, and from the point of view of an athlete, it means a great deal! Many "thanks" from a Charlevoix alumni — one of the "kids" 22 years ago.

We need a mall

Editor:

Are you tired of driving all the way to Traverse City to shop? Well, those days are over, if you agree with me. I think we should have a mall in downtown Charlevoix.

It would save people money. First of all, Charlevoix citizens have to drive all the way to Traverse City to shop at a mall. It would save gas if we had a mall in Charlevoix for them to go and shop. I remember once when I wanted to go to a mall and shop my mom said no because it was a long drive and also a waste of gas. We can have good in-style clothes for young girls. We can have stores like Limited Too, Aeropostale, Gap, Old Navy, and stores for example Bath and Body Works and more. Lots of girls will go and shop for those in-style clothes, like shirt clips and girls' sport clothes.

Also a mall will give a better selection on shopping. The stores that are here now don't have good style on clothes these days. A mall can be used for many things, like if a family member has a birthday you can go right to a mall to get a present. Also if you are going to go on vacation you can go and shop for new bathing suits. I hope you think about my idea and build a mall. People would be much happier to drive ten minutes to get to a mall. Last of all, we would get lots of business in the summer because of tourists. Also we would get business in the winter because of snowmobiles that come up from down state.

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

First, let me begin by saying that my family of five lives on a very limited income. Like many of you, we live paycheck to paycheck, use coupons and enjoy getting the most for our money.

That said, I would like to share a few thoughts with you. A lot of you are lucky enough to remember Dockside Pharmacy. A quaint shop, where you received a little yellow card that entitled you to a free fountain coke or phosphate and a spot at the counter while you waited for your prescription to be filled. I was fortunate enough to have worked there. I have many fond memories at that counter. School kids would come in for lunch, many people would stop in every morning before they headed to work, and throughout the day people would come to Dockside for a coke and to visit with their neighbors.

Many "fudgies" would come to town for a "Jeff" or a "Concrete," excited to bring their children to a place they loved to visit when they were young. I looked forward to someday sharing this with my children. Sadly, I also remember a conversation with Mr. Williams about his concerns with Kmart coming to town. It wasn't long after that...well, you know the rest of the story.

How many times have you, your children or your grandchildren approached Charlevoix Floral, The Villager Pub, Oleson's, Charlevoix Camera, The Clothing Company and many of the other downtown shops for a donation, a place to have a bake sale or a fund-raiser? Your local merchants (neighbors and friends) are very generous. The majority of the time they find some way to help out. Wal-Mart will not do that for you. Research it. Watch those ads you see on T.V. carefully. It is not Wal-Mart doing all those wonderful things for America, it is their employees. Do you think Wal-Mart will send one of their employees downtown to take a complimentary picture of your children or grandchildren with the Easter Bunny?

I feel for those of you on a tight budget, but there is a Super Walmart within reasonable driving distance. Is driving 20 to 30 minutes once in a while too much to ask to keep Charlevoix a unique town where chain stores don't replace charming downtown shops?

P.S. If you have doubts, take a ride over to Gaylord and look at all the empty stores in the old Wal-Mart Plaza.

Kathleen Powers (Campbell)

Yes to Wal-Mart

Editor:

Why not have a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix? I think Wal-Mart would help a lot of people in Charlevoix, who can't afford the stores downtown, so they have to travel to Petoskey just to get one or two things. Why should they have to travel 34 miles when you can have one in your own town?

My first reason why Wal-Mart should come to Charlevoix is Wal-Mart has lower prices. You could spend $100 on food downtown and you can go to Wal-Mart and save $10 to $20. I bought a movie at Wal-Mart and it cost $9 and at Borders for the same movie it was $25.

Unfortunately, we have to travel to Petoskey. If we had a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix, we could save money on driving. Also people who live in East Jordan have to travel more than they should have to. What if you were making a big dinner and you didn't have all the ingredients and the stores in downtown Charlevoix were too high in prices and you have to travel to Petoskey because Wal-Mart is the only one with the cheap prices. So you wasted 34 miles when you could only go 2 to 10 miles if we had a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix.

People in Charlevoix think it will run the stores downtown out of business. I don't think it will because the rich people in the summer are not going to shop at Wal-Mart, when they came up here to spend their money on high dollar items downtown. Also Wal-Mart does not sell what they sell downtown. Downtown they sell art from people who made it in Charlevoix and Wal-Mart is not going to sell that.

In conclusion I think Wal-Mart should come to Charlevoix for these reasons. So stop fighting about it coming because it's already coming.

Build skate ramps

Editor:

Do you get tired of having skateboarders and rollerbladers downtown? I think Charlevoix should have two half-pipes and jumps at Shanahan Field for the skaters to skate on again. The first reason why we want jumps and two half pipes at Shanahan Field is that people don't want skaters downtown. People downtown think we are noisy. We also are annoying them.

My second reason is the skaters are getting bored of not having a nice place to skate. There are no other places to skate nearby. The closest place is East Jordan. There are no safe places to skate downtown either.

My last reason is many skaters would use the jumps. They would use them because there is no other place to skate nearby. Most of my friends skate, and my friends' brothers and their friends skate. Would you please consider returning the jumps and half-pipes to Shanahan Field? The kids of Charlevoix would love the jumps back at Shanahan Field!

Wedding

Wallace — Beattie

Rebecca Jane Wallace and Frederick Joseph James "Jamie" Beattie, both of Golden, Colo., were married Sept. 27 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Rebecca is the daughter of Jeannine Wallace of Charlevoix and the late Lawrence C. Wallace.

Jamie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Beattie of Golden, Colo.

The Rev. Mary Willis performed the double ring ceremony. Arrangements of periwinkle hydrangeas, white stock and seeded eucalyptus decorated the church.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her nephew, Ryan Spence Watts. of Harbor Springs.

The bride wore a white brushed satin gown with wide sheer off-the-shoulder embroidered straps. Her fitted bodice was adorned with crystals and featured a low scoop back, highlighted by a row of satin buttons flowing down the chapel train. A short veil of illusion was attached to a crystal headpiece and she carried a loose arrangement of blue hydrangeas, delphinium, white roses and white freesia.

Music was provided by organist Sue Scott and violinist Krista Knight. Bagpiper Jack Fellows also provided music and piped the couple out of the church at the conclusion of the ceremony.

The Matron of Honor was Shawn Gorski of Charlevoix. Sherri Aiken, the bride's law school roommate, was the bridesmaid. They wore periwinkle two-piece gowns with embroidered bodices and simple long flowing skirts. They carried flowers to complement the bridal bouquet.

Elizabeth and Kathryn Gorski, daughters of the matron of honor, served as flower girls. They wore white dresses with blue satin sashes and wore circlets of hydrangea petals in their hair.

The wedding guests were seated by Douglas Aiken, husband of the bridesmaid, and Jason Cetovich, the groom's friend.

The best man was Azeem Haqq of North Carolina, a friend of the groom. Stacy Beattie, the brother of the groom, was the groomsman.

A reception was given at the Belvedere Club Casino in Charlevoix. A rehearsal dinner was given at the Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix.

The couple are planning a wedding trip to Antigua in the fall. They are making Golden, Colo. their home.

Rebecca is a certified public accountant and a member of the Colorado Bar. She recently opened her law and CPA firm in Golden, Colo. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and Western Michigan University with a degree in business administration and accounting. She graduated from John Marshall Law School in Chicago with a juris doctorate and an LLM in taxation.

Jamie is employed by Coors Distributing and is a special events coordinator for Coors Company.

He is a graduate of Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in art, science and communication.

This Is Our Town presenting forum

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

This Is Our Town wants the people of Charlevoix and its surrounding area to know what a Wal-Mart will do to the community.

In its continuing effort to stop the building of a Super Wal-Mart in Charlevoix Township, the group is hosting a public forum 7 p.m., April 15 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium on Marion Center Road. As part of this forum, the group will be bringing in noted author Al Norman, who is a small town advocate who has taken on Wal-Mart across the nation.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, said, "We think that he (Norman) is probably one of the most knowledgeable people in the country on the effects of Wal-Mart on small towns."

He said the organization has been talking with Norman for several months about visiting. This Is Our Town is paying to have Norman come to Charlevoix.

Norman said, "I hope to help make people aware of the other side. Why Charlevoix will be better off without a Wal-Mart."

He added, "Wal-Mart only says what is good for Wal-Mart. I would like to talk about what is good for Charlevoix."

To do this, Norman will have six topics to cover.

First, he will discuss what Wal-Mart promises and what is real or not, in terms of jobs and giving to the community. Second, he said he will discuss Wal-Mart's voodoo economics and what really happens to the local economy when Wal-Mart comes to town.

"This is not a shot in the arm for the economy, this is a shot in the head," he said.

Third, Norman said he will be talking about the retail jobs and spending figures for Charlevoix County and what could happen if Wal-Mart does come to town. He said he will focus particularly on the grocery market.

Fourth and fifth, Norman will go over the Charlevoix Township master plan and what it tells him as an outsider and the zoning code.

"One of the things the master plan does clearly state is the goal of land development should be to avoid strip development," he said.

As for the Wal-Mart plan, Norman said, "This is what the master plan really warned about."

Lastly, Norman said he will be looking at some zoning changes the city might want to consider, such as limiting the size of buildings and having different requirements for large developments.

Hoffman said Wal-Mart has not been invited to attend the forum at the high school. However, he invited residents who have opinions on both sides of the issue to attend.

"As we have always said, we respect peoples' right to disagree with us," he said.

City considering denying services to Wal-Mart

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix's City Council is considering denying the proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter utilities.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said, "I don't think we should give them any utilities. We'll take in $10 and they'll take away $10 million. We shouldn't service big box stores because of the damage they'll do to the community."

At Monday night's meeting council debated whether or not the city can deny sewer and electric service to Wal-Mart. The big box retailer has its sights set on developing land on the south side of Charlevoix Township. Water service in that area is provided by Charlevoix Township.

In Wal-Mart's site plan they propose to hook into the city's gravity sewer at Marion Center and Stover roads and from there run a sewer line along US-31 south to dispose of the 4,000 gallons of wastewater the site will create daily. The cost to run the service would fall on Wal-Mart.

In the city's sewer master plan the sewer line planned to run along US-31 is 12 to 15 inches. This master plan was never officially adopted by council.

City manager Mike Wiesner told council that it wouldn't do any good to deny those services to Wal-Mart. He explained that other electric providers would be happy to serve them and that by denying the electric service the city would lose major future growth potential.

He further explained that refusing sewer service wouldn't do any good in the fight to stop Wal-Mart because the health department has affirmed there is property available northeast of the proposed Wal-Mart site that would be appropriate for an on-site septic system.

"It isn't going to be a stopper in either of those cases," Wiesner said.

Aside from the likelihood that Wal-Mart would get the services, another way Wiesner said the city may be obligated to provide them with sewer service.

He explained that federal grant money helped pay for construction of the wastewater treatment plant and the grant requirements may obligate the city to provide service to any customer if it has the capacity to do that.

City staff is currently researching the grant.

Because of this he advised council to let the services issue go and save the city legal fees.

"It seems to me it would be an uphill battle to try and stop something you can't really stop anyway," Wiesner said. "And I question going through an exercise when you are not going to stop the project in that fashion."

"It may be a bump in the road to drive over, that would be it."

Bob Hoffman, president of the anti Wal-Mart group, This is Our Town, stressed that council's denial of utilities is one of many roadblocks his group is working on creating in its effort to try and stop the company.

"If we put up enough road blocks maybe Wal-Mart will get the message that they ought to go somewhere else," Hoffman told council. "Maybe all together those road blocks will be enough to stop Wal-Mart."

Council ultimately voted to adopt the city's current utility policy for serving customers outside the city limits which was informal before Monday night. They also gave city attorney Jim Young directions to work on changes to that policy to make it more strict.

Young told council that if they deny service they have to have a reason.

Mayor Campbell said a project's negative economic impact should be council's basis of denial and suggested establishing a policy that requires a study of that impact before service is considered.

Wiesner does not support changing the policy.

Changes can be made to the policy at any regular or special city council meeting. Council will have to make any changes in the near future as Wal-Mart is scheduled for site plan review before the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on April 28.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson plans to work toward strict changes.

"I don't think we should sit on this," she said. "I want to see a strict policy about sewer connections."

Library barn story hours

This April there will be some strange sounds coming from the Charlevoix Public Library and all libraries across the state.

There will be a "moo moo" here, and a "neigh neigh" there, and everywhere a "cock a doodle doo'"

It is all part of a statewide project called Michigan Reads. One preschool book, "Barnyard Song" by Rhonda Growler Green, will be the focus of this special program designed to highlight the importance of reading and sharing books with children.

"We are very excited to participate in this statewide program to help promote reading to our preschoolers," said Amy Spegele, Youth Services Assistant.

Spegele will be touring area preschools to present the barnyard story and invite all preschoolers to participate with the Charlevoix Library by keeping a reading log and visiting the library.

Children will receive stickers on their logs and small prizes for their accomplishments each week. They may join in the program any time during the month of April.

April story hours from 10:30 - 11:15 on Thursdays and from 12:30 - 1:15 on Saturdays will feature farm themes. There will be handouts available with activities to do at home.

To wrap up the program, the library will host an Ice Cream Party on May 1, 2004 for all families that participated in the program. For more information, contact Spegele at the library by calling 547-2651.

For more information on Michigan Reads, visit the web site: www.michigan.gov/michiganreads.

Hospital to host CPR class

There will be a free CPR class April 17, given by Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Heart Association.

CPR for Family and Friends is a modular course that teaches lay rescuers skills in CPR and relief of foreign body airway obstruction (FBAO) in the responsive victim.

The course presents information about the American Heart Association (AHA) adult Chain of Survival and signs of heart attack, cardiac arrest, stroke and choking in adults. The course also presents information on the AHA pediatric Chain of Survival, signs of choking in infants and children, prevention of the most common fatal pediatric injuries, and reduction in the risk of sudden infant death syndrome.

Pre-registration is required.

Classes are taught by certified instructors and are through Charlevoix Area Hospital, which is an American Heart Association community-training center.

For more information and to register, please contact Connie Roland at 547-8570. Early registration is recommended due to limited class size.

CPR Classes are also offered to private organizations upon special request.

When a couple learns they are about to have a child, they experience an enormous surge of pure joy!

If things go wrong with a pregnancy, there seems to be no end to the pain. Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that the loss of an infant, by miscarriage, premature birth or stillbirth is perhaps one of the most difficult times anyone must face. And it ripples well beyond the parents – to other children, aunts and uncles and grandparents.

"Nobody knows what to say to a parent who has lost a baby. They have no experience of your baby, which I believe makes it hard for them to know how to acknowledge your baby's life and the impact that your baby's loss has on you, no matter how short the life was."

"After my son Alex died, almost no one simply said, 'We are sorry for your loss,' or 'Your hearts must be broken, we're so sorry.' What most parents who find themselves in this horrible situation really need is acknowledgement of their loss and a chance to talk about it if they choose to."

St. Marys presents 'Esther-Ordinary Faith'

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

An upcoming spring program at St. Mary School will showcase the talents of Pre-kindergarten through sixth grade students.

The free evening show is scheduled to take place at 6:30 p.m., April 22 in the Family Center at the school located at 1005 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

The program will feature performances by the St. Mary's string players, fourth and fifth grade recorder players, the Pre-k and Kindergartners and will conclude with a multiage musical.

The musical, "Esther-Ordinary Faith," will tell the story of Queen Esther, from the book of Esther in the Bible's Old Testament.

The story takes place in the fifth century B.C. The heroine of the story, Esther, is a Jewish girl chosen by King Xerxes to be his queen who, because of her powerful position, has the opportunity to save her people from being put to death by the king's advisor, Haman.

Mordecai, Esther's older cousin and adopted father who raised her, advises Esther and tells her that God made her the queen for "such a time as this."

"The message here is that she had the opportunity to save her people because she was put in this position — I like the idea that God puts us in a position to accomplish something in his timing," director Jodi Thompson said.

Other characters in the play include Xerox the scribe, who records the life and reign of Xerxes, Jewish residents from Susa called the Susans, and the king's bodyguard.

Thompson said she hopes those who attend the performance hear its message.

"The story of queen Esther helps us to grow in our faith by reminding us that God is in control of the difficult situations we face, and that we can trust in him no matter what the future holds," she said.

Prom kits available to parents

With high school proms coming up soon, Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan (PPNM) is promoting responsible decision-making, by again offering free Prom Kits.

"We encourage parents to come in and pick up a Kit," said Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan Assistant Education Director Lori O'Neill. "The information and materials included will help them have discussion with their teens about responsible decision-making. We first offered the Prom Kits in 1994, and they have been very popular every year since."

The Prom Kits include brochures on Communicating with Teens about Sexuality, Drinking and Driving, Date Rape Drugs, Abstinence and other important topics.

"While prom is a fun night for high school students, the activities that go on after prom can include parties where teenagers may engage in risky behaviors. It is important for teens to understand how drug or alcohol use can reduce inhibitions, increasing the risk of irresponsible sexual activity. Teens also need information on communicating with their dates about sexual limit setting," said O'Neill. "Parents can help by reinforcing this before prom and Planned Parenthood's Prom Kits can help parents begin conversations with their teen to help ensure a safe, fun evening."

Planned Parenthood encourages teens to make healthy, responsible choices.

The Prom Kits are intended to give parents the information they need to have those important talks and to remind them that peer pressure is an integral part of teens' social life. The more skills and information our young people have, the better prepared they will be to stand up for their own values.

For those teens who decide to be sexually active, there are also brochures on birth control, sexually transmitted infections, and condom use. The Kits do not contain condoms.

Prom Kits are available at Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan health center at 1003 Spring Street in Petoskey.

The kits will also be available throughout the community at selected businesses. They are free, while supplies last.

For more information call (231)347-9692.

Girls' track takes first in indoor meet

The Charlevoix girls track team competed at Lake Superior State University in Sault Ste. Marie March 31 and came away with a first place finish.

The girls team competed against five other schools and finished the afternoon with 81 points, six points higher than second place finisher Manistique and 11 points higher than third place Harbor Springs.

The afternoon was highlighted by record-breaking relay teams and sprinters.

Emily Heffling, Caitlin Ernst, Betsey Dennis and Shannon Dibble took first in the sprint medley relay breaking Charlevoix High School's indoor record with a time of 4 minutes 2.5 seconds.

Another record breaking team made up of Theresa Martin, Amy Drew, Lindi Edger and Michelle Rowe took first at the meet for the distance medley relay. They broke the high school's record for this event with a time of 14 minutes and 56.7 seconds.

The 800 meter relay team made up of Jasmine Witthoeft, Sonya Plude, Caitlin Ernst and Emily Heffling followed suit finishing first with a school indoor record of one minute 59.3 seconds.

Drew, Rowe, Dibble and Liz Madison rounded out the relay record breakers taking first place in the 1,600 meter relay. Their time in this event was 4 minutes, 36.4 seconds which broke the school's record.

Plude, running the 200 meter dash, continued the trend and broke the school's indoor record with a time of 29.53 seconds. She took third place in this event.

Heffling also broke the school indoor record for 55 meter hurdles taking fourth place for her time of 10 minutes 36 seconds.

In other impressive finishes Martin took second place for the 400 meter dash with a time of 1 minute, 11 seconds. And in the 1,600 meter run Emily Westenbroek finished in 6 minutes, 30 seconds to secure second place with her teammate Caitlin Taylor on her heels finishing the event in six minutes 31 seconds taking third place.

Sheriff Lasater warns about phone solicitation

Hundreds of annoying telephone solicitations continue to plague the citizens of Charlevoix County, according to Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, who said his office is receiving numerous complaints from citizens and local businesses regarding telemarketers.

Due to the increase in solicitation calls, Lasater would like to remind the citizens of Charlevoix County that his professional organization, the Michigan Sheriffs' Association (MSA), does not conduct telephone solicitation, nor does the Michigan Chiefs of Police or Michigan State Police.

It is important for citizens to know that these groups are not solicitors and do not endorse any type of telephone solicitation.

"The Michigan Sheriffs' Association adamantly opposes telemarketing," said Terrence L. Jungel, Executive Director of the Michigan Sheriffs Association. "If your phone is ringing, it's not us!"

"People should beware of questionable phone solicitations by supposed representatives of law enforcement organizations," said Lasater.

The statement comes as a result of the inundation of complaints regarding phone solicitations in the area.

The complaints indicate that solicitors claiming to represent law enforcement organizations call with such claims as "donations will help take drunks off the roads" or "your donations will help Charlevoix County."

Sheriff Lasater says that although there are reputable organizations soliciting, he also warns that any calls of this nature should be handled carefully.

Consumers are advised to obtain the following information from solicitors: Their name and specifications on who they represent, including a state issued license number, ask if they have any literature that they can send, ask for their phone number and don't talk to solicitors if they call after 9 p.m. In addition, the sheriff warns against giving out your charge card number or agreeing to let anyone come to your home to pick up cash.

Terrence L. Jungel said that, "The Michigan Sheriffs' Association is the only association representing the Office of Sheriff and we do not solicit memberships by phone. If any other association calls saying that they represent the Michigan Sheriffs' Association or your county, they are misleading you."

"The people that are using these very questionable tactics are doing great damage to reputable law enforcement associations," said Sheriff Lasater.

Neither the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office nor the Michigan Sheriffs Association endorse or take part in telephone solicitation.

Two governmental agencies provide protection from abusive and deceptive telemarketing sales practices: The Federal Communications Commission with the Consumer Protection Act, and the Federal Trade Commission with the Telemarketing Sales Rule. These rules protect consumers and make it illegal for telemarketers to:

- Call you if you have clearly stated that you want to be added to their "Do Not Call List."
- Call before 8 a.m. and after 9 p.m.
- Tie up your home telephone line with auto-dialed and prerecorded messages.
- Neglect to tell you their company name and what they are selling at the beginning of the call; prize promotions must be disclaimed, saying no purchase or payment is necessary to enter or win.
- Misrepresent any information.
- Ask for payment before telling you the total cost of goods, whether a sale is final or non-refundable, the odds of winning a prize and any restrictions/conditions on getting the prize.
- Withdraw money from your checking account without expressed, verifiable consent.
- Request a fee before providing the service for credit repair or loan promotion, lie to get payment for any goods or services, and transmit unsolicited ads to fax machines.

If you wish to stop sales calls the Michigan Public Service Commission suggests the following steps:

- Demand that the telemarketer place you name on the "Do Not Call" list. The law requires them to honor your request.
- Ask for the company's name and address.
- Write down the date and time that you received the phone call and the action that you took.

The Attorney General provides consumers a Telemarketer Tracking Form to record and keep track of these calls.

- If the telemarketer persists in trying to sell you a product or service, hang up the phone.

For additional information concerning the do's and don'ts of telemarketing, Sheriff Lasater recommends contacting the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office at (877) 765-8388.

For complaints, contact the Federal Communications Commission Enforcement Bureau for Consumer Complaints at (888) 225-5322.

Supreme Court rules on Second Chance

LAWSUIT

Supreme Court ruling officially named Second Chance a defendant.

On this day the Lansing based court entered an order denying a request to overturn a June 2003 appellate court ruling that reversed a dismissal granted to Second Chance by 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas' on Oct. 19, 2001.

A plaintiff in the fireworks cases, Ted Dobrowolski, who lost an arm and a leg in the blast said the court's ruling was what should have been done in the first place.

"I don't know why Judge Pajtas ever dismissed Second Chance. Both the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals have said they should be part of it. It (Judge Pajtas' decision) has cost us two and a half years," he said."

While the case went through the two courts the trial pending in Charlevoix's circuit court was on hold. In March of 2002 Judge Pajtas, issued a stay in the fireworks case, waiting on the appellate court decision. This stay postponed the trial which was on the docket for April and May of that year.

At that time, Judge Pajtas issued a statement about the postponement explaining that if the trials were to proceed and the appeals court remanded the claims against Second Chance back to circuit court for jury trial, all the cases would have to be retried.

Last spring the appeals court ruled to overturn the dismissal because case law has established that an employer is responsible for its employee's actions. In the opinion it says that Second Chance paid its employees for time they spent renovating a trailer that housed the pyrotechnical mortars where the blast started and that the mortars and trailer failed to contain or divert the explosion.

The Supreme Court supported this opinion.

Dobrowolski said this decision isn't a major victory for he and his fellow plaintiffs.

"At this point, I couldn't care less about the outcome. I just want this done, it doesn't matter anymore," he said. "I just want closure."

Pajtas said this recent decision by the state Supreme Court means the cases are "finally" back in the hands of the trial court.

"That doesn't mean it won't be settled but it does bring it back in our jurisdiction so we can move it along," he said.

Dan Steele, the attorney for Second Chance, is confident that the company will not be found at fault if the case goes to trial.

"We think the facts that convinced Judge Pajtas to dismiss it (the lawsuit facing Second Chance) would also convince a jury to dismiss it," Steele said.

A scheduling conference will likely take place May 10 at which time the cases will be set for trial.

The nine plaintiffs are the Dobrowolski family, Charles and Diana Cradduck, Gary and Bryan Kress, Frances Ladi, James Sr. and Winifred Snider, Mark and Lisa Sokolowski, Laura Wilson, Shannon Wilson and Deborah Yager.

Defendants currently remaining in the cases are Second Chance, Richard Davis, Fireworks North, Wolverine Fireworks Display Incorporated, Glen Crawford, Lawrence Grise and Michael Jaye.

The primary claim stated in the brief is against Davis, the operator and permit holder for the fireworks display. Davis is also owner and president of Fireworks North, a corporation he formed to conduct fireworks displays throughout Michigan, and part owner of Second Chance.

The plaintiffs argue Davis violated well-known and universally accepted industry standards as well as common sense in conducting the display.

The plaintiffs' brief states, "The most outrageous of his many violations was allowing the spectators to assemble at less than 10 percent of the required separation distance. According to the standards promulgated by the National Fire Protection Association the separation distance for the Charlevoix display should have been 840 feet."

The brief states the standards used by the fire protection association base crowd separation distance on the size of the fireworks being displayed. It states, "spectators should be set back 70 feet for each diameter inch of the largest display mortar."

The plaintiffs claim and Davis testified, 12 inch mortars were used at the Charlevoix display. Thus, according to the fire protection agency's standard, the crowd should have been 840 feet from the trailer but the brief states that people gathered 50 feet away.

The brief also states that during Davis' deposition he admitted to having no formal pyrotechnics training. He further claims that before the 1997 Venetian accident he had no knowledge of the National Fire Protection Association or any other of the generally accepted industry standards or guidelines concerning the discharge of fireworks.

The brief states that during Davis' deposition he said he constructed homemade launching trailers to perform the Charlevoix display.

The plaintiffs claim the design of the trailer he used also violated standards for fireworks launching equipment and posed a significant risk of injury.

The plaintiffs are claiming negligent sale and product liability against Wolverine Fireworks Display Inc., a fireworks supply company based in Kawkawlin who sold shells, as mortar tubes and launching equipment to Davis in 1997. Davis testified these were used at the Charlevoix display.

However, according to the brief, no expert has been able to identify the shell involved in the accident as being supplied by Wolverine as it was consumed in the explosion.

Crawford, another defendant in the cases, is Davis' brother-in-law. The plaintiffs' brief states that he played a role in the construction of the launching trailer and participated in the Charlevoix display.

Crawford also testified that there were several modifications made to the trailer he and others constructed before the Charlevoix Venetian festival display.

Grise, a defendant in the case, played a role in the construction of the launching trailer and participated in the Charlevoix display.

The brief states, Jaye, participated in the Charlevoix display and investigating police officers noted he had been drinking.

Davis and Fireworks North Inc. carried no liability insurance for public fireworks displays.

Defendants who have been dismissed from the cases include: United Pyrotechnics Inc., Hunan Provincial Fireworks and Firecrackers Import/Export Corp., Temple of Heaven and Marvin McKay, PyroShows Inc., City of Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, former city clerk Jo Anne Patrick, city manager Mike Wiesner, former city fire chief Doug Carver, 1997 Venetian Festival Chairman John Taylor and former Venetian Festival coordinating body, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Build a water park

Editor:

Wouldn't it be nice if children were not cooped up in the house on a nice summer day? Well, I might have a good idea. We need a water park in the city of Charlevoix.

One reason is, children would be having more fun. They would be swimming around in the pool because it's fun to swim and not be hot and miserable all day. They would also be jumping off the diving boards and into the pool, and some people would be having fun doing that.

In addition, children would be getting exercise. Swimming around in the pool is good exercise. Running around in the park is a good exercise also. Walking up to the stairs to the water slide is somewhat good exercise too.

Last of all, people from other cities would be coming to our city and they would be helping Charlevoix's economy. They would be paying the water park and the water park's money would go to Charlevoix's economy.

In conclusion, these are great reasons on how we should be having a water park in the City of Charlevoix. Remember, it's for the children who are miserable at home in the summer time!

A God of many religions?

Editor:

In your Wednesday, Feb. 18, issue you published an article entitled, "Our God is God of many religions."

The theory presented proposes that Muslims, Jews and Christians all pray to the same God.

That is a legitimate theory if only the Old Testament is considered, but what about the New Testament and the Gospels of Jesus?

We can't exclude it because all through the Old Testament there are prophecies of a coming Messiah. They foretell of his conception, what his name would be and where he would be born and his baptism into his ministry.

They also foretell of him being falsely accused, his betrayal, his scourging, his ultimate death by crucifixion, his burial and his resurrection from the dead.

Jesus fulfilled all of those prophecies and more.

If then all religions worship, pray to and revere the same God they have to accept the validity of the New Testament and the reality of who Jesus was and is. Since all religions do not accept that we certainly can't all be praying to the same God.

What other God might be being prayed to I don't know, but the God of the New Testament is the same God of the Old Testament.

As far as world peace goes, the Bible clearly foretells of religions that have adopted as part of their belief an agenda to rid the earth of Christians and Jews.

Their agenda of hate, terror and murder are aimed at anyone who doesn't believe as they do.

Jesus and the God of the New Testament promote loving and praying for your fellow man no matter who he is. Other religions promote their God as a God of their select few, while Jesus and the New Testament testifies of a God who loves and cares for all humanity no matter who they are.

Jesus states in the New Testament that those who believe in him will be hated and persecuted just as he was hated and persecuted.

He goes on to say that the day is coming that whoever kills those who believe in him will think they are doing God's service.

Remember 9/11? That was no accident. Isn't that same thing happening across our globe every day but on a smaller scale?

"Our God is God of many religions?" Not when you look at all the facts, it's an impossibility.

The God I know is a God of love, compassion and grace, forces himself on no one and calls us all to love our neighbor no matter who they are.

have signed a petition signifying their opposition to the project.

Hoffman said the unanimous support of the DDA is appreciated and the financial backing was a nice surprise. He said the group has numerous financial commitments including advertising costs, legal fees and payment for professional review of Wal-Mart's site plan.

Just before noon the day of the DDA meeting, Wal-Mart representatives submitted their final site plan for review by the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission at its April 28 meeting. The proposed store would be 157,000 square feet with 770 parking spaces.

Hoffman said his group's review of the site plan will be ready before that meeting.

According to the official site plans that Wal-Mart submitted to the township, the company wants to build a 155,800 square foot supercenter on 24 acres of property located off US-31, near Marion Center Road and Stover Road.

The plans say the store will face Marion Center Road and have two entrances and exits. The main entrance will be located on Marion Center Road, while another will be on US-31.

For the entrance on US-31, the company said it will need to get a partial vacation of Stover Road and has applied to the Charlevoix County Road Commission for this.

The company also stated it will need a lighted signal at the intersection of US-31 and Marion Center Road, as well as the construction of left and right turning lanes on Marion Center Road and by pass lanes for through traffic.

Site plans also state the company needs sewer service from the city of Charlevoix.

They are proposing a sewer line that will be extended from a manhole west of the intersection of Stover Road and Marion Center Road. Wal-Mart has said it will pay for all costs associated with this extension.

Plans state the supercenter will generate about 4,230 gallons of sanitary waste a day.

Company officials have previously said they want to have the store open in 2005.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

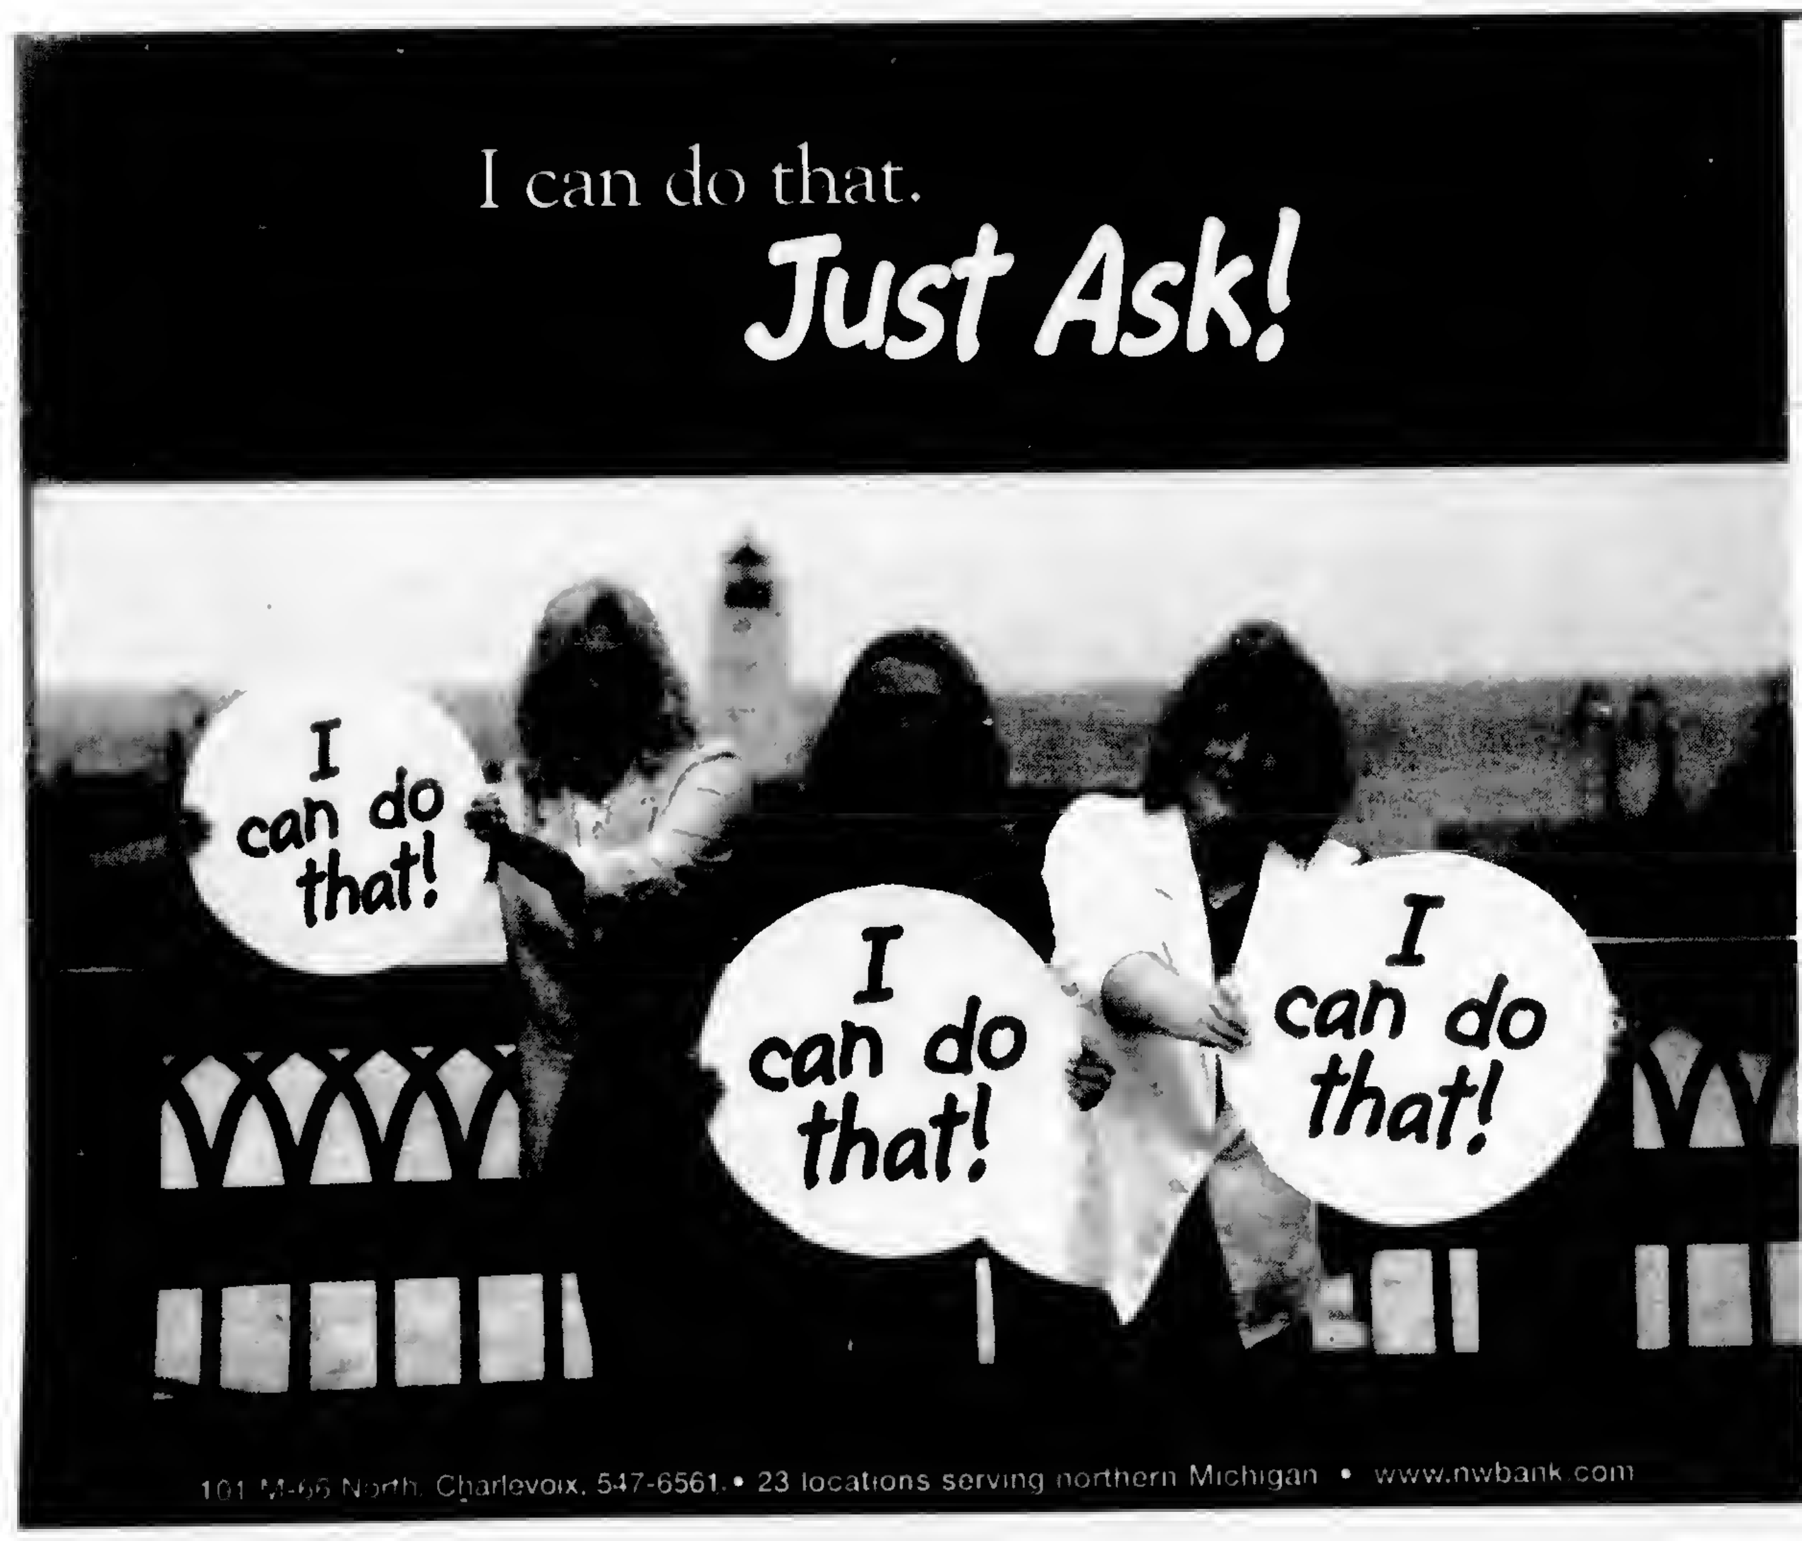
Library event to help residents rediscover what it has

It's National Library Week, April 18 - April 24, a time to "Celebrate @ your Library" and rediscover all that our nation's libraries and librarians have to offer.

"Libraries are the nations' great equalizer," said Valerie Meyerson, library director at the Charlevoix Public Library. "Libraries provide equal opportunity for the entire community to have access to information and technology."

This year, the Charlevoix Public Library joins the American Library Association and libraries across the country in encouraging our users to learn more about the range of new and traditional resources available at their local library.

National Library Week 2004 marks the fourth year of The Campaign for America's Libraries, a multi-year public education campaign sponsored by the American Library Association and libraries across the country to speak loudly and clearly about the value of libraries and librarians in the twenty-first century.



I can do that.

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

Department celebrates National Health Week

Along with health departments all across the country, the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is celebrating National Public Health Week April 5 through April 11. The focus this year is "Eliminating health disparities: Communities moving from statistics to solutions."

According to Linda Yaroch, Deputy Health Officer for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, people who live in rural communities have higher rates of chronic illness and disability and poorer overall health status than urban communities.

"Lack of access to health care, including dental care, is one of the biggest problems we are working to solve at the health department," she said. "Creating a system which provides 100 percent access to health care for the total population is our goal — a goal aligned with the mission of local public health."

Yaroch said, "Not surprisingly, there is a significant relationship between cost barriers and availability of health insurance. The number of people without health insurance is increasing in northern counties, as it is across the state and country."

Yaroch said two health department projects address the cost of prescription medications for people without drug coverage on their health insurance policy.

Members of the "Northern Prescription Discount Plan" can expect to save about 25 percent on prescription drugs at participating pharmacies.

The only requirements are to be a resident of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet or Otsego Counties, the counties served by the health department and have no prescription coverage. Beginning in May, a "Pharmacy Assistance Program" will be available in Charlevoix and Otsego counties for people with chronic illness who meet certain income requirements set by pharmaceutical companies for medications at no charge.

The Pharmacy Assistance Program is being developed by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency in partnership with Charlevoix Area Hospital and Otsego Memorial Hospital.

Another high priority for the health department is assuring access to dental care. Dental Clinics North, a partnership of health departments across northern Michigan, was first organized in 1991 as a result of too few private dentists accepting Medicaid as a source of pay, leaving thousands of children and adults without a source of dental care.

Today, Dental Clinics North in East Jordan, Gaylord, Mancelona, Petoskey and six other locations, serve over 20,000 clients annually.

"Dental health truly affects everything about a person's general health, family and social life, productivity at work, even the way we talk, eat and sleep," Yaroch said.

Beginning April 1, members of the "Northern Dental Plan," sponsored by Dental Clinics North, can receive a free initial visit with a participating dentist, including x-rays and exam, and reduced rates for all subsequent treatment. The Northern Dental Plan is accepted by dentists at 10 Dental Clinics North locations and other participating dental offices across a 26-county region of northern Michigan.

A two-year membership to the Northern Dental Plan is $50 per family member.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to improving health and safety in the communities it serves.

For more information on the Northern Prescription Discount Plan, Pharmacy Assistance Program, Dental Clinics North or Northern Dental Plan, call toll-free (800) 432-4121.

Doans, Stephans honored by church

Two couples from St. Marys of Charlevoix received the appreciation award from Father Tom Neis at the annual Mardi Gras Appreciation Dinner.

Ceil and Ralph Doan, Marianne and Paul Stephan have been active in St. Mary's for many years. Ralph is the music minister at the 5:30 mass and Marianne at the 8 a.m. liturgy. These two parishioners also lead the funeral liturgy, and additional liturgy music required within the parish. Many times they have sung solo adding to the reverence of the liturgy.

Ceil is a Eucharist minister and Paul in the usher minister during the liturgies.

The couples are long time friends and often work together within the parish. Ceil is on the board at the resale store which is sponsored by all the churches in Charlevoix giving the proceeds to many charities within the city and assisting those in need. Marianne and Ceil also volunteer at the store. They also are involved in the funeral lunches. Paul and Ralph assist with the clean up and the dishwasher.

Ralph has been maintenance supervisor and Paul assists with the landscaping.

The couples are active in the Knights of Columbus and the Rosary Alter Society serving as officers. Ralph and Paul also are active in the American Legion.

Where there is a need within the parish or the town, there you will see Ceil, Marianne, Paul or Ralph participating.

Their children are graduates of St. Mary's. Ralph and Ceil have had grandchildren in the school and presently have grandchildren in the Faith Formation program.

Those attending the gathering were pleased that these hard working people were honored for their devotion. A list of all their generosity and kindness would fill pages.

Township to hear Wal-Mart proposal

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A formal site plan meeting for a Wal-Mart Supercenter with the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission is still on for 7 p.m., April 28 at Charlevoix High School on Marion Center Road.

While the company did postpone the meeting twice to get more information to the township, according to Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Chair Nancy Rajewski, Wal-Mart has everything they needed to submit to the township turned in. This means the meeting will still take place as scheduled.

While this is a major project for Charlevoix Township, Rajewski said she did not have an idea of how big a crowd will show up, which is why the meeting will be at the high school. And, because of the size of the plan, Rajewski said the commission will probably not decide on the fate of the project that night.

"We will listen to (This Is) Our Town — the anti-Wal-Mart group — and Wal-Mart," she said.

While she said she has not made up her mind about the proposal yet, Rajewski said she understands that a decision either way could end up in court.

"It goes with the jobs I guess. We have to make a decision one way or the other," she said.

Rajewski said she is not sure if Wal-Mart fulfills all of the criteria for the township to pass the plan yet, but did say she was happy the new plan worked around wetlands on the site and stayed away from Stover Creek.

Annual hunt

Frenzied children of all ages filled East Park April 10 with empty baskets ready to fill with thousands of eggs for the annual hunt sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in recognition of the Easter celebration. The hunt started right at 2 p.m. and was over just seconds later. The Easter bunny also made an appearance. This boy swept up a basket full of eggs as Jacob Kerner-DeYoung of Petoskey looks on with bunny ears decorating his little head.

Lawsuit against Kur dismissed

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The court case against Charlevoix County prosecutor Mary Beth Kur has been dismissed.

Thirteenth Circuit Court Judge Thomas Power dismissed a lawsuit by two employees in Kur's office Monday. Last year, the employees, Victim's Assistance Coordinator Sandra Ward and Office Manager Jacqueline Rozema, claimed Kur violated the Whistleblowers Act and subjected them to retaliation and a hostile work environment after giving depositions in another Whistleblowers lawsuit filed last year by former Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Jarema.

"I believed from the very beginning both of these lawsuits had no merit. I am pleased they were dismissed. It is time to move forward," Kur said.

Power dismissed the case because neither Rozema nor Ward experienced adverse employment actions. This means they were not fired or forced to quit their jobs. Both Rozema and Ward continue to be employees of the prosecutor's office, but are on medical leave.

According to Kur's attorney Dennis Taylor, "None of the things they were alleging rose to that level. There was no violation of the Whistleblowers Protection Act and no hostile work environment."

This action comes after Kur's attorney made a motion to dismisse, saying the case had no merit.

Ward declined to comment at this time. Rozema and the women's attorney, Grant Parsons, could not be reached for comment.

The lawsuit is connected with a lawsuit filed by former chief as-

Commissioners discuss zoning out 'big box'

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The city of Charlevoix's planning commission will address big box development in town during its master plan and zoning ordinance revision process.

At city council's March 1 meeting, third ward council member Shirley Gibson made a motion to recommend that the planning commission consider amending the zoning ordinance to limit the size of commercial buildings to 50,000 square feet in the commercial district. She later amended this motion to limit the size to 30,000 square feet.

Charlevoix's Oleson's Food Store is about 35,000 square feet and Glen's Market is about 44,000 square feet.

When the commission considered this recommendation at its meeting Monday night, April 13, it agreed to look at the issue, in time.

Commissioners John Dobulis and Patty Sitzema both voted to get the ball rolling now to amend the ordinance and set those limitations.

"I would like to put something in as a stop gap in the ordinance. I can't see that a 50,000 square foot retail structure or a 30,000 square foot structure for that matter would fit in the city limits of Charlevoix," Dobulis said.

"We can revisit this with the master plan revision, but I think we should have something in there (the ordinance) now. I agree with Miss Gibson," he said.

But Dobulis and Sitzema weren't supported by the majority of the commission. Chairman Dennis Kusina and commissioners Richard Hodgson, John Hess and Gina Whitney voted the motion down.

Those four commissioners feel the issue isn't urgent and voted to address it during the zoning ordinance and master plan revision process.

"This isn't an emergency situation. We aren't Charlevoix Township we don't have a lot of vacant property. I think we need to get going on the master plan — the sooner the better," Hodgson said.

Hess agreed and said, "We have to defend ourselves or sooner or later someone will come in and take a whack at us."

Hess recommended that the commission take a stand through the revisions by showing in the master plan the type of village Charlevoix wants to be and supporting that in the zoning ordinance.

The first step toward revising the master plan took place Monday night when Kusina officially filed the notice of intent to plan. This notice will be sent to surrounding townships, the county planning commission and utility companies. Public hearings will be scheduled throughout the planning process.

The last time the master plan was revised was in the early 1990s. The plan addresses land use issues and projects into the future. It includes maps, plans, charts and other information pertinent to the physical development of the city.

Hospice to host teleconference on Alzheimer's Disease

Hospice Foundation of America's 11th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference will focus on "Living With Grief: Alzheimer's Disease."

This program, moderated by Cokie Roberts of ABC News, will be broadcast live via-satellite, from 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 28, at Charlevoix Area Hospital's conference room located on the lower level.

An expert panel will discuss what is known medically about the diagnosis, progression and treatment of the disease; explore some innovative programs for patients and caregivers coping with Alzheimer's; focus on the particular grief issues that patients and families face during the course of this illness; and examine the challenges and opportunities that Alzheimer's disease presents to clinicians, caregivers, hospice workers and policy advocates. The panel also will discuss dementias other than Alzheimer's.

Reaching an estimated audience of 125,000 people nationwide, the teleconference will benefit a wide range of professionals as they support their communities and help people cope with grief and loss issues associated with Alzheimer's disease.

Roberts will lead a panel of noted authorities to include: Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, College of New Rochelle; Parag Dalsania, MD, Veterans Affairs Medical Center; Lisa Gwyther, MSW, LCSW, Duke Medical Center; William Haley, PhD, University of South Florida; Richard Ham, MD, West Virginia University Center on Aging; Lin Noyes, RN, PhD, Alzheimer's Family Day Center; and Therese Rando, PhD, Institute for the Study and Treatment of Loss.

The teleconference is produced by Hospice Foundation of America, a non-profit organization working to educate health care professionals and the families they serve on issues relating to illness, loss and grief.

For more information and to register, call Linda Parsons, BSW at 547-8569 .

This program is being offered free of charge. Continuing education credits are available for a fee. Early registration recommended.

We are the makers of this retail monster

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

As a journalist, I take pride in my ethics.

One of these is I have an ethical belief that I should not write an opinion article about any story that I am covering for the news portion of the paper.

But, then came this whole Wal-Mart issue. I have been asked on numerous occasions to write what I think. I have resisted this for some time and tried to remain neutral in all of my stories.

I have tried to get both sides of the story when it comes to Wal-Mart. This is hard considering Wal-Mart is not easy to deal with as a journalist. I have received only one telephone call in return from Wal-Mart's public affairs manager for this area, John Bisio, since I broke the story that Wal-Mart was interested in building a store in Charlevoix back in June 2002. I called sometimes four times a week. Another employee of Wal-Mart did answer my questions on a few occasions, but not often, and I usually had to corner him by catching him in his office when I called. He would not return calls.

Perhaps we really don't seem important enough to them. Perhaps that is the view they take of Charlevoix as well. If the Courier doesn't matter, what about the citizens of this town? Do they matter?

But still I sought out both sides, because it is my job. And I will continue to pester Wal-Mart for a comment, because their side of the story deserves to be in the newspaper and people who support the store should be heard as well.

Even so, because of the high degree of impact this will have on the community, I have decided it is time to speak my mind on the matter. I promise, this will not affect my news stories. My readers deserve both sides to an issue at all times.

So, let's look at both sides to this as I see it:

Cons

• Wal-Mart will not bring jobs to Charlevoix — According to economists, for a town the size of Charlevoix, at best Wal-Mart will have a "zero net gain" on the market. This means no jobs are lost, no jobs are gained. Most likely though, Charlevoix will lose jobs. As for cities outside of Charlevoix (East Jordan), they definitely will lose jobs.

• Wal-Mart will not add to the tax base of Charlevoix Township — Again, the "zero net gain." In fact, many studies I have read say Wal-Mart will actually take away more in services than what it pays in taxes.

• Wal-Mart will hurt the local economy — Many small stores and grocery stores in Charlevoix will suffer with Wal-Mart in town. Many will go out of business — and we are not talking about downtown Charlevoix, that area will probably do just fine. As for towns outside of Charlevoix, it will be devastating. I know, some economists say businesses that sell what Wal-Mart doesn't will do fine, at least until Wal-Mart starts offering the same items they have.

• Donations to community fundraisers will drop — With Wal-Mart taking away retail dollars in the community, current businesses will have to tighten their belts. Do you really think Wal-Mart will give even close to the amount of money that current business owners in Charlevoix give?

• This Wal-Mart plan is too big and is out of character with Charlevoix — The square footage of this project (155,000) is larger than downtown Charlevoix and it dwarfs Kmart. Plus, the store will look like every other supercenter, making Charlevoix look like every other town in the country.

• It will create horrible traffic near the Marion Center Road/US-31 intersection — They want to add turning lanes, a light and several hundred new cars a day to that intersection. I cringe just thinking about it.

Pros

• They sell cheap stuff — It is always nice to buy things for a low price. We sure will need that when local businesses start cutting back on employees or closing down.

As you can see, I am not really in favor of a Wal-Mart as a citizen of Charlevoix. But, can we do anything to stop it at this point? I am not sure. We will have to wait to see at the April 28 Charlevoix Township Planning Commission meeting.

But, how did we get into this mess in the first place? Sadly, I say we caused it ourselves. I believe we created this big box problem with our desire for cheap items.

We need to change our shopping habits. Instead of going for that cheap foreign sweatshirt, try that "Made in America" shirt. Sure, you may pay a little more, but you are paying for better living conditions and American jobs.

It is also a good idea to look for items you need in local businesses first. Local business owners tend to spend their money in the local community, thus creating an economic cycle that benefits many. Wal-Mart does not do this.

But, we like things cheap.

I doubt we will change. I even have trouble grasping it. So the beast continues to grow and destroy town after town.

Wal-Mart is our Frankenstein monster and our village is in his sights.

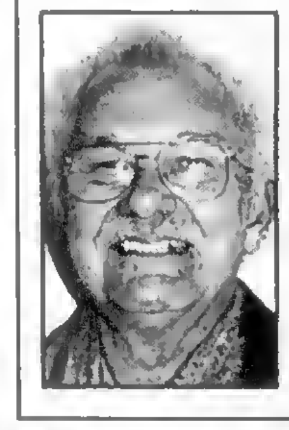
A new political party?



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

The words used to describe complex things often limit or determine how we are able to think about them. This is certainly the case with what has come to be called the political spectrum.

The spectrum is frequently presented as a single line stretching from left to right — from liberal to conservative. That may be uncomplicated, but it is certainly oversimplified and misleading. The alternative image used most often in political description is that of a field, as in a field of candidates. That sounds to me like a spacious grassy place, and it at least provides a two dimensional image on which thoughts about our candidates or their ideas can be distributed. It allows for more complexity than the simple line from conservative to liberal. Unfortunately the spectrum image encourages us to think of the ends of the spectrum as most real and the middle of it the place where those without the courage of their convictions reside.

We hear a great deal about the positions and convictions of the religious right. But surely there must be a religious left. I have never heard of a press release from the religious center, where most of us almost surely fit. The designations Christian right and religious right are not interchangeable. The two groups aren't the same. The Christian left makes hardly a ripple on the political scene in our country, but has some currently in parts of the developing world. The Christian middle, with what is most likely the largest number of members, is almost never mentioned.

A year or so ago one commentator decided that there should be a new name for that growing number of people with no formal religious affiliation: those who profess no belief in the usual supreme beings. "Atheist," he suggested, was too negative. And it defined people in terms of the very idea they denounced. He suggested that rather than atheists these people would be known as "brights." That sounded a bit presumptuous to me, but if we agree to use the word, then there must be left brights and right brights, as well as centrist brights.

Writer discusses party for the centrist voter

KNUTSON

We know there are gay liberals and gay conservatives, well distributed in all of our political parties.

And there must be gay centrists as well, possibly even a majority. We hear often of the liberal or leftist media, and more commonly now about the right-wing or conservative media. Is there a centrist media anywhere? I suspect there is, but the urge to simplify and put every person or idea on the one-dimensional political spectrum makes it difficult to locate who might be a part of the centrist media. It is clear that not all of the above listed rights, lefts and centers can be comfortably fitted on a simple left to right line of the political spectrum.

One parenthetical thought. If we have to choose between supporting only a left wing or supporting only a right wing, give some thought to how hard it will be for any creature with only a right wing or only a left wing to fly anywhere. Just as the Ship of State in an earlier century needed both a port and a starboard, the Airplane of State in our time requires a left wing, a right wing and a center to carry the passengers if it is ever to do anything but spin in small circles.

If we were more commonly presented with the image of a political field, where we could all be represented by our peculiar and individually complex points of view, we might more easily talk to and understand one another. The field image has at least one additional virtue. While it seems not to trouble many people to be placed at one end or the other of the political spectrum, who would wish to be at the very edge of the political field, where they would be far from the action in the center? Certainly no one would want to have their ideas presented as being in one of the far corners of the field. The center of that grassy, open field has room for nearly everyone, and there might be less incentive to push opponents to the far edges when most of the action is near the center. I for one will henceforth abandon the notion of the political spectrum in favor of the more realistic two dimensional political field.

Maybe if we are lucky some of the commentators on the political field will begin to think that there is depth as well. That would make a political box. Maybe that is the best image of all, since we will certainly be confined in something like a political box for at least the next seven months. A box would have room for all the wings and all the centers we can imagine.

Maybe that is what the idea of an inclusive political arena means: A place with room for everyone's ideas — Left, right, center, up, down and sideways.

Letters to the editor

Yes to Wal-Mart

Editor:

Please say, "yes" to Wal-Mart! I am all for shopping Charlevoix and supporting our local merchants when the merchandise is at hand. As a new mother of twins, however, I am finding that so many necessities are not readily available.

Our sons were born four weeks early, and were classified as "Preemies" (which is clothing in the size up to 6 pounds). Try finding clothes, let alone diapers in this town for such little people. I know that not every day small babies are born, but it does happen. My husband and mother had to travel to Petoskey to Wal-Mart to purchase preemie outfits, undergarments and diapers before we were discharged. Kmart didn't have such sizing and other than the Rainbow Shoppe, with their very limited amount of baby clothes, there is no other local store with infant merchandise.

Furthermore, neither Kmart, Oleson's, Rite Aid, Glen's, Don's IGA, nor Central Drug Store had one package of preemie sized diapers on their shelves. What an inconvenience to have to pack the family in the car and drive to Petoskey for such necessary items.

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

There have been numerous letters in your paper regarding Wal-Mart's invasion into our small township. While there are hundreds and thousands of documents on the Internet, in newspapers and private publications regarding Wal-Mart's destruction of small towns and small town businesses. Low wages, non-union, discrimination, unfair labor practices, unfair business practices, lawsuits, sale of foreign products (under the label "Made in America") are but a few articles.

This letter is not about their low-handed business practices, even though it will decimate this town and others.

This letter is directed to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission members and members of surrounding planning commissions. The Township Zoning Ordinance has a list of standards that must be followed during their Development Plan review process. This list of standards also includes nine subjective standards, which must also be met during this review process. These standards deal with traffic impacts, environmental impacts, impacts to the character of the neighborhood and compatibility with similar business.

The Planning Commission must remember that they are part of this community and sit on the commission to serve the residents of this community, not Wal-Mart. Do not be afraid of the big corporate giant. The members of this community will be here to help you stop Wal-Mart and support you in every way possible.

If we do not stop this pervasive invasion into our community and quality of life, it will not just stop with Wal-Mart. What happens the next time and next time. Do you want Charlevoix to be another Garfield Township? Charlevoix the Beautiful will be only a memory. Where will the tourism go to when Charlevoix has lost its uniqueness?

Picture summer grid lock along US-31, all trying to get through and out of Charlevoix's big box shopping strips. How long will it take before tourists detour through East Jordan or Ironton? Comparing public services expended for Kmart cannot be compared to a Wal-Mart superstore with 750 parking spaces. Who do you think will pay for these additional services? Your tax dollars.

I say to all developers of large oversized inappropriate development, "Go someplace else!"

If we need more stores, why do we have so many empty stores in the city of Charlevoix and surrounding townships? If we need more housing development, why are there so many vacant houses for sale in the same area? Preserve what we have. Stay out.

After living in two large cities, I moved home to enjoy the benefits of small town living. Now my quality and choice of life style is being threatened by Wal-Mart and all other big box corporations. If you have never lived in a large city, ask someone who has, and then think very carefully about the information they give to you. They have been there, they have seen the devastation.

Perhaps, more property owners should look to the Land Conservancy to save our way of life.

Charlie Van Pelt
Charlevoix Township

The family of Roderick E. Smith wishes to thank all the neighbors, friends, care workers from Hospice and the staff of Charlevoix Area Hospital for the wonderful assistance provided our father during the illness that led to his demise. Special thanks to Debbie Berry, Home Care Giver, Pat Wakulat and Barbara Dobulis of Hospice, Doctor Freidinger and the shift nurses at Charlevoix Area Hospital for the attention given our father during his time of need. The choir members of St. Mary's parish contributed to his peace of mind and happiness in a very special way and should also enjoy our deepest appreciation. The moment of truth about hometown kindness found expression in all you did and is certainly deserving of our sincerest thanks.

After retiring from Kit Carson Lumber, where she assisted with bookkeeping, she volunteered her time at Charlevoix Rainbow Thrift Shoppe, the Charlevoix Area Hospital and Bay Pines V.A. Hospital in Florida. She was an active member of the Charlevoix Community Church of God.

As a die-hard Chicago Cubs fan, she could be found sitting in her car as it was parked in her driveway in order to follow their games on the A.M. radio. She also enjoyed traveling and participated in 15 Elderhostel trips throughout the United States.

She is survived by her beloved children, two sons, Max Perry (Sandy) Oswald of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Brian (Linda) Goss of Fairbanks, Alaska; and one daughter, Jerallyn (Melvin) Roetemeyer, of Snohomish, Wash.; two granddaughters, Aubrey Goss and Savannah Goss, both of Bowdon, Ga.; two sisters, Thora Budd of Ann Arbor, and Janice Graff of Tarpon Springs, Fla.; and several nieces and nephews. She also leaves behind many good friends. She will be missed by all.

The funeral service was Tuesday April 13, at the Charlevoix Community Church of God. The Reverends Neil and Margie Turner officiated. Following cremation, the family had a private burial at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency Hospice, Charlevoix Community Church of God, Charlevoix Rainbow Thrift Shoppe or Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation TOMA X-ray machine fund.

Shutdown costs millions, but needed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A two-week preventative maintenance shutdown at Cemex that ended early this week cost the company millions of dollars, but new management at the plant say its well worth it.

The local industrial site located off Bells Bay Road is where the gray powder that holds the sand together to make concrete is manufactured around the clock.

Every year Cemex takes a two-week hiatus from its cement making operation to check and repair all its machines and major equipment. This year, production at the plant stopped March 26 and things got rolling again early Monday, a couple days ahead of schedule.

This was the new management team's first taste of a shutdown at the Charlevoix plant.

The new faces include plant manager Bud McCormick, who joined the Cemex staff in July of 2003. McCormick relocated to Charlevoix from the Cemex plant in Clinchfield, Ga. He brought with him former Clinchfield staffers Jimmy Rabon, the new maintenance manager, Luis Lopez, the production manager, and quality control manager Enrique Ruiz. Environmental manager Cortney Schmidt came on board from Cemex's Dixon, Ill. facility.

During the intense shutdown, McCormick said, "We are trying to make everything like new. This is our only shot at it — we want to operate continuously."

He said, "Things need attention and it requires a lot of time."

And time is money. Not only does the company lose upwards of $300,000 a day when it isn't producing its sought after product, it has big labor expenses. The plant's regular staff of 142 employees worked overtime alongside 35 big money contractors and specialists from across the globe.

"We're working around the clock here because we have a production schedule to meet — we have obligations," McCormick said of the tight schedule.

The Charlevoix plant has high demand as compared to the other 12 Cemex plants in the United States. Charlevoix produces 10 percent or 1.5 million tons of Cemex's total U.S. cement production. Cemex's U.S. headquarters is in Houston, Texas.

Charlevoix's piece of the cement pie is so big because of the seam of high quality limestone that exists at the site — 85 percent of what goes into the final cement product is mined in the approximately 250 acre on-site quarry. This quarry has been mined since 1969 and quarry manager Mike Mayse said it has about another 35 years left.

The other 15 percent of cement making product that can't be locally mined is sand and iron ore and it is brought in to finish the mix.

The demand for Cemex's product comes from major cities all around the Great Lakes like Detroit, Milwaukee and Green Bay, Wis., Cleveland and Toledo, Ohio and Chicago, Ill. Deliveries are made via ships like the Challenger, which can hold 11,000 tons of product. It was built in

The local industrial facility Cemex, Inc. recently underwent its annual preventative maintenance shutdown. (Left) Huge rocks taken from the quarry are brought to this primary crusher to be broken down. It can handle 700 tons of rock at a time. This machine was reworked during the recent shutdown. (Above) The massive kiln where clinker is made, was gutted during the shutdown. The kiln has a diameter of 18.5 feet and extends 328 feet in length. It was cool when these people toured but when clinker is being made here temperatures reach 2,700 degrees.

New management getting acquainted with plant

1906, nine years before the Titanic, and is the oldest working vessel in the world. Other shipments are made via the Conquest, a barge pushed by a tugboat that can hold about 8,000 tons of cement.

Cemex's huge obligations to its customers were still met during the recent shutdown. The towering storage silos that sit along the company's Lake Michigan frontage are full of ready to ship cement.

And this week, workers were back at what they do best, making fresh cement with machines and equipment operating like new.

Three major pieces of machinery saw the most work during the shutdown — the primary crusher, the kiln and three Finish mills.

The primary crusher, located on the outskirts of the quarry, was totally reworked. This is where limestone that is blasted out of the quarry is taken to be ground down. It can grind 700 tons of rock at a time.

The hub to the cement making operation, the massive kiln where clinker is made, was gutted. The kiln itself has a diameter of 18.5 feet and extends 328 feet in length. It is one of the largest pieces of moving equipment in Michigan. The interior of the kiln was replaced to the tune of $450,000 in brick. Temperatures in the kiln reach 2,700 degrees and McCormick said it's imperative that the brick be at top performance.

The three Finnish mills, where clinker is ground, were filled with new golf ball sized grinding spheres.

Reflecting on the shutdown while it was still in progress, McCormick said that maintaining an efficient, quality cement operation is a complex task that requires cooperation from everyone during shutdown and processing.

"We are playing in dirt, but it's a sophisticated playground," he said.

City, pilots agree on fees

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A compromise was reached between local pilots and the City of Charlevoix on a hangar rate hike issue at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

In the middle of March city council passed the 2004-2005 city budget with the hangar issue still open for debate.

The budget proposed increases in monthly rates from $125 to $150 for six hangars from $130 to $160 for three of the hangars and from $135 to $170 for a single hangar. This would bring in an additional $2,820 a year.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the increases reflect the market rate as compared with similar airports including Cadillac, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Grosse Isle and Harbor Springs.

Wiesner told council that over the years the city has sunk hundreds of thousands of dollars into the airport and questioned whether taxpayers should subsidize the operation when hangars are being rented at less than their market value.

But Don Seelye, a city resident and local pilot, argued that owners of private aircraft come to Charlevoix for business and pleasure and spend money which helps boost the local economy. He questioned why these people who bring money to town year-round are being hit with a rate hike.

"The Charlevoix airport is a 4,500 foot highway into town that connects to the world," Seelye told council. "We should not expect the airport to directly pay for itself. It more than pays for itself indirectly."

He thinks prices should be kept low to entice more people to come to town bringing their spending power with them.

Aside from that, Seelye said the city is cashing in on hangars it didn't pay for in the first place. The hangars were built and paid for by private pilots in the 1970s. At that time they contracted with the city agreeing to relinquish ownership in the 1990s.

"Other airports need to recover their investment so their rates need to be higher," Seelye said.

Seelye was one of the pilots involved with that project. He said unfortunately it was never written into the contract what he and others would have to pay once they turned over ownership.

City council ultimately decided to compromise on the rate debate agreeing to increase the lease fee by $10 for all the hangars for a three year period. Because of the reduction the city will bring in $1,620 less than was anticipated in the budget.

Seelye said he would have preferred to see no increase, but the decision was acceptable.

Eveline residents get intervention rights

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A group of Eveline Township residents have been given the chance to fight a dense residential development planned for their neighborhood.

On April 8, 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas granted an intervention request made by a group of 15 Eveline Township residents. All the residents live within 300 feet of property owned by Charlevoix residents Dawson and Mark Way that has been targeted for a mobile home park development.

Judge Pajtas' decision makes the resident group a party in a case filed against the township by the Ways.

Zoning is at the crux of the lawsuit. The land, which includes two pieces of property spanning over 150 acres, located adjacent to one another, with frontage on M-66 and Brock and Ferry roads, is currently zoned farm and forest.

The Ways request to have the property rezoned to R-4, to make way for their 200 manufactured home community, was denied by the township board in March of 2003.

The board based its decision on action taken by the township and county planning commissions which both recommended against the rezone as it could bring on higher density development than is supported by the township's master plan. If fully developed, the Way property in the R-4 district could accommodate a 1,200 unit manufactured home community.

The Ways claim when the board voted down their request they were acting on an exclusionary zoning ordinance which violates the Township Rural Zoning Act, the Mobile Home Commission Act and their constitutional rights. In lieu of this claim, they filed a lawsuit against the township in September of 2003.

Then, in February of this year, talk of a settlement in this case surfaced.

Township supervisor Dan Skreczkoski explained that up until January the township's plan was to take this case to trial and fight for its decision to deny the rezoning. But then, just a couple months ago, the board found old master plan paperwork that could prove the ordinance is exclusionary. The papers show specific plats in the Ironton and Advance areas where R-4 development is allowed. However, none of the plats are large enough to meet the 10-acre minimum requirement for the R-4 district as outlined in the township's zoning ordinance.

He explained that if the township were to lose the case that would end any local control of the project and control would revert to the Michigan Mobile Home Commission whose regulations for this type of development are less stringent.

Settlement reached, but residents must agree too

WAYS

Just hours before the intervention hearing on April 8, the Ways and the township reached an agreement.

Skreczkoski said the timing of the settlement agreement and the intervention hearing was coincidental. He said the case was set for a final pre-trial settlement conference on April 12 when trial dates would be scheduled and this was the last opportunity for the two sides to meet.

Because Judge Pajtas approved the intervention, this agreement is now subject to approval by the resident group. The resident group did not have access to the details of the settlement agreement before the intervention and its members would not comment as to whether they would accept it.

However, in past interviews, they have said they don't want any mobile home development at that site and the settlement the township agreed to does develop some of the property as an R-4 district.

The 26-page settlement agreement would permit separate types of development on the 77 acres that make up the north half of the property between Shaw and Roberts roads and the 78 acre south half from Roberts Road west to Ferry Road.

On the south parcel the settlement agreement would allow for R-4 type of development with 275 units permitted to be built over a 16-year period.

On the north parcel, which is divided by a ravine, the agreement was for the 20 acres west of the ravine fronting on Brock Road to be allowed a maximum of 30 stick built homes adhering to the township's R-2 zoning requirements. Then, on the east side of the north parcel, which includes about 60 acres, they agreed to a maximum of 120 units developed in an R-2 single family residential or R-3, apartment or condominium, approach.

Stephen Winter, attorney for the Ways, told Judge Pajtas before he made his ruling that he isn't holding his breath that this or any settlement will be reached.

"I don't believe there is a snowball's chance in July this case would settle if they are allowed to intervene," he said.

But the argument that this case will likely go to trial didn't sway Judge Pajtas to rule against the intervention.

He granted them "permissive intervention" which he explained can be allowed when someone may be inadequately represented by one of the existing parties it the suit.

In this case, the group claims to be inadequately represented by the township.

"To disallow the intervention would in effect close the issue," Pajtas said. "They don't have much other relief available beyond a separate cause of action."

Winter said the judge's decision to grant the intervention takes this case back to square one, they will have to reopen discovery and look at a new set of issues.

While this is a setback for Winter and his client, the Ways, it's the first step forward for the residents who claim to want to preserve the environment and rural character of the area they live in.

John Cisne, an intervening resident, said, "It's a step in the right direction for us. We are being allowed to have input in the way our property rights and the surrounding character of our property is affected."

He added, "I would have never bought my property had I known a mobile home park would be right next-door."

Members of the intervention group have said they will likely push for the case to go to trial.

If the case goes to trial, the Ways will ask Judge Pajtas to decree the township's zoning ordinance invalid and illegal and to allow them to develop their property as a manufactured home community. Winter said they also plan to file a damages claim against the resident group.

If the Ways lose, the township's decision stands and Pajtas has been asked to award the township its costs and attorney fees.

Skreczkoski said he is worried the township may lose the case and all local control of the project.

"If that happens, all the setbacks and controls we tried to put in (the settlement agreement) to preserve the township, is all out the window," he said.

Dawson Way is on vacation and Mark Way did not return calls regarding this issue by press time.

School board to give land to skate park

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The word around town is "let the kids skate."

Since the fall of 2003 a group of adrenaline hungry teens have been pushing a drive to locate a skate park in Charlevoix for use by both skateboarders and in-line skaters.

Their efforts have earned the attention of not only Charlevoix's City Council, but most recently caught the eye of the school board.

At its meeting Monday night, April 12, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education showed its support for the efforts of area students approving in concept a temporary site adjacent to the Charlevoix Middle School for a skate park. The final approval is pending ironing out of some issues, the greatest of which is who will cover insurance.

According to Shelly Witthoeft, a parent coordinator for the group, the city has agreed to cover the park under its insurance policy. She added that the site will also be supervised and helmets will be mandatory.

If the issues are worked out and the board gives its final approval at a special meeting next week, this school site will serve as a temporary home for the park while the city of Charlevoix looks into possible land for it to make its permanent home. Group members have said they need about a one-acre site.

Throughout this campaign for a skate park the students and parent coordinators have stressed the park's ability to provide a safe place for kids to pursue their passion. Because skateboarding is not allowed on city streets or sidewalks the kids often search out unauthorized, unsafe places to ride.

The proposed park will be called the Charlevoix Community Skate Park, it will be a financially self-sustained operation that includes a staffed park offering rentals and other amenities. The project will cost about $200,000 and they are hoping to start construction as early as this summer.

Groups and community members have stepped forward in support of the skate park concept.

In mid-March Charlevoix's City Council voted to include the skate park in the Mount McSauba feasibility study and to look at other locations in the city where this type of facility could fit.

Other supporters of the skate park effort include Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce president Jacqueline Merta, Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson, Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater and area business owners and churches.

With this support behind them the group has been busy with its capital campaign aimed at raising about $200,000. To kick off the campaign, they hosted a Sk8-a-thon March 22 and raised $6,000. A second Sk8-a-thon is scheduled for early June.

The group is also one of eight being considered for a grant from American Eagle Outfitters which could bring in $22,000. They will hear the decision on that application this month.

For information on the Charlevoix group's drive to bring a skate park to town or to donate, visit www.planner.eska18.org or call Vickie Daman at 547-8063.

No to Wal-Mart

Editor:

The upcoming decision on the proposed Charlevoix Wal-Mart is the most important one in the history of our entire area including not only the township of Charlevoix, but the city of Charlevoix, the other surrounding townships and East Jordan and Boyne City as well

This decision will become the personal legacy of the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission and the township supervisors. They have the legal ability to say "no." Please urge them to do so. We all need a sense of community that is bigger than the dimensions of a shopping cart. If you like shopping at Wal-Mart, please do so at the Petoskey store.

For more information as to the impact of the proposed Wal-Mart on the Community of Charlevoix come at 7:00 p.m on April 15 to the Charlevoix High School auditorium to hear Al Norman, nationally known author and small town advocate.

Thank you

Editor:

The Charlevoix Community Skatepark Board and Student Committee would like to express our appreciation to the members of the Charlevoix City Council. On Monday, March 15 we enthusiastically presented our plans for a community-built, state-of-the-art, indoor, year-round, supervised recreation facility for skateboarders, inline skaters and BMXers. Imagine our excitement when council voted unanimously to support our efforts! Thank you!

We also want to thank the many families and businesses who have caught our vision, pledging time, resources and money. We kicked off our capital campaign with a Sk8-A-Thon on March 22 with over 40 students participating and raising $6,000! We will be having a Sk8-A-Thon II..."20/20 Vision: See The Park" on Saturday, June 5 at the Charlevoix Assembly of God, where there will be BMX and skateboard clinics, live music, vendors and prizes, along with students skating for funds.

While we recognize not everyone participates in "extreme sports," the national trend for these types of sports continues to grow. The International Association of Skateboard Companies reports there are 16 million skateboarders in the U.S. and 50 million world-wide. Skateboard and skateboard related products generate 1.4 billion dollars in annual retail sales. There are currently about 800 public and private skateparks in the U.S., with more being planned. In addition, according to the National Consumer Product Safety Commission, skateboarders are less likely to require emergency medical care than participants of more traditional sports like baseball, basketball, football, soccer and volleyball. These facts help us see why skateboarding has grown in popularity since it's inception in 1950, when two California surfers nailed their roller skates to a two-by-four and discovered they could surf the sidewalk!

We look forward to working co-operatively with city council, local businesses and families in the future as we Lisa Doublestein dubbed: "Build an extreme skatepark and they will come!"

Vickie Daman,
President

Thank you

During this National Volunteer Week, Grandvue Medical Care Facility wishes to honor and extend a sincere thank you to our great team of volunteers. The many generous and caring efforts these individuals and community groups have contributed over the past year have helped to ensure a high quality of life for our residents and have helped us create a real family environment for everyone who lives and works at Grandvue.

We feel very fortunate to have the continued support of so many fine people living in our area. We thank them for their involvement.

We need a place to hang out

Editor:

Do you want your children to go to a fun and safe place after school? I think the people of Charlevoix should build a place for students to hang out. The bus could drop the children off after school.

One reason they should build a hang out is it would be a lot safer than walking around town. First of all, the hang out would have adult supervision. Second, only people that were a certain age would be allowed in.

Another reason, is that children would get in a lot less trouble. First, they would be less likely to do drugs, because they would be busy. They would not steal as much, like steal bad things. They would not get in as much trouble at home, by doing something bad when their parents weren't there.

The last reason, is it would be very fun for preteens. They would have something to do, since there's not much to do in Charlevoix. Plus, they could hang out with their friends after school. Also, they would not have to go home and be by themselves.

I really hope that we can get some kind of a hang out for children. It would be a lot safer for your children. I hope you take my idea into action.

Man steals car, then returns it

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 21-year-old Hayes Township man following an investigation into a stolen auto report.

Douglas Howard-Charles Reick Jr. was arrested and charged with unlawful use of an auto and operating while intoxicated, a warrant has been authorized by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office. Reick has appeared in front of a 90th District Court Magistrate and has posted a $500 cash bond.

Deputies began investigating the theft of a 1997 Lincoln Town Car from a residence on Klooster Road in Marion Township at 9:30 a.m. on April 10. A detective arrested Reick at approximately 2:15 p.m. the same day when he drove the vehicle back to the victim's residence.

Reick told investigators that he had been partying at a nearby residence and became lost in the woods while they were mud bogging and hill climbing.

He admitted taking the vehicle at about dawn and driving it to his residence near Bay Shore. The vehicle suffered an estimated $4,000 in damages during the incident.

Judge rules against Ward, Rozema

sistant prosecutor John Jarema. At the county insurance provider's insistence, Jarema's lawsuit was settled in late March with a $50,000 award in his favor. Jarema is currently running against Kur for the county prosecutor's position.

In early 2003, Ward and Rozema filed a complaint with the Charlevoix County Commission's Personnel Committee claiming Kur had created a hostile work environment in the prosecuting attorney's office. At a meeting with the committee, the two women said Kur harassed them because they gave depositions in the Jarema case.

Kur denied this. The county commissioners on the committee found that the conditions in the prosecutor's office were bad, but ruled the women were not being harassed because they were not being discriminated against. Plus, because Kur is an elected official, the committee said legally they have no say in what happens in her office.

The committee suggested the women find positions elsewhere in the county building. The committee also said the women could appeal this decision to the full board. They did not.

Instead, Ward and Rozema filed a lawsuit against the county and Kur. They retained Traverse City lawyer Parsons to represent them.

According to paperwork filed by Parsons, Ward and Rozema were subjected to "retaliatory action at work, including harassment, assignment manipulation, verbal comments, gestures, threatening conversations and confrontation" due to depositions they gave in the Jarema case.

Furthermore, the paperwork states the women filed a "grievance" against Kur with the Charlevoix County Commission. They say the commission found the workplace conditions "intolerable" but the commission refused to fix this problem.

Both women wanted a judgment in their favor and "compensatory economic and noneconomic damages in an amount that is fair and just exceeding $25,000, in addition to costs, attorney fees and any other relief...."

Wal-Mart plans to be reviewed April 28

WAL-MART

"Those things I think are very, very positive," she said.

She added, "I still want to hear what the opposition has to say. You can't make a decision without hearing all the information."

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, also said his organization is getting ready for the April 28 meeting.

"We have been reviewing the plans and meeting with our consultants," he said. "We are interested in assuring the township planning commission looks at all the facts and circumstances, follows the law and makes a proper decision. If we feel they did not do that, then we will be willing to file a lawsuit to make sure that is done."

Hoffman said he was surprised the new plan showed only two entrances to the site — a main entrance on Marion Center Road and another on US-31. This would make more problems for traffic on Marion Center Road, he said.

To further discuss the Wal-Mart issue in Charlevoix, This Is Our Town is hosting a public forum at 7 p.m., Thursday, April 15, at Charlevoix High School. Noted Wal-Mart author and advocate for small towns, Al Norman, will give a presentation.

Wal-Mart spokesperson for the Great Lakes area, John Bisio, did not return several telephone calls seeking comment.

In addition to This Is Our Town, several other organizations have come out against the Wal-Mart plan, including: the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and the environmental group WATCH.

According to the official site plans that Wal-Mart submitted to the township, the company wants to build a 155,800 square foot supercenter on 24 acres of property located off US-31, near Marion Center Road and Stover Road.

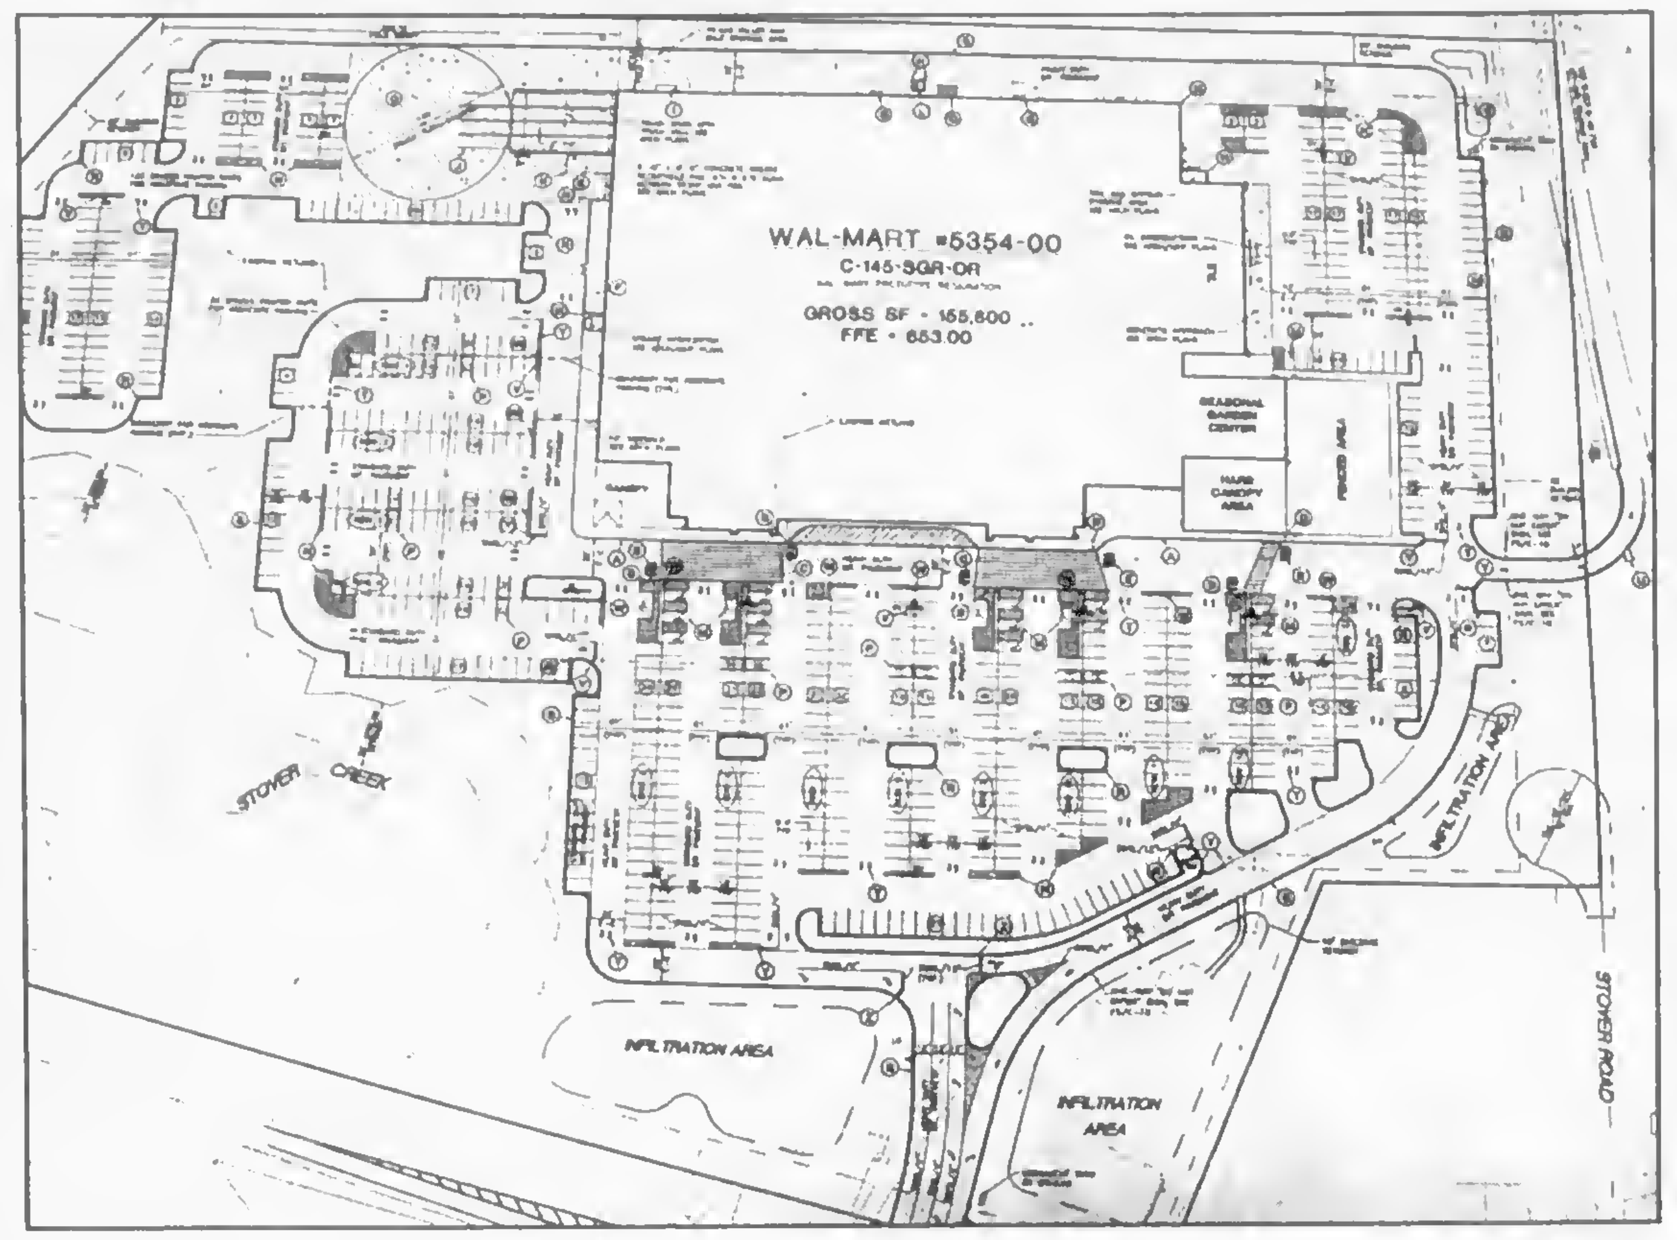
The plans say the store will face Marion Center Road.

For the entrance on US-31, the company said it will need to get a partial vacation of Stover Road and has applied to the Charlevoix County Road Commission for this. The company also stated it will need a lighted signal at the intersection of US-31 and Marion Center Road, as well as the construction of left and right turning lanes on Marion Center Road and by pass lanes.

Site plans also state the company needs sewer service from the city of Charlevoix. They are proposing a sewer line that will be extended from a manhole west of the intersection of Stover Road and Marion Center Road. Wal-Mart has said it will pay for all costs associated with this extension.

Plans state the supercenter will generate about 4,230 gallons of sanitary waste a day.

Company officials have previously said they want to have the store open in 2005.



File photo

These plans for a Wal-Mart Supercenter will be presented to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on April 28 at the Charlevoix High School. The plans show a 155,800 square foot store with two entrances and exits on Marion Center Road and US-31. The main entrance is on Marion Center Road.

Dupuis named finalist for prestigious award

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix High School senior Mike Dupuis recently found out he's got the athletic ability and brain power to compete with the brightest and best student-athletes across the state.

Dupuis, a standout soccer player who carries a 3.98 grade point average, was named among a group of 120 Michigan students that were finalists for the sought after 2003-2004 Michigan High School Athletic Association's $1,000 Scholar-Athlete Award.

Only 26 of these scholarships are given away each year and the applicant pool is huge. This year 2,525 applicants from 428 schools tried for the honor.

Dupuis, 18, heard about the scholarship opportunity through high school athletic director Jim Kanine, did some research on the Internet and got to work on the challenging application. Four other Charlevoix High School seniors tried to make the cut too, but Dupuis was the only one to get to the finals.

His application included glowing recommendations from his soccer coaches, Josh Block and Marvin Witthoeft, and a 500 word essay on the importance of sportsmanship.

"This process made me reflect on how I and others conducted ourselves and showed me how important sportsmanship is in all sports and how you recognize good sports over poor sports. They stand out," he said.

The scholarship winners were announced at the Class C boys basketball state finals March 27 when Charlevoix faced Saginaw Buena Vista at the Breslin Center in East Lansing.

Dupuis was there to cheer the Rayders on and to watch at halftime as about 25 percent of the finalists made their way to center court to be recognized with the scholarship.

Even though his name wasn't called and he didn't win, he was a good sport and clapped for those that did.

"I was excited to make it as far as I did, but I obviously wish I would have won," he said.

Dupuis is the son of Mark and Molly Dupuis of Charlevoix. He plans to attend the University of Notre Dame in Notre Dame, Ind., this fall where he plans to play soccer and possibly pursue a degree in business administration or pre-law.

SCRAPBOOK

Tales from the 1930s and 1940s in Charlevoix

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

When I was a child, I lived at 207 West Hurlbut Street (now, 209) on top of the south hill.

This period encompassed the years from my birth, in 1933, until I married at age 18. What a great many characters we had around the neighborhood at that time. It was the 1930s and 1940s, and a wonderful time to be a kid.

I always felt I had a great childhood, living where we did. Just over the hill and across Antrim street was the jail, where my Grandpa and Grandma Ikens lived during the 22 years he was Charlevoix County Sheriff. I was down there every day, and it was an exciting time to be able to watch the activities at the jail, with all sorts of people being incarcerated. Next door was the courthouse, and I knew all the fellows who worked there - Pete Bulow, County Clerk; Charlie Marshall, the fire chief; Mike Bice, Prosecuting Attorney and others. They dropped in every day to have coffee in Grandma's kitchen..

There was always something interesting going on. It was a great time for a little girl.

On the corner of Grant and Mason streets in Charlevoix, where the middle and high school was located, were several houses which were moved to other lots when the school was built in 1927. Two of them were relocated to 306 Mason, where Lola Lewis and her children, Russell, Maxine, Lorna, Beth and Jim lived. Lorna was my best friend, and so I would go over the hill and down to her house in my teen years. The house next door, also relocated at that time, to 308 Mason, and was owned by Fenton "Pete" Bulow, wife and friends. One more of these houses was hauled up Dodge's (Grand Street) Hill, and placed on a lot on the south corner of Grant and Hurlbut. Harold "Ike" Byers lived there for years.

The late Mel Plumm told Dale about this move up the hill, which was quite a feat at the time. Dale lived near the end of Mason Street, and that is how I met him when I was 13. Many of the kids in the Mason-Clinton street blocks played "Stone Roller" every night. These streets were my neighborhood.

Bernice Wexstaff said some of the old-timers who lived here in the 1900s, and some of them were the most unusual personalities to be found anywhere. There was an old man by the name of Bisbee who lived in a hole on Mason Street. This was the same lot which later was occupied by Mrs. Lewis. Mr. Bisbee built a boat in the packing-box breezeway between his packing-box shanty and the equally jerry-built barn where he kept his horse. This boat was plastered both inside and out with ordinary household plaster. Everybody knew about it, but wouldn't ruin the old man's hopes, and congratulated him, with tongue in cheek. The local firemen even offered to help him launch it as part of a Fourth of July celebration. The fire department transported the boat to Round Lake and cut the ropes. The boat floated about one minute until the plaster dissolved, whereupon it plunged ignominiously to the bottom, where it still lies as far as known.

There was a man called Pete-the-sewer-digger, whose last name was Benson. Pete installed the first flush commode in the building where Harold Cartier's father, Fred Cartier, had a tailor shop. This was located where the Harbor Barber and Howard's Optical Shop are today. Pete was the only man at that early date who could do it, because he was the only man in Charlevoix who knew where the sewer lines or cess pools were located. Bernice also told of Milly Swatish and his simple son, Harry Smart. Milly died one day, and poor Harry was left to fend for himself. However, everybody knew of his incapacity and he was always treated with kindness, although sometimes people did amuse themselves with his childish lack of logic.

One of the outstanding personalities in the past was Martha Ayers. She lived down the street from me at the corner of State and Hurlbut in a huge three story house, with a large cupola on top, making it four stories. This is where volunteers in town used to look for enemy planes during World War II. Standing there on the hill, it was the highest spot in downtown. I don't remember Martha, but the tales that were told about her were most interesting. Joseph R. Guild lived in the house when I was a little girl, and one day he invited me in to see a trunk full of Martha's clothes. They had been left there, but I understand that the rest of her belongings were auctioned off when she lost the house in 1925, due to financial troubles. Also, there was a locked room in the house which Mr. Guild wouldn't let me see. This added to the sinister reputation that the house was "haunted." Mr. Harold Cartier recalled that in his memory Martha resembled the Wicked Witch of the West in the Wizard of Oz. King Saunders recalled that she wore funny hats. Others thought she was tall and prim. No one seemed to know if she was a Miss or Missus, but she was reputed to be very wealthy and had a Milquetoast type of secretary named Mr. Barber, who followed her around like a faithful cocker spaniel. Mr. Barber lived in the house with Martha and the townspeople deduced that the couple was not married. There was much gossip until finally some of the good housewives called at her home protesting to the couple that they were "living in sin." With much dignity, Martha took them to the dining room where she pointed dramatically to a cot in each corner of the room: "Barber sleeps here," she said succinctly! "I sleep over there!" She pointed to the other cot. "Anyway it's none of your damned business!"

Martha probably never intended to settle in Charlevoix. She came north on a sailing vessel and got off at Charlevoix to nurse a severe attack of sea sickness. She recovered her health and never left. Martha had a hobby of buying old houses, and checks arrived every month from some unknown source which enabled her to do this. She didn't maintain the houses and it wasn't long until they were useless as homes, and they stood empty with peeling paint. Two of her old houses were located on Mason Street and were renewed and used as the Baptist parsonage, at 208 Mason, and 210 Mason where a former Courier editor, Harold Totten, lived for years. The Baptist parsonage was eventually torn down to make room for the present county court house parking lot. Martha also owned a three story business building on Main Street which was torn down after her death. This was located near Neff's store, and was razed to make room for East Park.

When Martha first came to Charlevoix, her house on Hurlbut and State was owned by Mr. John Upright. She was reportedly in love with him, but he didn't reciprocate and sold her his home and left town. The house eventually detonated, as most of Martha's belongings did, and it acquired the reputation of being "haunted," because it was such an old dilapidated building.

I remember many times going by the dark, old house on my way down the hill, and at night, most of the kids in the neighborhood ran as fast as they could to get by it. Eventually the old house was torn down, and replaced with two modern homes.

One little item that I heard, was that Bill Byers, the town auctioneer, would always wait to begin his auction sales until Martha arrived. She was a prolific buyer.

Charlevoix has always been a most interesting town to live in, with something always going on. I remember fellow graduates coming home and asking me "What do you do in this little town, anyway? It must be very dull." I replied that there is very little dull time here. We always have controversy and each one comes and goes as we wait for the next one.

Appletree coming down

Disassembling of the rock face of the Appletree off Bridge Street started this week. Charlevoix's Home Works, which is owned by Sally Koerber, is doing the work for Stephen and Ann Marie Roby. The Robys plan to use the materials to recreate a smaller version of the building on their property at 101 Auld Street. Construction of the new building started in January. Home Works has until Thursday to finish recovering materials from the historic Bridge Street site that used to be the real estate office of famed builder Earl Young. Then, a three story retail and residential structure will be built in its place. Here, John Cannon Jr. works on removing some of the stone face.

Wal-Mart postponed

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

> "This is the first time we have done anything this big."
> Nancy Rajewski, Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Chair

The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission meeting on a proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter planned for next week has been postponed once again for at least 30 days.

According to Charlevoix Township attorney Mike Corcoran, Wal-Mart did not have all of the items in, that Planning Chair Nancy Rajewski needed to certify it. Once it is certified, a formal site plan review is scheduled to take place in 30 days.

As stated in the township zoning code, a proposal must have all of the paperwork asked for by ordinance before it is certified complete. Only then can a meeting on the matter be scheduled.

Rajewski said she thought the ordinance meant that once Wal-Mart had its "original" documents in, she could certify it and a meeting could be scheduled, which is how the township decided to pick April 28. But, she has since learned she is wrong.

Rajewski said she is making sure everything is going according to law with this plan.

"This is the first time we have done anything this big. And we are working under the new ordinance," she said.

Corcoran said the plan that was submitted by Wal-Mart will need a few more amendments added to it before it can be certified by Rajewski. He expects Wal-Mart to have those amendments in within seven days and

Gibson gets paid back for attorney

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

A decision by Charlevoix's City Council was challenged by one of its own.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson made a request at council's April 19 meeting to have attorney fees she incurred during a zoning debate with city staff reimbursed.

"It has nothing to do with the RV situation now. The point is I had to hire an attorney to get a straight answer, just like the planning commission felt they had to do," Gibson said.

The incident occurred in the Spring of 2002 when Gibson asked city zoning administrator Dianne Manore to interpret the city's zoning ordinance with regard to her neighbor parking a boat on their front lawn.

"You could barely see the house," Gibson said of the obstruction.

Manore found the parking of recreational vehicles on the front lawn of a residence is a violation

Kimble picked to help make cool cities

Charlevoix High School senior Danielle Kimble (left) and high school government teacher AnnMarie Conway (right) were at Grand Valley State University last week for a Cool Cities forum. They met and heard from Gov. Jennifer Granholm at the meeting.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix High School senior Danielle Kimble recently worked with Gov. Jennifer Granholm on a project aimed at making Michigan hip.

Kimble was picked by Granholm's staff to participate in a town hall forum to promote the governor's cool cities initiative.

The drive to create cool is a reaction to a mass exodus of more than 33,000 young adults ages 25-34 that left metro Detroit between 2000 and 2002. According to census reports it was the biggest loss of that age group in the country.

This reality sparked concerns about a possible negative long-term economic impact and forced Granholm to look at ways to stop the trend. At the core of her work is the "cool cities" initiative that has gained momentum over the last year. Through this project Granholm has encouraged cities to develop residential and entertainment projects to keep Michigan's young talent in the state.

In June, Granholm will announce 12 Michigan cities that will get special grants to help revitalize neighborhoods and downtown areas in the hope that a cool hot spot will be created.

Last week Granholm hosted forums across the state to get more input into the cool mindset.

To gather her brain bank of about 200 participants Granholm posted an on-line survey and accepted a pool of respondents. Charlevoix High School government teacher AnnMarie Conway had her senior students fill it out and Kimble was the only one to receive an e-mail inviting her to attend a forum.

"The fact that Danielle got to go was neat," Conway said.

Kimble, a 17-year-old artist who is looking at moving to Detroit after graduation to attend the Center for Creative Studies, accepted the invite for the April 14 gathering at Grand Valley State University just outside

Correction

In a story on page 14 of the April 14 edition of the Charlevoix Courier due to a reporting error it was incorrectly stated that the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education gave conditional approval for use of property by the skate park group. They requested a detailed proposal that will be reviewed by the board's building and grounds committee.

OPINIONS

The dye dumper should come forward

EDITORIAL

The people of Charlevoix should be embarrassed and outraged.

They should be embarrassed because of the veil of secrecy that has been set over this green dye that was dumped in the Pine River Channel during the St. Patrick's Day pub crawl, hosted by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. And they should be outraged that something was poured into this beloved watersource, even though organizers of the pub crawl were told more than once that they could not do it.

Yes, that is correct — more than once. Back when the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce was planning this first annual St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl — which is still a good idea — organizers wanted to dump a green dye into the Pine River Channel, just like they do in Chicago for their St. Patrick's Day festivities.

But, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality said no. However the organizers did not want to take this and appealed to State Senator Jason Allen, who also called the MDEQ. And the MDEQ told him no. Then they tried to get the United States Coast Guard to approve it, but when the Coast Guard called the MDEQ, they were also told no. So, you think that the organizers would have figured out this means they could not dye the river? Well, for some reason, someone went and dyed it anyway on St. Patrick's Day. Of course, the chamber denies any knowledge.

To make matters worse, while the dye was dumped in broad daylight near the Weathervane Restaurant, which was packed with pub crawlers — including the organizers of the pub crawl — according to the MDEQ, no one is really being cooperative with what they saw. This makes Charlevoix look like we are a bunch of people who do not like to follow rules. Plus, it makes us look like we have something to hide. We should be embarrassed that this happened and embarrassed that the person that did this has not fessed up.

The person that did this needs to come forward to save Charlevoix's image. Plus, since the pub crawl was the chamber's responsibility, this organization should be apologizing for it and helping to find the perpetrators.

Help library plan

Editor:

Recently, I read an article written by George Weeks, a syndicated columnist for the Detroit News, called "Battling the Spread of School Sprawl," in which he says Michigan is building ever-bigger schools ever farther out-of-town at a faster rate than other states.

Edge-ucation: The compulsion to build schools in the middle of nowhere is sapping the vitality of existing neighborhoods and exacerbating urban sprawl.

In a report to the Michigan Land Use Institute, Governor Jennifer Granholm says, "The kind of Michigan our grandchildren will know is based on how and where we decide to educate our children today. Building schools in our existing towns and neighborhoods will help feed our families. Harbor Springs is to be praised for unifying the community behind its decision to renovate their 88-year-old high school. Charlevoix is denounced for its decision to erect a new building far from town, arrived at by only a handfull of school leaders, just barely approved by the voters and thus encouraging urban sprawl. A development that could soon threaten downtown stores."

The report says that annual expenditures in the nation for school construction has doubled since 1992. In Michigan they tripled - in large part because schools relocate, not renovate.

At the present time, the city is confronted with a new problem; namely, shall we assist in helping the library board acquire the old junior high school property and building, so that our public library can be conveniently located in the center of the city. Hopefully, Charlevoix will not repeat the mistake they made when they tore down Andrew Carnegie Library which stood on State Street across from the Methodist Church!

Wal-Mart questions

Editor:

As a summer resident and subscriber to the Courier, I've been reading with interest the articles debating the pros and cons of a Wal-Mart Super Center in Charlevoix. There are good points of view for each position.

A couple of issues I don't recall seeing addressed are:

1) How much business from price sensitive customers is now leaving Charlevoix and going to stores such as Wal-Mart in Petoskey or Meijers in Traverse City. Also how much of that business can be expected to return to Charlevoix if there is a Wal-Mart? It seems to me that the business now leaving Charlevoix for tires, batteries, clothing, food and others could be substantial.

2) If the decision is made to not allow a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix, where will they build the next one near Charlevoix, sort of bracketing Charlevoix. It is hard to believe that this won't happen. What impact on business in Charlevoix will this have? It doesn't seem to me that the no vote is the end of the issue.

Bob Chapman
Fair Oaks Ranch, TX

(Editor's note: The March 24 edition of the Charlevoix Courier may help you. In it economists say the negative economic impact from a Wal-Mart's will be mainly on the towns outside of the one with the Wal-Mart — such as East Jordan. Furthermore — as stated in the article — this proposed Wal-Mart is expected to make about $40 million a year in sales. According to some economists, a majority of that will come from existing dollars spent in the community rather than the dollars spent outside of the community. However, others disagree.)

Don't let this tear apart community

Editor:

For some time now the community has been embroiled in ongoing discussion, debate, and disagreement over the possible placement of a Wal-Mart supercenter in Charlevoix.

In the midst of this there has been a great deal of talk about change, both good and bad. It seems as though there are some who would like to freeze Charlevoix the way it as, like a fly in amber. It is either a matter of personal preference ("I like it just this way") or an evaluation of what will happen in the future ("People won't come if we change").

Those who vehemently oppose the coming of Wal-Mart have called themselves, "This Is Our Town." However, it seems obvious to me that it is just as much "our town" to those who want a Wal-Mart or to those who really do not have a strong opinion one way or the other. It also seems obvious to me from reading some of the Letters to the Editor in the Courier that there has been significant changes to Charlevoix in the past. People have come and gone — by birth and death, and by moving in one direction or another.

Businesses have started, businesses have closed, and businesses have moved. In the 4-and-a-half years that I have been here, if I just look at the church scene I have noticed a number of changes. Bethany Lutheran moved out of town. There has been additions and renovation to St. Mary's, First Congregational and my own parish, Christ Church. Pretty much constant change was implied in an old saying that went, "Nothing is sure but death and taxes."

Actually, I would like to say that nothing is sure but the love and care of God. Therein lies my concern. Let me make very clear that this article carries no opinion, pro or con, about the planned Wal-Mart. It does carry the opinion that we need to be careful about how we proceed as a community. The present situation is starting to resemble that of the placement of the high school. Accusations and lawsuits were flying around and the community was polarized. I gather that there were friendships that were irreparably damaged by the way in which the disagreements were stated and pursued. I think that God would be more interested in the emotional and spiritual atmosphere of Charlevoix than in the physical landscape. The presence or absence of a mall perhaps is a matter of aesthetics and economics, of eyes and checkbooks.

The way in which issues are aired and settled is a matter of concern, compassion, and even love — and those are of far more lasting concern. I leave you with this question: Would more potential residents or visitors be turned away by a mall or by a rancorous attitude among the inhabitants of our community?

Fr. Jim Gunn,
Rector,
Christ Church

Editor:

The Wal-Mart company, according to its 2003 Annual Report, sells about $300 of retail merchandise and services for each square foot of retail space it owns. The proposed Charlevoix supercenter will be required to sell over $52 million (175,00 square feet times $300) each year in order to meet company standards and stay in business. This means that every man, woman and child in Charlevoix County (26,500) would have to spend almost $2,000 each year at the Charlevoix Wal-Mart.

The most recent government information shows that retail sales in Charlevoix County are about $8,500 per person per year. (Antrim County the next obvious market is even less at around $5,000 per person). Wal-Mart is expecting to take more than one out of every $4 (2,000/8,000 =1/4) spent on retail purchases in the western Charlevoix County/northern Antrim County market.

To bring these figures home, multiply the number of persons living in your house by $2,000 and then ask yourself two questions: 1) Do you think you will spend this amount (in my household of 5 the amount would be $10,000) each year at Wal-Mart? And 2) if you did spend this considerable dollar amount in one store (Wal-Mart) where would you cut back your spending with other retailers of goods and services? If you agree that you cannot support Wal-Mart by spending $2,000 each year for each member of your family ($10,000 in my house — and very honestly I do not have that kind of money to spend) then Wal-Mart will close the store. They are not in Charlevoix to invest money on a store that does not make at least as much money as the rest of its stores. The problem is that both Wal-Mart company and those of us in the western Charlevoix County/northern Antrim County market will try to make the store successful if it is built. But we will fail because of the answers to the two questions above: 1) we do not have $2,000 from each and every man, woman and child to spend at Wal-Mart and 2) we are not willing to spend one of every $4 we budget for retail spending at Wal-Mart. Both of these things must take place for the store to remain open and they just are not going to happen. The store will close.

Wal-Mart will be gone, one more small community will have been drastically changed (remember that we all will have tried to make it work and that means that we will have quit spending money on retail purchases elsewhere, altered our driving patterns, allowed increased crime into our community, accepted low wages, helped pour asphalt over acres of land, shifted our tax base, encouraged our children to move elsewhere for jobs) and all because we were unwilling or unable to spend one of every four of our retail dollars which equals over $2,000 a year for every man, women and child reading this letter, at their store.

This is not planning for our future, it is planning for inevitable, irrational destruction of our environmental, human and capital resources and that is just plain wrong.

Wal-Mart needs to be stopped

Editor

There have been numerous letters in your paper regarding Wal-Mart's invasion into our small township. While there are hundreds and thousands of documents on the Internet, in newspapers and private publications regarding Wal-Mart's destruction of small towns and small town businesses. Low wages, non-union, discrimination, unfair labor practices, unfair business practices, law suits, sale of foreign products (under the label "made in America") are but a few articles.

This letter is not about their low-handed business practices, even though it will decimate this town and others.

This letter is directed to the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission members and members of surrounding planning commissions. The Township Zoning Ordinance has a list of standards that must be followed during their Development Plan review process. This list of standards also includes nine subjective standards, which must also be met during this review process. These standards deal with traffic impacts, environmental impacts, impacts to the character of the neighborhood and compatibility with similar business.

The planning commission must remember that they are part of this community and sit on the commission to serve the residents of this community, not Wal-Mart. Do not be afraid of the big corporate giant. The members of this community will be here to help you stop Wal-Mart and support you in every way possible.

If we do not stop this pervasive invasion into our community and quality of life, it will not just stop with Wal-Mart. What happens the next time and next time. Do you want Charlevoix to be another Garfield Township? Charlevoix the Beautiful will be only a memory. Where will the tourism go to when Charlevoix has lost it's uniqueness?

Picture summer gridlock along US-31, all trying to get through and out of Charlevoix's big box shopping strips. How long will it take before tourists detour through East Jordan or Ironton? Comparing public services expended for Kmart cannot be compared to a Wal-Mart supercenter with 750 parking spaces. Who do you think will pay for these additional services? Your tax dollars. I say to all developers of large oversized inappropriate development, "Go someplace else!"

If we need more stores, why do we have so many empty stores in the city of Charlevoix and surrounding townships? If we need more housing development, why are there so many vacant and houses for sale in the same area? Preserve what we have. Stay out.

After living in two large cities, I moved home to enjoy the benefits of small town living. Now my quality and choice of life style is being threatened by Wal-Mart and all other big box corporations. If you have never lived in a large city, ask someone who has, and then think very carefully about the information they give to you. They have been there, they have seen the devastation.

Perhaps; more property owners should look to the Land Conservancy to save our way of life.

Today the members of the Class of 2004 are less than two months from the high school graduation and with graduation, their last hurrah, the all night Senior Party. A dedicated group of parents has been working hard to plan this party. Our primary goal for the Senior Party is to host a safe and memorable event, one they will talk about and have vivid memories of forever.

For the past 14 years the party was on one of the Beaver Island boats and at Paul Bunyan Lanes. We owe them and all supporters of the past parties a great round of applause for helping to keep our kids safe.

For this year's party, the committee felt it was time for a change so we have chosen a theme of "The Magical Mystery Tour" where we expect to move about the area focusing on the "tour" event.

Planning an event of this magnitude for a class of 100 seniors takes a lot of time and also a lot of money. The committee would like to acknowledge the generosity of local businesses, service clubs and individuals who have donated money to help us put on this year's party.

Unfortunately, our fund-raising job is not over as we have not yet reached our goal. We are in need of and would welcome any and all donations, to help us meet our financial commitments for this event. Sponsorship opportunities are available for all levels of donations so you can be sure that your generosity will be recognized.

Please send any donations to the "Senior Party Committee" at Charlevoix High School. Call Marty or Bill Trubilowicz with questions or comments at 547-6662.

Dear Friends and Neighbors of the Charlevoix Community:

Thank you so much for all the loving support, concern, well wishes, prayers, flowers and thoughtfulness shown our entire family during Steve's illness.

Special thanks to Dr. Dennis Joy, Dr. Jim Stewart and especially Dr. Melodie Brown for their excellent medical care, the ambulance crew who transported Steve to Charlevoix Area Hospital and then to Munson, and the physical therapy staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital who labored so hard for so many days to help relieve his pain.

Steve contracted a staph infection (non-contagious) which unfortunately resulted in an abscess/cyst which lodged between two vertebra in his neck. Eventually it ruptured and flooded through his spinal chord, invading his entire body, blood and bones.

He is currently at Munson Hospital and will be for some time. Cards and visitors will be much appreciated. Cards/letters may be sent to Steve Paterka, c/o Munson Medical Center, 1105 Sixth Street, Traverse City, MI 49684.

Keep yourself safe from sexual assault

April is National Sexual Assault Awareness Month and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRC) is dedicated to increasing awareness about this important issue.

Sexual assault is something we hear about in the news, but many of us still think rape only happens to other people in other communities. Increasing awareness is the first step in ending any type of violence.

The majority of sexual assault victims are young women between the ages of 16 and 19, and the perpetrators are almost always men, in many situations an acquaintance of the victim. Only a small percentage of men in our society commit sexually violent crimes, but it can be difficult to tell the "good guys" from the "bad guys."

Here are a few things that we can all do to help prevent rape from happening:

- Be aware of language. We live in a society where words are often used to de-humanize or put women down. If females are seen as less than human, it becomes much easier to disrespect and mistreat them. Do not use degrading language and correct someone when they do in your presence.
- Communicate. It is important to know your sexual limits, to be able to tell your partner your sexual limits, and to understand and respect their sexual limits. One must always get consent (permission) from their partner before engaging in any sexual activity.
- Speak up! When you see or hear attitudes that degrade women, speak out against it. Do not tell degrading jokes or laugh when others do. By putting women down, you support violence against them. Do not support politicians who aim to limit women's rights.
- Contribute your time and money. Volunteer your time or donate money to organizations that work to end violence against women. You can make a difference.
- Talk about it. It is important that men and women are able to talk about sexual assault. Find out how the risk of being raped affects a woman's life. Find out how you can be supportive of someone who has been sexually assaulted. Talk to others about how sexual violence can affect them and what they can do to be part of the solution.

Rape is a choice that is made to use sex as a weapon of control. In order to end sexual assault, men must be conscious to make different choices. Men play a vital role in raising awareness about sexual assault. To learn more about sexual assault, our educational program can be brought to schools for students and parent groups, and to area churches and community organizations. For more information, call (231) 347-0067; its 24-hour crisis and information line is (800) 275-1995.

Forum on No Child Left Behind Act to be April 29

A community forum on the No Child Left Behind law is set for 7 p.m., Thursday, April 29, at the Charlevoix Middle School with a panel discussion and a question-and-answer session. The No Child Left Behind Act was signed into law by President George W. Bush in January 2002.

Parents and other community members are invited to attend this timely forum to relate their experiences with the law and to hear how school administrators and teachers are attempting to meet the requirements of the law.

Jane Bailey, director of Teaching and Learning at Petoskey Public Schools, will lead the panel and present a power point demonstration. Other speakers will be Dianne Litzenburger of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and several teachers.

Under No Child Left Behind, states and schools are limited to using test scores as a determination of success. The National Education Association proposes to allow states to use growth models that acknowledge progress in student achievement both over time and within the school year.

The forum is sponsored by the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel. It is organized by the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

Ragamuffins travel to Florida to help teens

The Ragamuffins perform with students from House of Hope in Florida.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A group of Charlevoix area students arrived in Florida on March 24 ready to tackle a spring break project that forever changed their lives and the lives of a group of troubled teens.

"God can use ordinary people to do something extraordinary. None of us are professionals in the therapeutic world. But we took what we have to offer and broke down the intimidation and the walls and impacted kids. I was amazed at this team," Tyvin Whittaker, a parent coordinator for the group, said.

Ten local students, who are all members of Charlevoix's Ragamuffin Theatre Group, traveled to House of Hope in Orlando to teach the troubled teens who live there about performing arts and Christianity.

"We were there to bring light into darkness," Brian Cornett, 22, of Charlevoix said.

House of Hope provides teenagers, ages 12 to 18, a refuge from the problems in their lives and gives them the tools to reintegrate into society through education, Christian counseling and spiritual guidance. There are 43 of these facilities across the United States.

The founder and president of House of Hope, Sara Trollinger, contacted Ragamuffin director Kathleen Whittaker this fall after seeing the students perform in Traverse City and asked that they go to Orlando to work with the kids there.

They agreed and Kathleen got together a group of Christian Ragamuffins to make the trip.

"We had no idea what we were getting into," Kathleen said.

When they arrived they weren't welcomed with open arms. The House of Hope students were resistant and not comfortable expressing themselves. But after almost 10 days of intensive training and interaction with the Ragamuffins, friendships were forged and the they began to open up.

"There was a dramatic change in the kids' attitudes. They could see we really cared about them," Cornett said. "It was really powerful."

The program started at around 1 p.m. each day and didn't end until 10 p.m.

"These kids have had so many times in their lives when someone has given up on them — we didn't," Will Barrett, 18, of Charlevoix, said.

They worked on everything from musical skills and acting to dance and sports. The effort culminated in a performance on April 4 that the Ragamuffin and House of Hope groups did together.

According to Kathleen, the encouragement her team gave the students was the key to their mission's success.

"They (House of Hope staff) had never seen a group come in and connect with these kids like we did. The whole atmosphere on the campus changed. They were laughing," she said.

The Ragamuffin students said they owe their success to God.

Jessica Hoover, 13, of Elk Rapids, said, "You could see God working and moving in them. Every one of them stepped out of the box where they were at the beginning of the week."

Cornett said the progress gave the students back what had been taken from them or lost — imagination and a piece of their childhood.

As for the Ragamuffin group, they said they learned how fragile their lives are and how to be humble servants.

"We need to sacrifice our own time to reach out to others. It was valuable to me to realize the impact you can make in a short time," parent coordinator Shari Bonar said.

Before they left, the Charlevoix group wrote notes of encouragement to each of the House of Hope students and exchanged e-mail addresses to keep up correspondence. They plan to return next spring for another mission trip with the students.

Kathleen said she would like to do more outreach efforts like this with her 48-member Ragamuffin group. For more information about the group or for donation information visit www.ragamuffintheatre.com.

District considering all-day Kindergarten

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Parents of Charlevoix's youngest students may soon have more options as to how their kids are educated.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education is considering starting an all-day Kindergarten program for the 2004-2005 school year at Charlevoix Elementary School.

"I think it's something that is becoming more and more popular with parents and schools," elementary school principal Dick Swenor said.

If the board votes in May to adopt the new program, it would be a change from its current half-day program.

Right now, three teachers cover six morning and afternoon Kindergarten sessions at the school that run just over three hours each, five days a week. The full day program would follow the regular school schedule that lasts for about seven hours.

Swenor said if it is approved the school will likely treat the option as a pilot program and offer one class starting next fall to test the waters with other half-day sessions still handling the bulk of students.

The decision as to how many full-day classes will be open depends on demand for the program. The school will be able to better gauge interest after Kindergarten Roundup which will take place at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., April 26 and 27.

The current kindergarten class has just under 100 students. Swenor said he is expecting about the same amount of kids to enroll next year.

Swenor said this change is being considered in response to inquiries from parents and teachers who say the students are ready.

He explained that students won't be asked to do more, they'll just have more time to learn through a more in-depth approach to the curriculum. Proponents of this approach argue it better prepares them for first grade.

Swenor said the biggest gains from this type of program have been seen in at-risk children who show higher achievement. Other benefits include less attendance problems and fewer transitions for children with attention disorders who have problems switching from a daycare environment, to school and back to daycare.

Concerns parents have raised address fatigue and whether kids that are 5 and 6 years old can handle the full day.

Swenor said another potential problem is increased cost for the school district which may have to bring on another teacher to meet the demand. The goal is to keep the classrooms under 20 students.

This year the elementary school lost some incoming kindergartners to St. Mary School where they initiated an all day Kindergarten program.

St. Mary Kindergarten teacher, Renée Golovich-Keie, said the program has been very successful.

"I was hesitant at first — starting something new there is always that fear of the unknown. But it's gone miraculously," she said.

She said it took about seven weeks for everyone to get into the swing of things and fatigue was a factor for her students. To address the fatigue issue Golovich-Keie created an after lunch "brain break." During this half hour students nap or read and just kick back.

"It helps and they look forward to it," she said.

In the classroom, Golovich-Keie teaches core academics in the morning followed by interactive learning after lunch. With the split, students who are not ready for an all day program can still take advantage of the half day.

When asked how parents should make this full or part time program decision, Golovich-Keie said the most important thing for them to do is to evaluate each individual child. She said for those that go the all day route, parents need to ensure that their kids have the fuel they need and that means eating a balanced diet and getting between 12 and 13 hours of sleep a day.

St. Mary School accepts up to 15 students for its Kindergarten classroom. Registration is taking place right now for this program. For more information call St. Mary School at 547-9441.

For information about the Charlevoix Elementary School program call the school at 547-3215 or attend the Roundup sessions next week where Swenor will make a presentation about it.

Parents may have the option of enrolling their student in an all-day Kindergarten class. Commissioners question need for another paved trail

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Some members of the Charlevoix County Commission question whether the county should support further development of non-motorized trails with maintenance costs falling in their lap and county roads falling apart.

County Planner Larry Sullivan spent two years working to bring the Charlevoix County portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway, which runs from Waller Road to the county line in Bay Shore, to fruition.

The $3 million project became a reality without a local contribution. But part of the construction agreement, which was funded in large part by the Michigan Department of Transportation, was that maintenance costs would fall on the county.

Now, The Top of Michigan Trails Council is working to raise funds to run another leg of the trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. They are hoping to complete this leg by 2009. It will cost an estimated $2 million. Sullivan is anticipating a need to come up with about 30 percent locally, which is about $450,000, most of which he anticipates will be raised by the trails council.

But this second phase may not get an endorsement from all the county commissioners.

At the commission's April 14 meeting, Sullivan discussed the project and preliminary engineering. The engineering is kicked off with aerial photography of the route. The county is having aerial photography done of other areas this week and he thought since the road commission is planning to redo Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in the next few years it would be a cost savings to have the pictures taken now to be used by both the commission and the trail group.

The county commission did not vote whether or not to support this because the road commission had told Sullivan they didn't have the funds to pay for the aerial photography. But commissioners did make comments about more non-motorized trail development.

Sixth district representative Shirley Roloff told Sullivan the timing is not good for this second project.

She explained that when the Waller Road stretch was built she had calls from concerned residents who wanted to know why a $3 million trail was being built when local roads are a mess.

Third district representative Ron Reinhardt and county commission chairman Vic Patrick also voiced concerns.

"We have more than enough trails; we need money for roads," Patrick said.

Patrick said with all the road problems the county is facing, including major repair needs on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, he thinks the state grant money paying for trails should be paying for road work.

Sullivan explained that state and federal grant money used to fund these non-motorized trails is earmarked for that use and can't be used for roads.

Roloff extended her trail concerns to maintenance issues and asked whether the county wants to saddle itself with upkeep costs of another stretch of trail. She said she doesn't want to see the county commit to another leg of the trail until maintenance costs are better understood with the current trail.

Sullivan said that thus far the Charlevoix County portion of the Wheelway, which has been open since October of 2002, has cost the county under $260 in repairs.

He anticipates it being about 20 years before the trail requires extensive reworking. At that time he said one of three things can happen, the county can foot the bill, the county can pursue grants or the trail can close.

Sullivan added that the benefits of this type of non-motorized route far outweigh the cost.

He said safety is the number one benefit, followed by increased health and wellness opportunities of area residents and visitors, a reduction in automobile traffic and a boost for the local economy.

"I don't believe we are creating a lot of long-term expense for the county; it's a public safety issue as well as a recreation issue," he said.

Sullivan was surprised to see some hesitation by the commission which has historically supported this type of development.

"I think the commissioners are getting some flack about why the money can't be spent on roads. There is concern county-wide about the roads," he said.

"I certainly don't dispute that and think we need to deal with it. But do we have a less than great road (Boyne City-Charlevoix Road) with people riding bicycles down it and walking on the shoulder or do we have a less than great road with a paved trail running alongside it. There's a lot to be said for separating that traffic."

The county commissioners referred this issue to the Charlevoix County Parks Committee for further discussion.

Rayders lose to Elk Rapids

Elk Rapids beat the Charlevoix High School varsity girls' soccer team, 4-2, last week.

The young Rayders bounced back from their opening loss with a strong effort against an experienced Elk Rapids Team.

Charlevoix had much the better of play in the first half, taking the half-time lead when Senior tri-captain Shayna Drost scored off an assist by freshman Zita Anderson.

The Elks tied the game early in the second then went ahead 2-1 until the Rayders' other senior tri-captain Alyssia McDonough, tied the match off a corner kick from Sophomore Stevie Murray.

The Elks went ahead 3-2 on a nice head ball goal. Charlevoix had a couple good opportunities to tie again but fell just short.

The Elks finished up the scoring late in the game for the 4-2 victory.

Charlevoix's sophomore keeper Laura Nitchman recorded 15 saves in the goal with another stellar performance. Junior tri-captain Sarah Cross and sophomore Lisa Kuebler anchored the Rayders defense.

Player of the game was awarded to McDonough for her strong midfield play.

"We began to play Charlevoix soccer tonight. We fell a bit short, but improved dramatically over the Petoskey game. We need to win more balls in the air to beat a team like Elk Rapids," coach Carol Madison said.

The Rayders fall to 0-2, 0-1 conference and travel to East Jordan on Monday.

Wal-Mart basis of new city sewer policy for developments

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Developers building outside the city of Charlevoix who want to hook into city utilities won't necessarily be given the OK.

The proposed Wal-Mart supercenter that may be built on Charlevoix Township's south side prompted discussion from council about denying the facility utilities.

The Wal-Mart proposal includes hookups to the city's sewer and electrical system. It shows water being provided by Charlevoix Township.

But council as a whole doesn't support the development, claiming it will have a negative impact on the city's economy.

At the April 19 council meeting three different policies for water, electric and sewer service outside the city limits, were unanimously adopted. They require developers who want to hook up to undergo an economic impact study at the developer's expense.

City attorney Jim Young explained that the policies that were adopted do not mean that anyone will be denied anything. He said what they do is offer council standards for reviewing a project and deciding whether it makes sense to extend services for a project.

The only difference between the three is that under the electric policy city manager Mike Wiesner gives final approval for electrical extension to a project.

Mayor Gabe Campbell and third ward council member Shirley Gibson think council should have the ultimate say on all three. But Gibson said she was willing to be flexible at the meeting to get the policy on the books. She plans to work to change the approval requirement in the future.

"This should have happened a long time ago. It could have even stopped that school (Charlevoix High School) from being built in the middle of a corn field," Gibson said.

Wiesner does not agree that council should deny Wal-Mart electricity. He said the company will get it from somewhere else and once Consumer's Energy or Great Lakes Energy runs service to that area they will likely also get other new business that is developed there.

"You have the potential to greatly damage the electric system in the future. You are losing growth potential," Wiesner said. "It is in the best interest of the system as it is with any business, to grow."

But Mayor Campbell said the city stands to lose a lot of money if Wal-Mart is built because it will run out of town other utility customers they currently service.

First ward councilman Bob Timms, second ward councilman Bill Bellows and third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain agreed that denying electrical service wouldn't be a stopper for the Wal-Mart project and may hurt the city.

"I can't see cutting off our nose to spite our face. I don't think we would be accomplishing anything by denying electric service outside the city," Timms said.

While Wal-Mart may be given city electricity, sewer service might not come easily with this new policy in place.

Council's adoption of the policies was a small victory for the anti Wal-Mart group, This is Our Town.

John Winn, a member of the group, said, "We want to cover all the bases and do everything we can. We'll take the sewer (service rejection) if that's the way it comes down."

Winn isn't convinced Wal-Mart will meet the requirements for an on-site septic system in that area.

While This is Our Town members are happy to see council taking steps to restrict its utility extensions, Charlevoix Township resident Chuck Scherping disagreed with the new policies.

Scherping said they are a way of discriminating against a business council may not like, and that's wrong.

Theater troupe to perform in May

Ragamuffin Children's Theatre and Choir will be presenting their second annual presentation of "Primetime Pantomime!"

All ages are invited to come and experience music in motion as the 60 member troupe perform lyrical mime pieces on a variety of themes, which include humor, drama and dance.

Director Kathleen Whittaker formed the theatrical troupe over three years ago, and has seen incredible progress in the group's ability to perform at a professional level.

"We will be doing some wonderful new pieces," Whittaker said.

Members of Ragamuffin receive weekly instruction in all areas of the performing arts including, dance, vocal lessons, mime and acting. Their performances usually involve many different forms of creative expression allowing them to touch people in unexpected ways, said Whittaker.

"The program we are currently working on calls for audience participation making it fun for the whole family, as well as improvisational acting which is always highly entertaining," she said.

Primetime Pantomime will be performed at 7 p.m., May 1; at 4 p.m., May 2; at 7 p.m., May 2 at the Charlevoix's Knights of Columbus Hall.

General admission for all shows is $4 for adults and children 12 and under $2. For more information, visit Ragamuffintheatre.com, or call 237-9686.

Meningitis case found in Antrim

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency received a report recently confirming bacterial meningitis in one child in Antrim County.

"The risk of anyone else becoming infected with bacterial meningitis is low," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. "These types of cases are generally isolated; however, communicable disease staff from the health department are closely monitoring the situation."

Meyerson is asking people to watch for signs and symptoms, see a doctor as soon as possible if they suspect meningitis and use good hygiene practices, especially thorough handwashing.

Meningitis is an infection of the tissues and sometimes the fluid that surrounds the brain and spinal cord. It can be caused by a virus or bacteria.

The symptoms of viral meningitis and bacterial meningitis can be similar. Medical tests to determine what is causing symptoms are necessary because treatment for bacterial meningitis can be different than treatment for viral meningitis.

The symptoms of meningitis may not be the same for every person. More common symptoms are sudden onset of fever, severe headache and stiff neck. Individuals may also suffer intolerance to light, nausea, vomiting and occasionally even seizures.

The most effective way to prevent contracting bacterial meningitis is hand washing, thoroughly and often, especially after using the bathroom and before preparing or eating food. Personal items such as drinking cups or bottles and food utensils should not be shared.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

For more additional information about meningitis, contact your family doctor, pediatrician or local health department office or visit www.cdc.gov.

Hope for Charlevoix as cool city of Grand Rapids.

COOL

"The opportunity to go there was amazing. I enjoyed it," she said.

At the two hour forum Kimble answered questions using electronic survey equipment about what would make her want to live in a community. She said the most common responses from participants were jobs, a mass transit system, walkable streets, arts and culture, neighborhoods and gathering places.

Kimble was surprised to find Michigan is one of the only states in the country without a major transportation system.

While Charlevoix will not likely have or need a mass transit system both Kimble and Conway said there is still cool city hope for this town.

Conway said Charlevoix already has cool city attributes.

"We have local businesses and walkable streets," she said. "Diversity and culture will come in time."

Kimble said to bring a little more cool to town, Charlevoix needs more professional jobs for 20 and 30 somethings and entertainment options.

One of the highlights of the trip for Kimble and Conway was meeting Granholm.

Kimble said she was "funny, engaging, very bright and on her toes all the time."

"She was everything you would want our governor to be," she added.

a formal site plan meeting being scheduled for mid-to late-May.

In a letter to Rajewski, one of the items Corcoran said Wal-Mart is missing is a narrative on how it meets the nine requirements called for before a plan is approved. Corcoran also said the site plan needs property appraisal statements, a public/safety impact statement, a tree survey and the project plans have not been sealed by a professional engineer.

According to the plans submitted in late March, Wal-Mart would like to build a 155,800 square foot supercenter on 24 acres of property located off US-31, near Marion Center Road and Stover Road.

The plans say the store will face Marion Center Road, where the entrance and exit to the site will be.

For a right-turn only entrance on US-31, the company said it will need to get a partial vacation of Stover Road and has applied to the Charlevoix County Road Commission for this. The company also stated it will need a lighted signal at the intersection of US-31 and Marion Center Road, as well as the construction of left and right turning lanes on Marion Center Road and bypass lanes for through traffic.

Site plans also state the company needs sewer service from the city of Charlevoix. They are proposing a sewer line that will be extended from a manhole west of the intersection of Stover Road and Marion Center Road. Wal-Mart has said it will pay for all costs associated with this extension.

Plans state the supercenter will generate about 4,230 gallons of sanitary waste a day.

Company officials have previously said they want to have the store open in 2005.

Telephone calls seeking comment were not returned by Wal-Mart officials.

Keepin' It Local...

Wal-Mart negatives focus of forum

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to author and Wal-Mart fighter Al Norman and the local group This Is Our Town, the only problem with the Charlevoix Township proposal for a supercenter is it is the wrong size and in the wrong location.

Norman and This Is Our Town brought a slew of information about the mega-retailer and its potential impact on Charlevoix to a large crowd Thursday at a forum on Wal-Mart at Charlevoix High School. Norman went over the corporation's business practices and the Charlevoix Township Master Plan and zoning ordinance in an attempt to show Wal-Mart will hurt the Charlevoix area.

"I think he (Norman) knew what he was talking about," said Ralph Ware, a Charlevoix resident, after the meeting. "I think the point is well taken that this is too large of a facility."

Ware said he was previously in support of a Wal-Mart and originally thought the local government bodies, such as the DDA, that came out against the supercenter were just trying to impose their will on the rest of the community to support downtown merchants. He said now he does not think that.

Ware added, "I regret that the Wal-Mart firm did not try to come and rebut him (Norman)."

Kimberly Korp, 18, of Charlevoix, also said she enjoyed the meeting.

This map, created by the group This Is Our Town, shows the size of the proposed Wal-Mart supercenter in relation to downtown Charlevoix and Oleson's Market.

"It was incredible. It was great information and it was very honest," she said.

Norman said it is wrong to think that Charlevoix Township's planning commission cannot stop a Wal-Mart supercenter from coming. In looking at the Charlevoix Township zoning ordinance, Norman said the retail/grocery store will violate several of the nine requirements a proposed development must have before being approved.

Norman said, according to the ordinance a development must conserve the surrounding property val-

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that "Goodbye" is much more than word.

I'm Bob Vance, Family Counselor with Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. I built my career by learning from those I serve, and I'm proud to work for an organization that grows in the same way.

I like to refer to our program as a full service hospice. We have learned that the experience of dying is more about life than death. Every death ripples outward and spreads, touching many lives.

Of course we're here to help our patients but, just as importantly, our role is to help the people who love our patients. We help them to cope, understand and take the time they need to say "Goodbye".

Some hospices are reducing services to the bereaved. At Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, we constantly strive to create new services. We understand that "Goodbye" is much more than words. Not all hospices are alike.

NORMAN

ues, conserve economic stability, conserve a given character the surrounding.community, lesson congestion on the streets and be compatible with surrounding developments.

The Wal-Mart supercenter plan that was submitted fails all of those, he said.

He said surrounding property values will probably go down, the area's economy will be negatively impacted, the "big box" plan is out of character with the community of Charlevoix and unlike any of the surrounding developments.

As for traffic, Norman pointed out the site really has only one entrance and one exit and that is on Marion Center Road. Another entrance on US-31 is for right turn only traffic. This means all of the traffic that is coming out of the center, including large truck traffic, will spill out onto Marion Center Road.

Norman also said Wal-Mart's proposal violates the township master plan. He pointed out the township master plan says, "large scale community development will pose the most serious problem."

He added the master plan also states the township should maintain its rural character, "encourage improvements and consolidation of existing business facilities" and "discourage strip developments."

As for some other points Norman made about Wal-Mart he said:

While Wal-Mart claims to create jobs in communities, Norman said this does not take into effect the number of jobs that are lost to bring in a Wal-Mart. He said a Massachusetts study on Wal-Mart's impact discovered a supercenter causes no net increase in jobs and could, in fact, reduce the number of jobs in a community.

He added a study by Congressman George Miller showed, "Workers cost taxpayers at a typical Wal-Mart with 200 workers $420,750 in tax supported subsidies."

Furthermore, Norman said Wal-Mart is horrible for the economy, not just locally, but in the nation.

"Wal-Mart has turned into not just a chain store, but a chain of exploitation," he said.

Last year, Norman said Wal-Mart imported $12 billion worth of goods from China, which represents 10 percent of our national trade deficit. Wal-Mart has also caused companies such as Levie Strauss, Fruit of the Loom and Master Lock to close down all of their American factories and move them overseas.

And, while the company claims low prices "always," Norman said an Arkansas court found "Wal-Mart raises prices as the competition does away."

After his presentation, Norman opened the floor to questions. While many supported him and This Is Our Town's actions, one woman said some people need a Wal-Mart in Charlevoix because they can't afford to shop in local stores and do not have a vehicle to drive to the Petoskey store.

In response, Norman said, "I choose to live in a beautiful place in the country. I could have choosen to live next to the malls. They choose to live in a beautiful northern Michigan resort town, knowing they were not on top of a mall."

Another person pointed out there are two grocery stores that are not locally owned, Glen's and Oleson's, like Wal-Mart would be.

Norman said Oleson's is a family owned business based in Traverse City and Glen's is a chain based out of northern Michigan. He said these businesses are pretty much locally owned and spend their money in the area.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, pointed out a Wal-Mart supercenter will also impact the Don's IGA on Petoskey Avenue, which is owned by a Charlevoix resident. He added Wal-Mart will not just hurt downtown businesses, but businesses throughout Charlevoix.

Due to the submitted plan's not being complete, a meeting on the proposed Wal-Mart supercenter in Charlevoix Township has been postponed until mid to late-May.

The company wants to build a 155,800 square foot store on Marion Center Road; near US-31 and Stover Road. In the past, company officials said they want to have the store open in 2005.

Wal-Mart could not be reached for comment.

It's a pretty bold statement, considering we don't even know the question yet. Northwestern Bank is locally owned and each office is locally staffed and managed. Decisions are made right here by people with the answers, who are empowered to do what needs to be done. The person you ask is the person who'll make sure it happens.

You'll never get answers like, "That's not my department." Or, "You'll have to call this 800 number." When you ask anyone at Northwestern Bank, big things happen right away.

If your bank "can't do that," maybe it's time you found one that can.

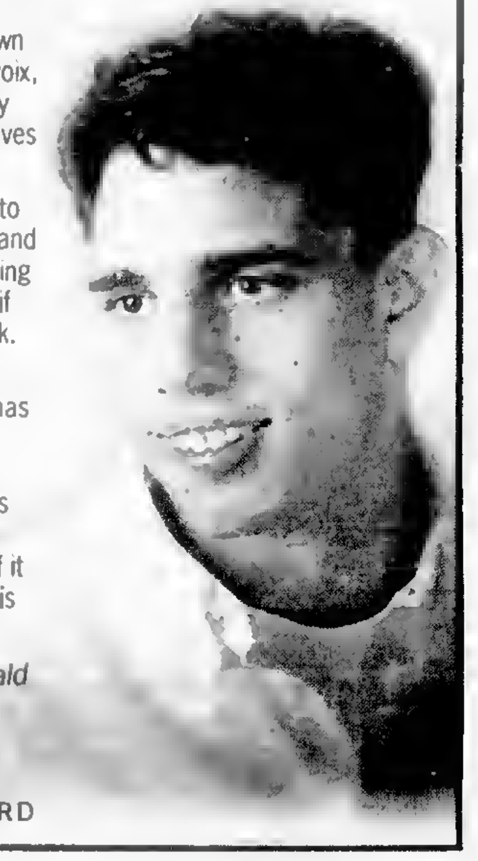
IN MEMORY OF RONALD HAGGARD

AUGUST 18, 1977 - APRIL 27, 2000



Charlevoix the Beautiful! What an idyllic, wonderful place to live. It is a quiet and undisturbed town.

Well, not exactly! Charlevoix has remained a quaint town sandwiched between Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, yet it has become a vibrant, bustling town with so very much to offer. It is easy for our family to lose their selves in the frantic pace of day-to-day activities.

The months pass and become years. It is hard for us to keep track of time. Worldwide the problems continue and have changed. Now we are bumping, rattling and roaring into a major political season. Sometimes it seems as if time has brushed past us like a swift kiss on the cheek.

There is one thing that remains constant in our lives, however, and that is our love of family and friends. It has now been four years since we lost our son, Ronald Haggard. Not a day, an hour, possibly even a minute goes by that we don't remember our son. We recall his special gift of kindness and appreciation of family and friends. Four years have passed and yet it seems as if it were only yesterday that we held him in our arms. He is forever in our hearts and minds.

"We shall remain comforted knowing that Ronald is in the warm, embracing arms of his savior, Jesus Christ."

- WITH LOVE, JOHN AND PHYLLIS HAGGARD

In this suit, Plaintiffs claim that each of the four Defendant title Insurance Companies repeatedly violated two provisions of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act, sections 2607(a) and 2607(b) by giving discounts to builders whose buyers repeatedly bought their title insurance from the same Defendant, and further that the Defendant Title Insurance Companies split fees charged for title insurance policies with the Builders even though the Builders performed no settlement services. They seek statutory damages of three times the total cost of the settlement service for each Class member, plus attorney's fees, interest and costs. The Defendants deny all the claims made against them. Probable Members of the Class known to the Court and counsel will soon receive a full Notice in the mail. Historical society to preserve photos with digital technology

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

Some cultures believe being photographed is akin to having your soul stolen, but in Charlevoix photographs as much as 135 years old are about to be preserved forever using the latest in computer technology.

This spring, Dave Miles, co-director of the Harsha House Museum in Charlevoix and his assistants, will begin the hearty task of preserving Charlevoix's photographic history. Some 9,000 photos, which will take nearly four years to scan into a computer and be saved to disk, range from historic homes and boats to people and their pets.

Miles said, "We're getting ready to begin the second year of an approximate four year project. The last year we spent planning and fundraising. Now we are preparing to do a massive digitization of the photo collection."

The oldest picture to be preserved, Miles said is, "A team of horses and men whose job it was to cut a path through the wooded area which is now the channel which leads from Round Lake to Lake Charlevoix."

Up until now, the Harsha House has scanned pictures as needed for visitors to the museum, but even new technology can have negative effects on photographs. This fact has prompted the museum to address the issue once and for all.

"The more you scan a photograph, the more the photo degrades. So instead of simply scanning a photo each time it is required, we can scan it into the computer at high resolution once in order to maintain its integrity forever," he said.

Miles estimates the completion of this overwhelming project will yield 70 CDs and that is just the current photo collection.

Miles said, "The computer software is called PastPerfect and has been specifically designed for museums." This software allows for a certain amount of cleaning and repair of photographs.

It seems Charlevoix's history is a family affair, as not only were Miles' mother and father on the museum board of directors, but Miles' father, Robert, generously donated many of the pictures which were used to create the Bob Miles Books I and II.

Priceless photos include the first settlers to Charlevoix, Medad and Phoehe Thompson in 1854. Early 1900s ice caves, which used to form on the beaches of Lake Michigan. Also Dan McSauba, the only Indian Chief ever to work for the U.S. Post Office, and Elliot Ness, who spoke about civil defense at the Belvedere Casino.

Miles said, "We will he putting the photos on disc at high resolution for two main reasons. This way people can find and print photos any time they wish and the second reason is we will have a permanent record."

He added, for those interested in prolonging the life of their photos, but are unable to have access to a scanner is to, "place them into high grade poly sleeves and avoid touching them."

The team of museum workers isn't worried about keeping track of the photos.

"We have devised a nine digit system of cataloguing photos and negatives to make for easier location and retrieval once in the computer system," he added.

The committee formed to preserve the photographs meets every Tuesday, they choose which photos are best for historical preservation. There are generally three or four people on the committee for the culling process.

"Each picture to be digitally preserved is then documented with a description. The photo is then classified into its corresponding category, tagged with the name of the photographer (when known) and labeled with search terms," Miles said.

Search terms describe all items of significance in the photo. This process ensures someone looking for something seemingly unimportant will be able to find it with ease.

"The museum collects photos of anything pertaining to the history of Charlevoix," said Miles. "We are extremely lucky all of this was saved."

The people of Charlevoix are to thank for the photographic collections given to the museum.

"This photo collection is almost entirely from donations, as well as the computer equipment and labor," Miles said.

Anyone who is interested in donating pictures to the museum can contact Dave Miles at the Harsha House museum.

He added, "If you are uncertain about any photos you may have or considering disposing of, please let the museum have a look at them. Even if you posses a seemingly worthless photograph, you may have something important."

This is evident by the photo of a small girl from the early 1900s.

Her name is unknown, but the old opera house, once located near the bridge, can be seen over her shoulder.

This is the only known photo from this particular angle, which makes it one of a kind.

Collectors need not despair, for donating priceless family heirlooms no longer means losing them.

"The museum can now borrow a collection, scan it and return it. You would be helping to preserve the history of Charlevoix," Miles said.

The safekeeping of Charlevoix's photographs is paramount if future generations are to learn the town history.

"Our most precious assets are our photographic records since they are the basis of our history," he said.

Gibson needed attorney to prove ordinance wrong

GIBSON

of the city's ordinance and wrote the resident a letter requesting that the boat and trailer be moved.

Then in September the incident happened again. This time city planner Gerry Harsch and city manager Mike Wiesner interpreted the ordinance and found it was within the neighbors' rights to park a boat there.

Gibson's attorney, Karen Ferguson with the Traverse City law firm Olson and Bzdok, claims the separate interpretation by Harsch and Wiesner does not respect the separation of powers of city boards and officials established in the City and Village Zoning Act.

She said if city staff wanted further interpretation they should have asked the city zoning board of appeals for its interpretation.

"What they (Harsch and Wiesner) did was illegal; I had no choice but to hire an attorney. I wasn't going to get a straight answer from anyone down there (at city hall)," Gibson said.

Ferguson added that the incident should be a wake up call for city staff that there is a problem with the city's ordinance. This problem is being addressed now as the city begins the process to revise its ordinance and master plan.

While Gibson is happy to see the gray areas of the ordinance are being clarified she said she incurred an $1,800 bill from Ferguson's firm to try and get a straight answer. And she feels that bill is the responsibility of the city.

Gibson said when city council voted in early March to reimburse the attorney fees of five planning commissioners who were being dismissed by Mayor Gabe Campbell they set a dangerous precedent that she is now challenging.

The commissioners hired the Grand Rapids law firm Warner, Norcross and Judd, to defend them and racked up a $5,450.31 bill to that firm for charges the commissioners incurred in defending their position.

Gibson's request was addressed at council's April 19 meeting. City attorney Jim Young said council could do what they want. Second ward council member Karen Campbell made a motion to pay the fees; she was seconded by first ward councilman Bob Timms and was only rejected by second ward councilman Bill Bellows.

Bellows voted in favor of paying the planning commissioners fees.

Gibson said she is pleased with council's decision and hopes that a policy on this reimbursement issue is adopted.

"I don't think any of it's (reimbursement) right but you can't play favorites. It's not the money with me, it's the principle. I think people should be treated fair and square and the way I was treated by the city manager and the planner wasn't fair at all," Gibson said.

Dye could cost chamber

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

If those responsible for dumping green dye into the Pine River Channel on St. Patrick's Day don't fess up soon the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce could face civil charges and a $25,000 fine.

"Nobody has come forward and said they know who it was or they saw them do it. Everyone we have talked to is lying or not telling us the whole story. They just won't live up to what they did. It's ridiculous," Richard Shoemaker, the Senior Environmental Quality Analyst with the Surface Water Quality Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ), said.

The incident Shoemaker and Charlevoix city police chief Dennis Halverson are investigating happened on March 17, during the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's first annual St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl. While revelers celebrated the holiday inside the Weathervane Restaurant, someone dyed the Pine River Channel green in spite of the chamber repeatedly being told by the MDEQ that it wasn't allowed.

Shoemaker said the department does allow tracer dyes to be used for legitimate water resource man-

Big fines could be in city's future

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The city of Charlevoix could face hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines if the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) levies maximum penalties for discharge permit violations that happened at Charlevoix's Wastewater Treatment Plant.

The possible fines are related to an investigation the MDEQ started in January at the plant after receiving information from city staff that things over there just weren't adding up.

According to a letter written by Dustin Ordway, a city attorney, to Barry Selden, chief of the MDEQ's Cadillac enforcement unit, this winter city staff discovered what appeared to be violations reaching back over a three year period due to employee problems.

After getting the word from the city, the MDEQ brought in its investigative team, including Vince Woods, a detective with the MDEQ's office of criminal investigation.

The department's findings were recorded in a March report given to city manager Mike Wiesner. The report included 31 chlorine limit exceedences and false reports for 15 phosphorus results and 32 fecal coliform results. The report also noted there were 27 days when monitoring did

Clarification

City Manager Mike Wiesner rebuts claims made by third ward council member Shirley Gibson that a separate opinion given by he and planner Gerry Harsch on a zoning issue was a violation of the City and Village Zoning Act. He said city attorney Jim Young confirmed Harsch's opinion that boats and trailers are allowed to be parked in the front yards of residences in the city.

Dispute between Boss, Maynard heating up

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A dispute between two members of the Norwood Township Board continues to heat up.

On March 31 Norwood Township Supervisor Wayne Boss wrote a letter to board trustee Mark Maynard requesting that he resign.

The letter was included in the board agenda distributed to about 100 people that was considered at the April 19 meeting. Boss said it was township clerk Doris Pearl's decision to include the letter in the agenda.

Maynard feels this decision was made to punish and publicly embarrass him because it's not the board's general procedure to include an entire letter in an agenda.

"It put pressure on me to throw up my hands and give up. But what it did was put a bunch of people behind me to say don't give up. It also strengthened my resolve. I'm not going to stand by and let people trample on my rights," Maynard said.

In the letter Boss said he thinks Maynard is a threat to the township and is intentionally disruptive. To support these claims he pointed to a lawsuit Maynard filed against Pearl regarding alleged Freedom of Information Act violations and also to "threats" he has made related to suing the township.

"You don't sue the township when you're a board member," Boss said. "This whole thing has been detrimental to the township. The actions he is taking are costing the township money and they are not in the best interest of the township."

Boss further cited e-mails and other correspondence from Maynard to his fellow board members and planning commissioners that he said were inappropriate and support his resignation request. He claims that in those letters, Maynard verbally attacked officials and made insinuations of wrongdoing.

"Everything he's implying could have been addressed person-to-person more reasonably," Boss said.

At the board's April 19 meeting Maynard refused to resign and fired back at Boss.

Maynard said the letters Boss alluded to included information and requests for information he sent as a Norwood Township resident, not a board member. He further explained that the letters were written in connection with a lengthy zoning dispute with his neighbors, Frank and Barb Hamilton, who own and operate Auntie Barb's Country Kennel on their property.

The dispute started with Maynard wanting screening on the Hamilton property and less noise. Maynard said when the township didn't respond to his concerns he started digging and found violations of the township's zoning ordinance.

In November of 2003 this dispute resulted in a decision by the Norwood Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) to overturn permits former zoning administrator Lynn Smolenyak issued the Hamiltons for a fencing modification and a shed addition for their kennel operation.

The board then asked that the Hamiltons reapply for their special use permit under the new zoning ordinance to operate the kennel. The Hamiltons have since filed a lawsuit against the township fighting this requirement. The Maynards were recently granted an intervention by Emmet County 57th Circuit Court Judge Charles Johnson naming them a defendant in the suit.

The one e-mail Maynard said he sent his fellow planning commissioners in his official capacity as commission chairman was in regard to a garage the Hamiltons needed a permit to build. In that letter he suggests the commission enter into an agreement with the Hamiltons to approve the garage if other areas of the property that he felt didn't conform to the ordinance were addressed.

In December of 2003 it was this e-mail that prompted Boss to decide not to re-appoint Maynard to the planning commission. Boss said Maynard was unable to separate his personal issue with the Hamiltons from his role as a planning commissioner.

But, Boss said he thinks Maynard has done a good job separating his personal beef with the Hamiltons from his business as township trustee.

Maynard feels he has done nothing wrong by filing a lawsuit against Pearl and continuing to interact with other township officials as a citizen in regard to his issue with the Hamiltons.

"Just because I'm a township official doesn't minimize my rights as a citizen," he said.

Boss said Pearl, the township's Freedom of Information Act coordinator, was not aware of proper procedure associated with the Freedom of Information Act request and that is why Maynard received incomplete responses to his requests. He added that the situation could have been addressed more constructively if Maynard would have discussed the problem with Pearl.

Maynard said he e-mailed Pearl two times and his attorney, Karen Ferguson, of the Traverse City firm Olson and Bzdok, contacted township attorney Bryan Graham in regards to this issue before the suit was filed.

Maynard said his actions have been in the township's best interest.

"(I've acted in the best interest of the township) by standing up for what's right and standing up for the law. By demanding that the law be enforced equally for everyone," Maynard said. "When I stand up for my rights, I'm standing up for everyone's rights."

Maynard said he plans to continue to do what he has been doing and may also challenge Boss, who plans to run again, in the November election. He said his decision is dependent on how many people run.

"The quality of government depends on the people who are in there. The more people you have (running) the higher caliber will rise to the top," he said.

The election is for a four-year term and all seats will be on the ballot. These seats include two trustees, the clerk, the supervisor and the treasurer. Those interested in running can pick up a partisan nominating petition from Pearl or the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office. Those petitions have to be turned in to Pearl by 4 p.m., May 11. For information call Pearl at 547-9096.

City doesn't ignore a problem, it faces it

EDITORIAL

Thanks to the efforts of current Charlevoix City staff, the city of Charlevoix may be able to avoid a massive fine being levied against it for violations at the wastewater treatment plant.

According to a story in today's Charlevoix Courier, the city of Charlevoix could face several thousand dollars in fines for discharge permit violations that happened at the wastewater treatment plant.

These are related to an investigation conducted by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality after it received information from city staff that things may be wrong at the plant.

Their investigation, and the city's own investigation, found violations at the plant that reached back over a three-year period.

Basically the MDEQ discovered that a plant employee was falsifying reports of treated water and the plant was pumping extra amounts of chlorine into Lake Michigan with the treated water.

There is no harm to the area's drinking water though, as the chlorine dissolved within minutes of reaching the lake.

But, the city may be able to avoid massive fines from this, thanks to quick actions by city staff and City Manager Mike Wiesner.

After finding out about the problem, Wiesner immediately started looking into the matter, contacted the MDEQ and started trying to find ways to correct the violations.

The MDEQ was impressed and said it was encouraged the city did not try to hide or ignore the problem, and is trying to do something about it.

Good job Wiesner.

Your efforts serve as a great example to other organizations in the community. Sometimes the problems are minimized if you face them right away.

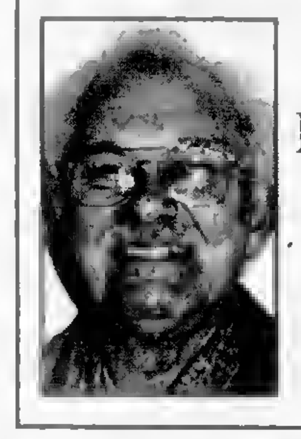
Writer has a solution to help fund Medicare — raise taxes



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

According to a recent Detroit News report, Michigan will soon be unable to pay its share of Medicaid costs for its neediest citizens.

Unlike Medicare which is totally paid for by federal government funds, the cost of Medicaid is paid equally by federal and state moneys. Medicaid pays health care cost for poor children and poor pregnant women, for state welfare recipients, and aged, blind and disabled people who receive federal Social Security income. States have some discretion about what medical costs are covered under the program. Citizens eligible for such aid number more than one million three hundred thousand in Michigan this year.

To help pay the soaring costs of the Medicaid program the state of Michigan has cut funding to higher education by 14 percent within the last two years and state payments to local governments have been reduced by 15 percent. State agencies that are charged with the oversight of child day care and adult foster care have reduced staff as have many other state regulatory agencies.

The state of Michigan has 8,000 fewer employees that it had in 2,000, and not all of those 8,000 were worthless bureaucrats feeding at the public trough. At least some of them were doing worthwhile, even valuable things that now are not getting done.

I have a suggestion to solve the state's fiscal problems: We should raise taxes.

I know that during the past 15 years or so reducing taxes has been the main agenda of congress and most legislatures, and that any politician calling for raising taxes is likely to be defeated in the next election by someone who promises to reduce taxes and give you back more of your own money. But do we really want to deprive the poorest of our citizens of necessary health care in order to have lower taxes? Do we really want to reduce spending for education and important state regulatory oversight in order to have lower taxes? I am sure there is some level of fraud and waste in such programs, but it is a small fraction of the overall expense. Nearly everyone receiving Medicaid help deserves it.

Reducing taxes will always be popular, but it is not always nor necessarily wise. Would you rather have legislators who court popularity or legislators who act wisely in the public interest? In many cases they cannot be both wise and popular. I would choose wisdom.

State governments have a different problem than the federal government. As the economy fluctuates, the federal government can borrow endlessly and can even print more money. Michigan can do neither of those things.

When Michigan's economy fluctuates downward, we have greater costs associated with continuing programs for those citizens near the bottom of the economic ladder. Our present Michigan governor believes we have an obligation to protect the vulnerable citizens of our state. If that is an obligation the state has to be willing to pay for it.

Taxes are the price we citizens pay for living in complex, well supplied and reasonably safe communities. If our goal is to deprive our poorest citizens of health care, then we should simply say that and eliminate programs like Medicaid.

If government in a democracy has any obligations to all the citizens, then we should be willing to pay for those obligations. That, it seems to me is a conservative position. If a democratic government has no such obligations, then we do not have a society, a community or a civilization.

Certainly waste and fraud should be kept to a minimum, but some waste and fraud can hardly be a reason for avoiding the obligations.

Wal-Mart will help business

Editor:

Here I am again writing about the Wal-Mart issue. Has anyone of you that belong to "This is our Town" committee read the Petoskey News-Review lately? Business owners in Petoskey have expanded their businesses to accommodate different walks of life to compete with Wal-Mart.

Most of them have said, their business is still flourishing, and sales are up. Charlevoix says they want to keep the small town atmosphere. How can you, when you keep building condominiums and boatslips.

To the people of "This is Our Town," this is not your town, this is everyone's town that lives here, including the rich and poor. Why don't you interview people that are for Wal-Mart? Did you ever think that maybe that there are more people that want it, then don't? Do you think you should worry about our contaminated drinking water supply, instead of Wal-Mart? I don't see anyone getting too upset over that, knowing it can cause sickness. However, I still have not figured out why this town thinks it's above, and beyond the laws, rules, and regulations that govern this city.

As you can see, it is now paying the price for a possibly contaminated water supply. Just as the old saying goes "once you deceive, oh what a web you weave." Just a few points to ponder.

Trails are valuable

Editor:

At a recent Charlevoix County Commissioners meeting, several commissioners raised the question of whether more trails are needed in Charlevoix County.

Reasons for their concern included building trails while roads were in bad condition, maintenance costs of trails and negative feedback from constituents about the money spent on the new trail by US-31. As an officer of the Top of Michigan Trails Council and co-chair of the Boyne City to Charlevoix Trail Committee (currently pursuing grants for the engineering of that trail), I feel that certain items need to be clarified with the public.

First, funds for trail development and construction come from a different source than funds for road construction. By law one cannot use federal and state funds earmarked for trails for roads. The Federal Transportation Enhancement Act (TEA-21) funds are designated specifically for trails, streetscapes and others. If the money available each year is not spent in this area, these funds will be spent elsewhere in the state. It is not possible to swap trail money (to be used locally for trails) with road money (to be used elsewhere in the state), as suggested by one of the commissioners.

Second, maintenance of the new trail in the County has been performed by volunteer labor, primarily a County employee (on personal time) and me. The cost to the county has been limited to purchasing new screws to replace those that sheared off on the boardwalk and a few pieces of lumber to repair damage from trees falling on some boardwalk railings during storms. The total cost for these items was under $270.

Third, Charlevoix County received a linear park (portion of the Little Traverse Wheelway) valued at almost $3 million from the state at no cost to the County and its taxpayers — it was funded with the TEA-21 grants mentioned earlier. Usage of this trail by locals and visitors has been tremendous.

The Top of Michigan Trails Council, an all-volunteer organization, advocates and facilitates the development of safe, year round trails in the eight northern counties of Michigan's Lower Peninsula. It has been active in fundraising and working with state and local agencies to develop trails in this and other counties.

Also, the Charlevoix County Recreation Plan, first adopted in 1984, calls for trails connecting the cities in the County in addition to the recently completed trail by US-31.

If the residents of Charlevoix County would like more trails, please contact your elected County Commissioners to let them know your wishes: Valerie Snyder 547-2122, Randy Frykberg 582-3160, Ron Reinhardt 582-7912, Vic Patrick 536-0212, Denny Jason 547-6759 and Shirley Roloff 547-6169. You may also contact the Top of Michigan Trails Council at 348-8280 or tomtc@freeway.net.

Thank you

"How wonderful it is that nobody wait a single moment before starting to improve the world," Anne Frank.

The many volunteers at the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRC) have graciously improved the world for the northern Michigan community in a variety of ways. Exactly 2,423 hours of volunteer service were donated in fiscal 2002-03.

Our volunteer staff ring up sales at the Gold Mine Resale Shop, assist with agency mailings, serve on the Board of Directors, support families at the Safe Home, and answer the 24-hour crisis phone line, do facility upkeep and maintenance, style hair and provide makeovers at the Safe Home and other important tasks.

National Volunteer Week, April 18-24, offers a unique opportunity for the Women's Resource Center and the community to express sincere appreciation to all those individuals who so generously give of themselves to improve the world for others. Volunteers have always played an important role in the success of Women's Resource Center programs and have directly supported thousands of service recipients over the past 27 years. This added support ultimately benefits the many families served by the WRC in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Thank you to all the WRC volunteers who have shared your skills with our agency and community over the years. Your compassion and hard work continue to improve the lives of many individuals and families in Northern Michigan.

Point made, now what to do with money?

Editor:

It must be nice to have one's personal interests served and paid for when one is a member of the Charlevoix City Council. Case in point, Shirley Gibson's beef with her neighbor whose boat gave her the willies when she looked out her front window.

One can only imagine how disturbing and inconvenient it must be for Ms. Gibson to gaze upon such an abomination day in and day out. So outrageous, in fact, that she paid an attorney almost two grand to interpret a city ordinance to her satisfaction in order to arm herself with the facts so that she could confront her neighbor.

What makes this personal tragedy worse is that she submitted her attorney's bill to the city for us ignorant taxpayers to reimburse her because of the principle of the thing. A dangerous precedent had been set by the counsel's decision to reimburse the planning commissioners' lawyer fees, and she had a point to make.

Well, Ms. Gibson, you made your point. So now what are your going to do with your $1,800? Since money was never the issue, perhaps a charitable contribution to the City of Charlevoix would be in order.

Fight Wal-Mart

Editor:

What a great article Jeremy McBain wrote. He is so right. Hang in there all you people who are fighting to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful." How dare any company the size of Wal-Mart come and take over a town that they aren't even welcome in.

As far as the letter complaining about preemie's needs, would you want a monster like Wal-Mart to come in just to supply babies who will only need these special sizes for a couple months?

Petoskey is only 15 miles away. How difficult is that?

Just keep fighting. As far as the other small towns around Charlevoix they will certainly be Ghost Towns. Fight. Fight. Fight.

Chamber orchestra to present concert

The Great lakes Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Matthew Hazelwood, will present a concert featuring Julie Schleif, horn, in Mozart's Horn Concerto number three.

The orchestra will also perform Beethoven's First Symphony, and the "Peterboro Letters Suite" by Lynn Palmer Warren.

Schleif, who teaches horn at Interlochen Arts Academy, is recognized internationally as a soloist in Europe, South America and India. She graduated from Gustavus Adolphus College, earned her Master of Music Degree at Michigan State University and has continued her doctoral studies at Arizona State University.

The Peterboro Letters Suite, composed by Lynn Palmer Warren, is a tone poem inspired by a set of lithographs by Betty Beebe. Beebe discovered the letters in a Traverse area barn and was captivated by the unfolding story of a mother and her long-lost son.

Beebe, a well-known artist and illustrator, created the nine lithographs, incorporating portions of the letters. Warren composed the suite in 1987 and the work's premiere performances were given by the Northland Chamber Orchestra in Traverse City and Petoskey in 1988.

Warren is a professional musician living near Lansing where she serves as music director for Riverwalk Theatre and performs as an accompanist for soloists and choirs. Her latest compositions are sacred works for solo voice and for chorus.

The Peterboro Letters lithographs will be on display at the Crooked Tree Art Center's Edith Gilbert Gallery opening May 13.

Beethoven's First Symphony was introduced in April 1800. His use of wind instruments and the dynamic energy he created far exceeded his predecessors, Haydn and Mozart.

Concerts will be given at 7:30 p.m., May 1 at the First Presbyterian Church of Harbor Springs, and at 4 p.m., May 2, at the Cross in the Woods in Indian River.

Tickets are $12 for adults and $ 8 for students and are available at the Crooked Tree Arts Center, local bookstores and at the door.

Loeb Road project causes concerns about aquifer

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

The rezoning process that could make way for a dense housing development off Loeb Road is back on track.

In the fall of 2003, Charlevoix resident Wayne Boss and his family members who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC, filed a request with the Marion Township Board to rezone land they own from agricultural to R-1, single family residential, to make way for 85 "affordable" home sites.

The request applies to two parcels totaling 53 acres, both fronting on Loeb Road around where it intersects with Veenstra Road. The development plan for the site includes lots that would be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. Boss said he is aiming to keep prices under $120,000.

In November, the Marion Township Board delayed that rezoning request when it hired a consultant to evaluate soil and water suitability at the site

Last week, the tests that were done by Performance Engineers of Charlevoix, were completed. The findings were presented by engineers, Aaron Nordman and Jim Malewitz, to the Marion Township Planning Commission Monday night, April 26.

The information they reviewed with the commission showed that they found an adequate supply of water for individual wells to be drilled to service the homes.

The soil study, which looks at whether the land can support on-site septic systems for each individual home, came away with different results for the two parcels. The engineers found that soil on the north site is better suited for higher density development like what Boss is proposing. On the south site, they found more variation in the soil which would make it less suitable for this type of development in some areas.

The engineering report states, "Although both sites could reasonably be rezoned to the R-1 district, the township would then be relying on the local health department to limit development on the south site through approval of the individual septic and well sites. This course of action would most likely result in a lower density than what is shown on the plan presented for the south site by the Legacy Development Group, but places the responsibility for the protection of the environment and public health on the health department, instead of controlling development density with zoning."

At the meeting, Boss concurred with this report. He told the commission that the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department, and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality would never approve an on-site septic system where the soil is questionable and he doesn't plan to use those areas.

One concern the report highlights is a shallow well that is about 50 feet deep located across the street from the proposed development which could be polluted if that high density of septic systems was permitted.

A second evaluation of the report, which was done by Ball Environmental Associates of Traverse City, suggests the shallow well be monitored for nitrates or deepened to ensure a long-term, high quality water supply.

The shallow well discussion prompted three other residents who live near the proposed development to also claim shallow wells.

Bob Wojan, whose four-acre parcel abuts the proposed development, said his well is about 54 feet deep and he's worried about what the project could do to his drinking water.

"If they come in and put all those septic tanks in, without knowing what it will do to the aquifer, it will be too late. Once they do it and the problem is there it's too late. I want to keep them to what the land can handle," he said.

The engineering group plans to further investigate the possibility of shallow wells in the surrounding area and bring this information back to the commission at its May 25 meeting.

Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan plans to submit a report based on the information the engineering group found and the rezoning request. The Planning Commission will use this information and the additional well information from the engineers to help make its decision as to whether or not to recommend approval of the request to the township board.

Commission chairman Tim Matchett said they are planning to make that recommendation at the next meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m., May 25 at the township hall off Marion Center Road.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission will then review the request and make its recommendation. And then the township board will review it and make the final decision.

Wojan and other project opponents, which he estimated to include about 100 people, plan to stress the septic tank limitations for that area that are outlined in the township's land use plan. He claims the area they plan to develop has a high vulnerability to be contaminated if multiple on-site septic systems are installed.

"I'm not fighting it (the development). There is a need for affordable places to buy in this area. We are in a resort area — everything is high dollar. So we're not against them developing their land — it's just the density," he said. "I rely on this water. Don't come in and pollute the aquifer and take the money and leave. Once that aquifer is destroyed it will take a long time to repair itself."

City may provide land for skate park

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The undeniable draw of children to ice cream will likely be the deal breaker for the Charlevoix Community Skate Park group and Charlevoix Public Schools, but there is still hope for the group.

The group approached the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education April 12 requesting the use of a fenced in area the school owns adjacent to Charlevoix Middle School as a temporary location for a skate park.

The board asked that the group present a written proposal complete with liability insurance information to the board's building and grounds committee for their review.

At the Charlevoix City Council meeting April 19, council gave the group their support and voted to include them under the city's liability insurance.

The building and grounds committee met April 21 to review the details of the request. The proposal included the skate park group cleaning up the site and staffing the facility.

While all the skate park group's ducks were in a row as to what would happen within the fenced in area, the building and grounds committee wasn't convinced the site's proximity to Dairy Queen would be safe.

"It would be a recipe for disaster there. The site is centered around an obvious draw on the other side of the highway," school board president and build and grounds committee member Dennis Halverson said. "The overriding issue is it had the ability to compromise the safety of our young people and with that in mind we weren't prepared to recommend that location to the board."

The board will review the committee's recommendation and make the final call on the issue at its meeting May 10.

This site was being considered as the temporary home for a skate park. It's proximity to Dairy Queen will likely nix the plan. But a site at the former Charlevoix Middle School is being considered.

clude the Mount McSauba area, the former middle school property and the old skate board area at Shanahan Field in Charlevoix Township.

This line of thinking was shared by city manager Mike Wiesner who contacted parent coordinator Vicki Daman last week with good news.

Wiesner told Daman he doesn't envision the old middle school property off Grant Street as an ideal long-term location but is looking into it as a temporary site. The area being considered is off Mason Street where portable classrooms and concrete basketball courts are located.

"We're really excited. There were a lot of negatives to the other site — it was small and right across from Dairy Queen," Daman said.

Wiesner said final approval of this site is needed by city council which will consider the request at its meeting May 3.

Daman is hoping council will give them the go ahead and the facility will be up and running by June.

The city owns the former middle school property. They purchased it in 2003 to use it for marina overflow parking and to sell most of it to the Charlevoix Public Library.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of the 13 lots there for $488,460 if voters pass the bond in June. From there the library project will renovate and expand the old middle school, where it plans to relocate.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said she doesn't see the temporary skate park as having any impact on the project.

While this temporary plan is moving forward the group has not forgotten its quest for a permanent home which they are hoping will be discovered in the city's upcoming Mount McSauba feasibility study.

For information on the Charlevoix group's drive to bring a skate park to town or to donate, visit www.planner.eskal8.org or call Daman at 547-8063.

Smeltania to be focus of speech

The history of Smeltania will be presented by the Charlevoix Historical Society.

This history is a part of the history of Charlevoix that many residents participated in though the 1930s and 1940s, until it ceased in the 1950s.

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be presenting Bob Morgridge at 7 p.m., Tuesday, May 4, at the Historic Depot, at the end of East Dixon Avenue to talk about this time in history.

The public is invited to attend this program, at no charge to learn more of Charlevoix's history.

Just as the Depression hit in 1929, a unique sight sprang up every winter on the ice just outside Boyne City — a city composed of fish shanties, as many as 300, placed there to take advantage of the huge annual smelt run up the Boyne River. This temporary community on the frozen tip of Lake Charlevoix's north arm became known as Smeltania.

While many who traveled there for the fishing treated the assemblage with a great deal of levity and hyperbole, to many others it was a serious business because each smelt brought in one cent when gutted and frozen for shipment downstate. One hundred smelt, or one dollar per day, could feed a family during those rough years.

For additional information, please contact the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-0373.

Gerbers make sweet treats for area consumers

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Gerber family has found a way to get together and make some money with their homemade candy business.

The Gerber's, a Charlevoix family of five, make mostly chocolate-covered treats for sale out of a building on their property in Hayes Township. They run a state certified kitchen that cranks out seven different kinds of candies that are sold in area grocery stores.

They are not licensed to sell the candy out of their manufacturing facilities, which is their home.

According to Jerry Gerher, he and his wife, Laureen, wanted their children to stay home instead working in their teenage years.

"We thought we would do something here as a family," Laureen said.

Jerry and Laureen's children are: Serena, 17; Sovina, 17 and Samuel, 16. Each helps out with making the candy.

Jerry said it takes about three days to make the candy, including packaging and labeling the different kinds. The candies are sold in Don's IGA, Oleson's Market and Grullers Farm Supply in Charlevoix.

The varieties of candy are: Maple Peanut Clusters, Peanut Clusters, Pecan Clusters, Peanut Butter Patties, Cashew Crunch, Chocolate Covered Cashew Crunch and Coconut Mounds.

Jerry said the family is planning on eventually selling their goods in more stores in the area. He does not expect to explain their product line until this summer with some new types of candy.

Jerry also said they have considered making sugar free candies for people with diabetes.

"But, we haven't gotten that far yet," he said.

The Gerbers can be contacted by calling (231) 348-3743.

Mary Beth Kur announces candidacy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur is officially throwing her hat in the ring for another term.

Mary Beth Kur

Kur, 41, announced her candidacy for re-election on the republican ticket last week. As of this time, she will face former Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Jarema, also a republican, for the seat.

Since both Kur and Jarema are running in the same party, this election could be decided in the August primary, if no other parties make a run for the seat.

Kur has been with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office since 1993. She has been the county prosecutor since 1995.

"Our goal in the prosecutor's office is to continue providing aggressive, but fair, prosecution of criminals, while staying within the budget set for us by the board of commissioners," Kur said in a press release announcing her candidacy.

In her tenure as county prosecutor, Kur has many successes to boast about.

During her time she has turned back over $134,000 in unused funds to the county's general fund and her office was one of only four in the sate chosen for a pilot project aimed at reducing domestic violence — the money obtained from this has resulted in the hiring of a Special Assistant Attorney General for Charlevoix county, Mike Findlay, who specializes in domestic violence prosecution.

Using grant money she has also been able to fund a child support unit, increased drug enforcement and a victims rights unit.

In her trial work, she has taken on a mix of high profile, complex felony cases. She added in her release she has never had a conviction reversed by an appeals court.

"Over the past 11 years, I have been a successful advocate in court for crime victims, for children who have been neglected or abused and for all the citizens of Charlevoix County," she said in her release. "I want to continue my service to the public because we make a difference. While we cannot undo the effects of violent crime, a conviction can give victims some peace of mind and allow them to move ahead with life. Being a part of that process is very gratifying To me."

However, Jarema has already been on the attack against Kur. He claims Kur and her office has misused county funds and she makes her assistant prosecutors handle most of the cases.

Kur said this is simply not true on either count.

On the misuse of funds charge, regardless of the fact that she turned in unused money to the county's general fund, Kur said, "Those are very serious allegations and if my opponent feels he has credible evidence of that going on in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, I would encourage him to take that to the proper authorities."

As for her taking on cases, Kur said the many trails she has been the lead prosecutor in are on public record.

"Anyone who is interested in verifying the validity of that claim can look at public records throughout my career," she said.

Kur said, while Jarema has been on the attack already, she does not intend to "go down that path."

Kur has a hachelors degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from the University of Detroit School of Law.

She lives in Charlevoix Township with her husband of 19 years, Steve, and their two teenage children. She is a member of the Lions club, the State Bar of Michigan, the Charlevoix Emmet Bar Association and she performs periodically with the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra as a cellist.

Soccer team has competitive week of action

The Charlevoix Rayders girls soccer team easily handled East Jordan, fell to Harhor Springs and met their match at Big Rapids.

First, Charlevoix notched their first win of the young season with a convincing win over East Jordan shutting them out 10-0.

In the win against the Red Devils the Rayders managed 28 shots, 17 on East Jordan's keeper.

Six different Rayders scored in the contest. Senior Shayna Drost had four goals and two assists. Junior Jaime Pettis had two goals and two assists. Alyssia McDonough score a goal and an assist. And single goals were tallied by Meghan Lame, Madison McKenzie and freshman Zita Anderson. Other assists came from McKenzie, Sarah Cross and freshman Anna Farrell.

The Rayders player of the game was freshman Theresa Potter who played strong defense in her first start.

Then the Rayders faced a tough opponent, Harbor Springs.

The match took place April 22 at Charlevoix High School's new field. It was a windy day for a soccer match-up, but the Rams were able to control the first half of the game and held on for the 3-1 win over Charlevoix.

Harbor scored on a defensive miscue early before the Rayders regrouped and settled down. Then, Harbor scored again midway through the half. They finished their scoring for the night on another defensive miscue resulting in a indirect free kick right in front of the Charlevoix net. The Rams capitalized on a restart before the Rayders could get set.

The second half was a different story as Charlevoix began stepping up to the more experienced Harbor squad. After several chances, the Rayders finally scored with a minute remaining, breaking Harbor's shutout streak.

The score happened when McDonough won a ball in Harbor's end and sent a nice long ball up the right touchline to Drost. Drost took on two Harbor defenders and with her speed and two nice moves got into the open and drained the net past a lunging Harbor keeper.

Charlevoix received outstanding defensive efforts from Cross and sophomore Stevie Murray, who was awarded the Rayders Player of the Game ball. Sophomore keeper Laura Nitchman recovered from an uneasy start to record 16 saves, snatching several corner kicks out of the air.

"We learned in the second half what it takes to beat Harbor. We plan to see them again twice more this season," head coach Carol Madison said.

Then, Charlevoix traveled to Big Rapids April 24 for a non-conference game that was a close match for Charlevoix.

The Rayders tied the Big Rapids Cardinals 1-1 in a very physical match. Charlevoix out shot Big Rapids 14-8 but Big Rapids was able to capitalize first for the half-time lead.

But in the second half, Charlevoix did a better job controlling the midfield and working the ball up to the attackers. With 15 minutes left in the game Drost sent a cross to Madison Ramsey who faked out the goalkeeper to score. Cross did an outstanding job of winning 50/50 balls in the midfield to keep the Rayders attacking and was awarded Rayders Player of the Game. Freshman Laura Dupuis and Farrell contributed well and continue to show improvement in their play. Nitchman had five saves in goal.

Charlevoix is 1-2 in the conference. The Rayders traveled to Grayling for a conference game Monday. The results of that match-up werc not in by press time.

Baseball team opens conference season with win

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders opened their Lake Michigan Conference schedule in impressive fashion, sweeping rival East Jordan, 2-1 and 6-2.

"It was some of the best baseball we've seen in Charlevoix in quite some time," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "We limited our mistakes and we were opportunistic offensively."

Good things happen when you put the ball in play and put pressure on the other team.

Matt Burtt led off the game with a single and Russell Williams followed with a two-run home run.

That would prove to be all Rayder pitcher Jake Teuscher would need as he scattered six hits in a six inning complete game. Teuscher walked two and struck out two.

Ezra Bakker also singled for the Rayders in the pitchers duel.

Tyler Bier picked up a complete game win of his own in game two, yielding only two hits and two walks while striking out four.

Eddie Waldron was the hitting hero with a three-for-three performance, a double, two stolen bases and three runs scored.

"It was a breakout game," said Hawkins.

Williams doubled and drove in a run. Burtt was one-for-two with a sacrifice fly and three RBIs. Michael Wojan singled and scored a run.

Charlevoix fell to Elk Rapids, 9-1 in a rain-shortened contest earlier this week.

"The pivotal moment was early in the game when (pitcher) Jake Teuscher took a line drive off the knee and played the rest of the way in pain," Hawkins said. "He wasn't quite the same after that and for the rest of the team, seeing one of our best players struggle and with the weather, they didn't mentally gut it out the way we'd like."

Teuscher took the pitching loss. Chris Waha pitched well in relief but the game was out of hand by the time he entered the game.

The Rayders (3-4 overall, 2-1 conference) hosted Ellsworth on Tuesday, April 27 hut results were unavailable at presstime. Charlevoix returns to conference action on Thursday, April 29 at Harbor Springs.

Forum on No Child Left Behind Act to be April 29 at high school

A community forum on the No Child Left Behind law is set for 7 p.m., Thursday, April 29, at the Charlevoix Middle School with a panel discussion and a question-and-answer session. The No Child Left Behind Act was signed into law by President George W. Bush in January 2002.

Parents and other community members are invited to attend this timely forum to relate their experiences with the law and to hear how school administrators and teachers are attempting to meet the requirements of the law.

Jane Bailey, director of Teaching and Learning at Petoskey Public Schools, will lead the panel and present a power point demonstration. Other speakers will be Dianne Litzenburger of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and several teachers. Under No Child Left Behind, states and schools are limited to using test scores as a detemination of success. The National Education Association proposes to allow states to use growth models that acknowledge progress in student achievement both over time and within the school year.

The forum is sponsored by the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel. It is organized by the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

Rayders Softball team loses double-header

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders softball team had a tough week on the diamond, losing both ends of a doubleheader to East Jordan, 10-0 and 7-3, and falling to Elk Rapids, 9-2 in a rain-shortened contest.

Nicole Higdon made her varsity pitching debut in the opener against the Red Devils and took the loss despite three strikeouts.

"Nicole did a tremendous job pitching," coach Liz Grunch said. "Unfortunately our defense let us down."

The offense also struggled as the Rayders were held hitless.

In the nightcap, Jessica Pettis had two hits as did Sally Haselschwardt, one of them a double. Brittany Niswander doubled and Amanda Boss, Gen Kochanny and Andrea Ruhlman all singled.

"We had opportunities," Grunch said. "We had the bases loaded twice but we just couldn't get the key hit."

Monica Cornell took the pitching loss.

Against Elk Rapids, Cornell and Pettis had the only Charlevoix hits and Cornell took the loss.

The Rayders (1-6 overall, 0-3 conference) play at Harbor Springs on Thursday, April 29.

NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Resolution service celebrating 15 years

Fifteen years ago, the state of Michigan enacted legislation that established the Citizen Dispute Resolution Program (CDRP).

The purpose of this program is to ease the court burden by providing mediation, an alternative means of resolving conflict. Mediation is a process in which the parties in disagreement come together to discuss their differences of opinion.

With the facilitation of a mediator, the parties come up with their own solution to the disagreement. Mediation is an economical, efficient and effective means of settling disputes.

The year 2004 marks the tenth anniversary of Northern Community Mediation (NCM), one of 21 Citizen Dispute Resolution Program centers in Michigan. In celebration of this event, the three previous executive directors of NCM met and reflected upon the changes in the organization since its inception.

Celia Partida, who served from 1994 to 1996, saw a natural fit between her commitment to conflict resolution, violence prevention and the goals of NCM. As the part-time executive director, she started with only a telephone and an answering machine.

She "never thought it would grow into what it has become."

In 1996, Kathy Lame agreed to serve as interim executive director. What was to be a three-month commitment turned into a three-year responsibility. Lame was able to add an "office the size of a closet" to the telephone and answering machine.

She was faced with "a huge educational piece in order to make a go of it" and "establishing that Northern Community Mediation was legitimate."

When Lame decided to become the Director of the Child Abuse and Neglect Program for NCM in 1999, Maartje Nolan took over as executive director. During her leadership, Nolan continued extending the services of NCM and expanded the office in general.

According to Nolan, "My challenge...was to maintain the integrity of the process and the quality of the service...as well as to increase the case load."

All three agreed that going from five phone calls a month in 1994 to handling approximately 330 cases in 2003 was "mind boggling." Partida attributed much of this growth to the fact that "our courts are top of the line and are willing to look at and invest in new ideas." Nolan added, "This is a testament to the quality of people who live in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties and their willingness to be proactive."

All three women envision mediation's becoming "more of a household word" and that Northern Community Mediation's ultimate purpose is to improve the quality of life for the citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Lame summarized the tone of the meeting when she said, "It would be nice if people would think in terms of 'I am going to mediate you rather than I am going to sue you. Mediation would be the first place you would go to resolve a conflict rather than the last place."

Anyone interested in learning more about Northern Community Mediation should contact Dr. Jane Millar at (231) 487-1771.

Federal grand jury indicts former housing employees

Two former employees of the now defunct Charlevoix-Emmet Housing Coalition (C-EHC) based in Walloon Lake Village were indicted on April 20, 2004 by a federal grand jury for the Western District of Michigan, according to Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater.

Yvonne M. Howery, 40, formerly of Boyne City was indicted for embezzlement of over $80,000 from the Charlevoix-Emmet Housing Coalition . Victoria A. Morgan, 38, of Alanson has also been indicted for aiding and abetting Howery in the same embezzlement scheme.

The Charlevoix-Emmet Housing Coalition received a majority of its funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Both of the above charges are felonies punishable by up to five years in federal prison and $250,000 fine plus restitution. The indictments came after a lengthy investigation by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and a special agent from the FBI Field Office in Traverse City.

Additional arrests/indictments are anticipated in this on-going investigation.

Morgan had previously been convicted in Charlevoix County Circuit Court in 2003 relating to multiple counts of embezzlement and check forgery also involving C-EHC money and materials.

Methodist church to host Linda Rice concert May 11

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church will host a concert by Linda Rice on Tuesday, May 11, at 7 p.m.

Linda Rice is the only female "Gospel" harpist in the world with a full-time touring schedule. She plays 100 concerts every year in churches and prisons (federal and state) throughout the United States.

Rice will play 60 concerts behind bars in 2004. She travels with her blue harp, electronic equipment, and her husband, Willis.

Rice and her French Camac Electric Harp bring new definition to the world of harp music.

The new electric/acoustic harp amplifies her sound and allows her to add special effects. Rice takes the familiar "Gospel" tunes and reshapes them with rhythmic twists and fresh meaning.

The church is located at 104 State Street in Charlevoix. For more information, please call the church at 547-2654. There will be no admission charge, a free will offering will be taken at the conclusion of the program.

Crooked Tree to host exhibit of Beeby's work

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Visual Arts Series continues with the exhibition of the work of Betty Beeby in the Edith Gilbert Gallery.

The show opens with a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 13 and runs through June 26.

Beeby graduated from Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York. She is a Booth Scholarship winner, and has won three Chicago Book Clinic awards for best in bookmaking art.

Throughout her career, Beeby has worked as a staff artist for Time Life Magazine, Sequoia Press, Bahlman Art Studio, and CBS television's Captain Kangaroo Show. She has illustrated numerous books including "Daisy: The Story of a Horse" by Louise Jean Walker, "Whistle Up the Bay," by Nancy Stone, and "The Silver Trumpet," by Owen Barfield. In 1974, Beeby was commissioned to paint a 50 foot mural of the Mackinac Bridge at Fort Michilimackinac in Mackinaw City.

A resident of Eastport Beeby has recently received recognition for her book, "Great Granny's Sturdy Stable Picnic Tables." The book will be available for purchase and booksigning at the opening.

The exhibit, titled "Above and Beyond" will include her early work, a dance series, 10 foot model of the Mackinac Bridge mural, winter watercolors and artwork created for the Captain Kangaroo show. Also in the exhibit will be Beeby's Peterboro lithographs, based upon a series of letters the artist discovered years ago.

A musical piece based upon Beeby's work and the story of the Peterboro letters was written by Lynn Palmer. The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra will perform the Peterboro Suite at 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 13, at Crooked Tree Arts Center. Tickets are $10.

Beeby has donated an etching to benefit the Crooked Tree Arts Center. The etching, titled "Magic" will be featured in a silent auction, beginning the evening of the opening reception, May 13 and closing at the performance by the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra on June 13.

For more information, please contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center, 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. The arts center receives annual support from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Charlevoix Senior Center to celebrate its birthday

The Charlevoix Senior Center will be celebrating its birthday with a luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on May 5.

This will be in conjunction with the center's breaking ground for a much needed and long awaited addition to the present kitchen facilities.

A capital campaign for funds to build the addition and furnish it completely has been implemented. It is estimated that the addition plus new cabinets, stoves, dishwashers, and others will cost approximately $100,000 and will enable the Charlevoix Senior Center to serve many more seniors.

The public is invited to the lunch. Cost is $3 for seniors over 60 and $4.50 for those under 60. Please bring a birthday card to help the center celebrate.

A monetary contribution (tax deductible) in the card will be appreciated. Contributions may be anonymous, if desired.

The Charlevoix Senior Center serves as a community center for all, including lunches and various free classes.

Firedrill performed at county jail

Sheriff George T. Lasater and Jail Administrator Babbette Meggison said on Tuesday, April 20, 2004 several local agencies were dispatched to the Charlevoix County Jail to execute a planned evacuation/fire drill.

Correction officers evacuated 25 inmates from three different cells to a secure location within the facility and supervised them for the duration of the drill. Two off-duty correction officers participated in the drill acting as unconscious, smoke-inhalation victims.

The Charlevoix City Police blocked off Grant Street to assist the fire department in setting up their equipment during the drill, and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputies assisted with security. The Charlevoix City Fire Department then rescued victims and suppressed the imitation fire. The EMS unit was on the scene in the event their services were required, and also to simulate treatment to the victims.

CCE Central Dispatch Authority dispatched the three different agencies and kept a record of the times.

Following the drill, a tour of the jail was arranged by the correction staff for everyone involved to provide the different agencies with a more thorough knowledge of the layout of the facility.

The drill was a resounding success, and Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to thank everyone involved, especially the efforts of the correction officers who planned and coordinated the training event.

Drills of this type give involved personnel the opportunity to obtain valuable experience, which enhances their preparedness and skills in the event of an actual disaster.

City working with MDEQ to avoid big fines not take place and other instances when proper protocol wasn't followed.

The investigation uncovered bench sheets where initial readings of the treated water are recorded before the data is put into a computer system where a report for the state is generated. But the MDEQ crew saw that numbers on these bench sheets didn't match the report and in some cases the bench sheets had been doctored or erased.

"I just don't know why the operator felt it was necessary to falsify the report. I guess he was just trying to make the plant look good," Richard Shoemaker, the senior environmental quality analyst with the surface water quality division of the MDEQ said.

Shoemaker declined to name the operator he alluded to.

He said one problem at the plant was that unnamed staff members were overfeeding chlorine into the treatment process. In the contact tank the water needs to mix with chlorine for 30 minutes to kill the bacteria. Shoemaker said that instead of giving the water the time it needed, an unnamed person was just adding more chlorine.

"There was too much chlorine going out," he said.

He said the high concentration of chlorine that was discharged to Lake Michigan probably killed some zebra muscles around the discharge line but wouldn't have killed any fish. He said chlorine at that concentration dissolves in minutes and quickly breaks down once it is discharged out into the Lake Michigan.

"It certainly wouldn't have affected the drinking water plant (located just over one mile away)," he said.

He said aside from over treating with chlorine, the plant also had pump problems.

While these problems did exist and result in violations of the city's permit through the state, Shoemaker said there was no need for the city to be in the hot water it's in now.

"Had staff at the plant been forthright in the first place we would have worked with them. It wouldn't have escalated right away to this enforcement action," Shoemaker said.

But now the wheels of that civil enforcement action are turning and it could mean major money for the city. According to a letter from Selden to Wiesner written April 9, the city may be subject to a maximum penalty of $25,000 per violation per day and there are over 80 violations.

In a response letter from city counsel Ordway he requests that the MDEQ give the city more time to investigate and correct the problems.

"This will not only allow the city to demonstrate further its good intentions and ability to manage the WWTP (wastewater treatment plant) in a professional and compliant manner, but also will encourage all other entities to self-report and correct violations rather than attempt to hide or ignore them to avoid enforcement penalties," he wrote. "It is not in the public interest to burden the citizens of Charlevoix with additional costs, either for defense or in connection with fines or penalties."

The MDEQ has not responded as to whether it will give the city more time.

Early this month the city hired Tim Truax, a Traverse City based consultant, to identify problems at the plant and to make recommendations as to how to solve them. Wiesner said next month the city also plans to bring on John Adams an engineer from Ann Arbor.

"We don't want to just look at the DEQ's concerns and solve them. I want to look at the whole operation and put it under the microscope and give the community direction where it should go in the future," Wiesner said.

Future plans for the plant as things stand right now are for a $1.5 million expansion in 2006 that will give the city 200,000 gallons a day of greater capacity. Funding for the expansion will come from $3,000 tap in fees paid by customers outside the city.

But Wiesner said this may not even be the direction the city needs to take.

"With the irregularities we've become aware of it seemed like a good approach to relook at all the assumptions we've made and see if the facts we based our expansion plans on have to be revised and we have to change our direction," he said.

Wiesner said as far as he knows the plant is currently meeting the state discharge standards. The acting supervisor there is now Jim Caldwell.

Sam Creswell was the superintendent for both the water and wastewater treatment plants at the time the alleged falsification occurred. On March 17 Wiesner discussed suspending Creswell, the plant superintendent of almost 30 years. Wiesner would not comment as to the grounds for the proposed suspension because it is a personnel issue.

The Charlevoix wastewater treatment plant.

Instead of that suspension becoming effective, Creswell opted to retire effective March 17. He gave his retirement notice to Wiesner's office on March 22.

According to Creswell the retirement was not related to the investigation. He said he recently turned 60 and it was time to leave the "high stress job."

A criminal investigation has also been conducted in this matter. Detective Woods has passed that information along to the state attorney general's office. Shoemaker said now it's up to the attorney general's office to pursue the issue through the courts. He said it could take months before charges are filed or it goes to court. If convicted for falsifying reports to the state, Shoemaker said the individuals being investigated could face jail time and fines.

He would not say specifically who was being investigated.

SCRAPBOOK

A History of the Charlevoix School

Given before the Kiwanis Club by Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall, June 4th, 1940, at the request of M.A. Levinson

For information about the early history of the Charlevoix schools we are largely indebted to Mrs. M. F. Stockman, who came here with her husband in 1857. In 1911, at the request of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Mrs. Stockman prepared her "Reminiscences of Pioneer Life," in which the schools were described at length. (This source material is available at the City Library.)

The first school house in Charlevoix, or Pine River as it was then called, was erected in the fall of 1861. It was sixteen feet square and built of logs chinked with moss and mud. It had a shake roof (that means oak staves two feet long fastened down by saplings) and split logs of basswood, split side up, for the floor.

There were three windows, each with 6 lights of 8 by 10 glass. There were benches on three sides for the large scholars, and two small benches for the smaller children. This building was located in the vicinity of the present Belvedere Hotel site.

Mrs. Stockman became the first teacher at a salary of $1 per week. She also taught again in the summer of 1862. She says in her Reminiscences: "Number of scholars enrolled: Between 20 and 30...Ages from 3 to 20. Most of them had never been to school before, therefore did not know what school was except by name... Books of various kinds and dates were brought for use, books used by their fathers and mothers and some old enough to have been used by their grandparents...Parents thought the books they used were good enough for their children. There being no public money, each parent paid according to the number of children sent to school, the term being three months...Most of the parents paid me for their children's' schooling. Some promised to pay, moved away and are owing me yet."

A man named Crandall taught in the winter of 1862-3, but the school house was found to be too cold and open for winter use, and after that there was summer school only. Miss Celia Moses, Miss Greenman, Miss Newell and Miss Davis were among the summer teachers in the first school house. Miss Davis was only 14 years old when she taught.

By 1867 it was conceded the old long school house had had its day and should be replaced by a larger and better one. Mrs. Stockman says: "As the men were busy and not disposed to take it in hand, the ladies go together, appointed a committee and decided that we would hold a fair with supper as the best means to make a beginning."

The weather was unpropitious on the date set for the fair, but it was held just the same and the settlers came from far and near. Articles for sale were auctioned off. There was a grab-bag, 5 cents a grab, and a post office. Almost everyone received one or two letters at 5 cents each and the public reading of these missives caused much merriment. An oyster supper was served at $2 a couple and the affair ended with a dance.

Seventy-five dollars was realized and expended in the spring of 1868 toward a new school house, which was a frame building erected near the corner of State and Antrim streets. It was afterwards sold and made into a dwelling. (The house occupied by the Radle family at 403 Mason street is said to be the remodeled school building.)

That fall E. H.. Green was the first teacher in the building just mentioned. He had located here to practice law, but needed to piece out his income in other ways. He received $4 a week for his services, a portion of which was paid in flour and potatoes. Miss Lottie Ainsley and Bryon See were other teachers of this period.

In June, 1872, the district purchased the easterly six lots of the present school site, and the next year a third and larger school house was built with four rooms, two above and two below. At first only the lower rooms were used and A. R. Upright and F. W. Mayne were the teachers.

Both the Methodist and Congregational people used this building as a meeting place until their churches were erected. (This is the last mention of the schools in Mrs. Stockman's Reminiscences and brings the story down to 1885.)

While not a part of the public school system, it is of interest to know that a kindergarten was conducted in 1886 and 1887 by Mrs. George Guyles and Miss Rose M. Cody in a house on the south side of Park avenue near Bridge street.

The school house built in 1873 on the present site was burned down, probably in 1887. Until another building could be erected, the High School assembled in the court house and the grades were taught in various places, among which was the basement of the new Baptist church.

The fourth school house, erected in 1889, was built of white brick. It was first called Union School, but somewhere along the way the name was changed to Central Building. This is no longer used except for band practice and storage.

Nov. 28, 1899 (according to the Sentinel) a social was advertised to be held at the home of Myron Geer to raise money to buy a bell for the school. We do not know how successful this venture was, but we do know the first bell developed a crack and was replaced. About 10 years ago the second bell was removed as the old tower had become too weak to support it.

In the summer of 1895 the district purchased sites for the Washington school on the north side of Petoskey avenue, and the Lincoln school on the south side of Garfield avenue, and erected on them identical 2-room one-story buildings. These were used for school purposes until 1928, and have since been given over to the Health Unit and American Legion respectively.

In 1901 the building known as the McKinley High School was erected south of the Central Building and is still used as the high school.

St. Mary's Parochial School was built in 1902, and provides secular and religious education for Catholic children from the first to eighth grades inclusive. It is supervised by the County School Commissioner.

Oct. 12, 1912, the athletic field adjacent to the Lincoln school site was purchased.

In the spring of 1920 the Board of Education began to acquire title to the six lots west of the valley school site. The last purchase was that of the Stewart property, made March 22, 1926. This gave the district 12 lots with frontage on Mason, Grant and Clinton streets.

The need for more room and especially a gymnasium and auditorium, had been apparent for several years, and it was by vote of the people at an school meeting that the additional ground was purchased with a building project in view, and the board was authorized to establish a sinking fund to be available when the time was ripe to build.

Two different building propositions were submitted and voted down in 1926, but finally on April 12, 1927, a bond issue for $125,000, payable over a period of 15 years, was authorized. There are still two payments to be met on the bonds, $10,500 on Jan. 1, 1941 and $10,500 on Jan. 1, 1942. A citizens committee worked with the board of Education to help crystalize public opinion. A grade building and combined gymnasium and auditorium had been agreed upon as best suited to the needs of the district. The Washington and Lincoln schools would be discontinued, and transportation furnished during the winter months for the pupils living in the outskirts.

On the left, the McKinley High School and on the right, The Central Building. Story compiled by Cynthia Postmus on behalf of the Charlevoix Public Library.

The new building was completed in the spring of 1928, and dedication exercises were held May 3 and 4 under the joint auspices of the Board of Education and the Parent-Teacher Association. Webster H. Pearce, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was the speaker on the occassion.

The cost of the new building, exclusive of furniture, was about $165,000. The assessed valuation of the district at that time was $3,648,375.00. The present valuation is $2,731,716.00 almost a million dollars less.

The school enrollment when the new building was opened was 621 and 23 teachers were employed. The present enrollment is 592 and there are 19 teachers on the staff.

Charlevoix City and Township School District No. 1 is a graded school district. The first class of five graduated in 1888. This year's class numbered 48.

Many of the graduates through the years have gone on to higher institutions of learning, and Charlevoix High School has its full contingent of professional people out in the world.

Graduates of Charlevoix High are accepted without examination in the North Central Association of Colleges. An Examiner comes here every three years and checks up on the preparation and training of the teachers, also on the library, laboratory, and instructional equipment, and gives a certificate that the school is entitled to be on the accredited list.

For 30 years the Charlevoix County Normal Training School was a part of our school system. It opened Nov. 2, 1903, and was discontinued in 1933 when the state and county withdrew their support. There had come to be an over-supply of teachers in the state and a shortage of funds, so it was wise and necessary to discontinue some of the county normals. The state had been paying $3,000 per annum toward maintenance, and the county and district shared the balance equally, making the cost to the district light.

As County Normal credits were good toward a college degree, this training school gave the young people of this vicinity an opportunity for one year of higher education in addition to a certificate to teach. And about 30 of the elementary grade pupils were taught by the critic teacher, or under her supervision. Miss Pearl Bigge was principal, and Mrs. Gertrude Dick critic teacher for the last several years of the normal's existence. Mrs. Dick remained to take over the third grade, which she still teaches.

The Carnegie Library, built about 1910 is controlled by the Board of Education and serves both the schools and the public. Miss Minnie E. Payton has been librarian since 1917.

In the fall of 1926, the school band was organized with John TerWee as instructor. A. W. Rider, Robert Magor and Max Smith, who is now in charge, have in turn headed this department.

A Parent-Teacher Association was organized in April 1927, with Mrs. E. E. Cross as president. It did good work for a long-time, but ceased to function about four years ago when the president-elect failed to call a meeting in the fall.

It was in the winter of 1922-3 that a portion of the school grounds was first flooded for a skating rink for school children at the court house. The tennis courts were built in 1931.

MDEQ upset over responses in investigation agement projects, like storm sewer testing and mixing zone studies, but a St. Patrick's Day celebration isn't a reason for the department to allow it.

In the 10 interviews Vince Woods, a detective with the MDEQ's office of criminal investigation, has done in Charlevoix in regards to the incident, no one has named the guilty party, but clues have cropped up.

So far, they have found that an unnamed member of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors bought 20, four-ounce canisters of fluorescent green dye on the Internet about three weeks before St. Patrick's Day.

Shoemaker said the dye used is caustic and too much could cause harm. He explained the MDEQ is concerned about two things, the nearby intake valve for the city of Charlevoix's drinking water and its impact on the fish.

They also know that on St. Patrick's Day the dye was in a box in the lower level dining room at the Weathervane Restaurant with a note attached. That day, Weathervane Restaurant manager Jeff Spreckseil found the box and contacted the Coast Guard who contacted Shoemaker and asked about dying the channel. The Coast Guard was told the dye was not to be put in the water.

Spreckseil then contacted Linda Mason, a chamber board member who coordinated the Pub Crawl, and asked that it be removed from the restaurant.

"After that we don't know who she gave it to or when," Shoemaker said.

Woods interviewed chamber president Jacqueline Merta on April 20. She gave him the minutes from the chamber board's February meeting when the Pub Crawl planning committee reported that the DEQ did not approve the dye request.

Merta told Woods and Shoemaker that as far as she knew, that was the end of it.

Shoemaker told Merta that if the final interview with Mason, which will take place this week, doesn't turn up an answer, the MDEQ has enough information to drop the criminal investigation and file civil charges against the chamber.

"We know the chamber of commerce wanted to do it, purchased the dye and members talked about it when it went in," he said.

The penalty that could face the chamber is up to $25,000 a day for violating the state's water resource law which deals with discharging substances into the water without a permit.

Mason did not return calls by press time.

Merta declined to comment on the possible penalty her organization may face. But did say that the chamber had "absolutely nothing to do with it."

Shoemaker said the issue can still be resolved if the person who pulled the prank comes forward. He said the likely outcome would be a littering ticket, which carries a maximum fine of $500.

Either way, he is adamant about someone being held responsible.

"If we don't do anything about it, the next time someone wants to dump something into the river they'll say the DEQ doesn't follow through with enforcement. So we're going to follow through," he said.

Shoemaker has asked that anyone with information about the incident call his office at (989) 705-3424 or call Halverson at 547-3258. Anonymous calls will be accepted.

Baseball team could could face tough year

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix High School varsity baseball coach Bryan Hawkins is facing a challenging year.

With only two returning seniors on the varsity team and having to bring up three sophomores and a freshman, Hawkins said his team is pretty inexperienced this year, but he expects them to work hard.

"They are youthful, but have a lot of enthusiasm. They have a lot of passion for baseball. They are re al bascball guys," he said. "That is something you can't coach."

The returning seniors this year are Matt Burtt, who is a catcher, pitcher and third base; and Taylor Fisher, who plays center field.

But there are some bright spots. One of them being pitching.

"It is encouraging because we have depth at pitching. We have eight players who are capable of pitching. That is pretty deep for a high school team," he said.

Hawkins said his other strong area is hitting.

"They are really aggressive at the plate," he said.

But, fielding is going to be a concern for him.

"Being a youthful and inexperienced group, they will have a lot of challeng in getting ready to play defense at this level," Hawkins said.

The teams to beat this year are Kalkaska and Boyne City. Hawkins added Harbor Springs is pretty decent and looking to "climb the ladder."

Hawkins added, "The bottom line is I want to make sure we are improving on things we have done in the past. I want to improve the whole thing, from top to bottom."

Rebuilding year for softball

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to Charlevoix High School varsity softball coach Liz Grunch, this will be a rebuilding year for the team.

"We are young. Just under half of the team are underclassmen," she said. "This year we will be learning the basics of play."

With 12 players on the team, Grunch has seven seniors, five of which are returners.

They are:

- Andrea Ruhlman at third base. Grunch said she has good power and a nice glove.
- Amanda Boss is shortstop. Grunch said she is the best line drive hitter on the team.
- Jessica Pettis is catcher. Grunch said she has a lot of speed and good footwork.
- Denise Barta at first base. Grunch said she has good pick up.
- Nicole Higdon, who Grunch said is learning to pitch.

Grunch will also be returning Monica Cornell, who has missed the last few seasons due to various sicknesses.

As for the team as a whole, Grunch said she has not had a lot of team practices due to the spring weather, therefore she has not seen the team really work together yet.

But she said, "They are a good bunch of girls that I think are willing to put in the effort. They are going to need to work hard in order to be successful."

She said the team's strength is that attitude.

Grunch added she also has a lot of players that have some good potential. Such as Sasha Spencley, who she brought up as a freshman, but believes has a great glove and will do nice things for the team.

Grunch also said Genevieve Kochanny will be a nice addition to the team, as she is a force in the outfield.

"We always want to win, but I am looking at the big picture and improving the team," she said. "We want to be competitive and play with the teams. I think right now every team will be a challenge for us."

Plude to field well rounded squad

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With strong leadership and good experience, both the boys' and girls' track teams are expecting good seasons this year.

Ken Plude, the boys' coach, said, "We are going to be a good well-rounded team. We should be contending for the conference and the regionals."

Ken said the tough team this year is Harbor Springs, but most of the teams the Rayders will face were "senior heavy" last year, meaning they lost a lot of experience to graduation.

"They are hurting big time. But, it will still be a back and forth battle," he said.

As for the team, Ken said he has some strong seniors taking leadership roles, especially Kyle Kramer and Jeff Urban, who have state finals experience from last year.

Other seniors are Brian Christiansen, Adam Richards, Ryan DeYoung, Rusty Walters — who is returning after taking a year off — York Smith and newcomer Scott Friske.

Ken said he has 45 participants on the squad. 11 of them are seniors, 11 are juniors, 12 are sophomores and nine are freshmen.

Ken said his pole vault is going to be strong with three or four guys jumping around 11 feet. He added long jumps, high jumps and hurdles will be strong.

The top, Ken said, will be his sprint team, from which he expects great things.

However, with the good, comes the "needs work" and that would be his middle distance teams. Ken said this area has suffered due to injuries.

According to Mary Plude, the girls' coach, her team is looking "very good."

"It is just a very cohesive tight group. They have a lot of talent and depth," she said.

There are 28 girls on the team, with three seniors, 10 juniors, eight sophomores and seven freshmen.

The seniors are Brenna Bergmann, Brooke Blanchard and Michelle Rowe.

However, in addition to senior leadership, Mary also has runners with state finals experience.

Juniors Amy Drew, Liz Madison and Theresa Martin are returning this year after running in the mile relay at the state finals last year.

As for her other breakout competitors, Mary said she expects good things from Betsey Dennis, Sonya Plude, Jasmine Witthoeft, Shannon Dibble, Caitlin Ernst, Caitlin Cole, Lindi Edger and Emily Westenbroek.

She will need all this talent when the team faces a league with equal talent. Mary said Traverse City St. Francis is the team to watch this year due to a coaching change and Boyne City is always a power.

"We should be in there challenging for the conference and regional," she said.

Tennis team looking impressive at season start

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With 47 students out for the Charlevoix High School Tennis team, and a solid core of experienced players to pick from, coach Erick Lundteigan is expecting a very good year.

"We have a lot of kids to choose from," he said. "Our strength is we have a core group of mostly juniors who have been playing for three years now. The key is to develop the others."

Lundteigan said he expects his doubles teams to be very strong this year, with a lot of depth. But, he added he is going to have to work on the singles.

The first doubles team is Sparky Nitchman and Taylor Martin. Lundteigan said they have improved quite a bit from last year.

The second team is made up of Adam Wager and Cody Wheat. The third team is Mitch Klooster and Andrew Mailloux. And the fourth team is Josh Saur and Dan Swenor.

However, Lundteigen said he can foresee the fourth team changing many times though the season. With so many talented kids on the team, there will be a lot of competition for that fourth spot on the varsity.

On the singles teams, Nate Turner is in the first spot while Josh Fassett will take the second spot.

The third slot is Matt Novotny and the fourth slot is Ben Shelk.

Lundteigen said like the doubles fourth team, the singles fourth team will see a lot of students competing for it.

"People are going to be challenging like crazy. Whoever is going to play number four will be looking over their shoulder all year," he said.

But competition for slots will create good players on the team. And the Rayders will need this as they face some stiff competition from other teams.

Lundteigan said the team to beat this year is Traverse City St. Francis. He added Harbor Springs is tough, as well as Elk Rapids.

"You can put all four of us in that category. It depends on how much we improve," he said.

Soccer team expecting a good season

The Rayders, returning nine letter winners from 2003, look forward to their first season in the Lake Michigan Conference for soccer.

Leading the way will be tri-captains, seniors Shayna Drost and Alyssia McDonough and junior Sarah Cross along with sophomore goalkeeper Laura Nitchman.

Drost currently third on the all-time scoring list, has a chance to take over the number one spot with a solid senior season. At forward, she leads the offense with spirit as well as talent, making first team all conference, All District and All Region in 2003. She will team with junior Jaime Pettis, also All District last year, to make a formidable and speedy front line.

McDonough, honorable mention all conference in 2003, provides experience in the midfield. She will be helped by returning sophomore Madison Ramsey and junior Meghan Lame. They also have several freshmen vying for starting midfield spots, with Zita Anderson and Lori Zimmerman leading the way.

Defensively, the Rayders are confident that a year's experience will provide improvement to an already capable squad. Led by center back Cross, All District in 2003 and keeper Nitchman, All District, Region and honorable mention all state last year. Also starting defensively are sophomore Stevie Murray and Lisa Kuebler.

Madison McKenzie, All District in 2003, will start defensively but will also see some time in the midfield.

Head coach Carol Madison said, "As a team, we hope to maintain a long tradition of finishing Academic All State. As a team we have finished first in class C in 1999 and 2001, second in 2002 and third in 2003."

She added, "We are setting team goals to improve every day. We will emphasize the conference schedule in preparing for the District Tournament. This is a great group of girls, I'm confident we will be successful."

HAVE A GREAT SEASON!

Assisted living agreement?

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

Charlevoix City Council signed a consent order at its meeting Monday night to try and resolve the lawsuit filed against the city by land owners and developers who want to build an assisted living complex on Charlevoix's north side.

Owners of Sunnybank Retirement Community, Diane Gillette and Ruth Bellisimo, had their sights set on developing an assisted living facility on a three-acre piece of land owned by Charlevoix residents Ed and Carol Amick located at 615 and 620 Petoskey Avenue on Charlevoix's north side.

The land is currently zoned R-2, medium density single family residential, which doesn't accommodate assisted living.

Charlevoix's planning commission recommended changes to the zoning ordinance to allow assisted living facilities in the R-1 and R-2 districts as a special use. But on Nov. 17, 2003 city council shot it down, foiling Sunnybank's plan.

"Now we are facing some of the consequences of that decision," city attorney Jim Young told council. "This is the risk the city ran by not enacting a zoning ordinance amendment to deal with this use."

Those consequences first surfaced in early February when Gillette, Bellisimo and the Amicks filed a lawsuit against the city.

Ed Engstrom, an attorney with the Charlevoix law office Barron and Golski, is representing the group. The lawsuit he filed claims the city's zoning ordinance is invalid because it excludes assisted living facilities, like Sunnybank.

In a previous interview, city planner Gerry Harsch said assisted living could conceivably be allowed in the R-4, multiple dwelling residential district, but not practically.

"For all practical purposes, there is no district within our zoning ordinance which is available to accommodate this project," Harsch said.

In recent settlement discussions the city and the Sunnybank group have agreed that the ordinance does not "on its face" allow assisted living facilities in the city and as it relates to this project is invalid.

City trying to head off financial problems

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Communities across the state are facing serious budget woes and making tough decisions like cutting back on personnel, overlooking deteriorating public property and discontinuing leaf disposal service.

Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandi attended a Finance Officers Conference in late March where Mike Brady, a speaker from the Michigan Municipal League (MML), likened Michigan's economic situation to a life on a conveyor belt — "everyone is going to fall off, it's just a matter of when."

Brandi said Charlevoix will "fall off" in the next two to three years unless some changes are made.

"We don't have the revenue stream to support the level of services we are providing," city manager Mike Wiesner said.

Wiesner is preparing to assemble a citizen committee to pore over the many services the city provides and to decide where cuts will be made or how the way those services are provided will

Land yacht

A trucker hauling this large yacht found himself in trouble Tuesday morning after he attempted to turn into a drive on US-31, near M-66. His truck and the trailer got stuck on the road and drive, thus blocking off part of US-31 for a while until another hauler could pull him free. There was no damage to the boat.

City clerk position to be on ballot

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Another elected seat has been added to the November ballot for the city of Charlevoix.

The unexpected resignation of former city clerk Liz Gooch in April, a year and a half before her term expired, left city council wondering what they should do next.

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson inquired about the elected position being put on the ballot.

City attorney Jim Young told her there is no law stopping council from putting the seat on the ballot. But he said when former city clerk Joanne Patrick resigned and Gooch was appointed in September of 2000 there was about the same amount of time left in Patrick's term.

He suggested that because a previous council went the appointment route, current council should consider following that path, too.

City resident and compensation commission member Ken Staley disagreed.

"What you are doing is appointing someone to fill three-quarters of the term. You've had ample time to take action on this — her resignation was submitted in March and dragging your feet is no excuse. You're making an appointment for an elected office and that should be a bare bones time limit," Staley said.

While some members of council said they concurred with Young's advice to appoint Gooch's replacement, all of council voted to let the people choose the new clerk at the general election Nov. 2.

City voters will be electing a person to fill the remainder of Gooch's term. That means the clerk will have to run again in November of 2005 for the regular two-year term.

The position requires recording minutes at meetings, including both city council and the board of review, and running elections. The clerk is compensated $34,000 a year for their work.

Interested candidates have to fill out a nominating petition, which is available at city hall off Mason Street, and file that petition by 4 p.m., May 11.

Council plans to propose an amendment to the charter that will be put on a future ballot to give a clear direction as to how city residents want this type of vacancy situation addressed.

Deputy Clerk Stephanie Brown is currently filling the vacancy. Brown does not plan to run for the clerk's seat because she lives outside the city and candidates must live in the city limits.

Because the new clerk won't take office until November council agreed to appoint an interim clerk. The city is currently accepting applications for the interim clerk who must also live in the city.

Hospice to have annual auction at Castle

This year's Hospice of Northwest Michigan auction has two significant changes from those in the past.

The event has been in early June, but this year the date is Friday, July 30. Also, for many years, the auction has been held at Boyne Mountain, an organization that has been (and still is) very supportive of Hospice, but an opportunity became available to use Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

The evening's activities start at 5:30 p.m. and, as in the past, will include both live and silent auctions. Scott MacKenzie and Rip Hayes will be the auctioneers.

Ticket prices will be $30 and $60 with corporate tables available at $90 per seat. A variety of hors d'oeuvres will be on hand as well as a cash bar. Two door prizes of $300 and $200 will be drawn during intervals in the program.

On June 1, tickets will be available at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Orchard Hills LTD in Bellaire, Adam's Madams in Central Lake and the Hospice Office in East Jordan as well as at the door. Hospice of Northwest Michigan is in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency that provides the clinical component of the program - nursing, social work, home health aides, chaplain and therapists.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan provides the volunteer, bereavement and fund-raising component of the program.

Venetian Newsflash

The Venetian Board has implemented several changes to ensure that "Venetian" will only continue to "get better, rather than bigger." The Festival will "Kickoff at The Castle" on Venetian Tuesday, July 20, at the beautifully renovated Castle Farms, with a potpourri of "Rhythms of Venetian" music and other Venetian festivities. Although the length of the "Rhythms of Venetian Music Festival" in East Park will thus be shortened to four days, Wednesday through Saturday, July 21-24, the "Rhythms" will not fall short on talent or excitement, with the return of the MSU Spartan Marching Band and many other energized concert performances, including "Herman's Hermits" starring "Herman" himself, Peter Noone. Other Venetian traditions, old and new, will continue on, such as the week-long Venetian Games, the Queen's Coronation, Kid's Day, the Craft Courtyard, Heritage Day, the Street and Grand Electric Boat Parades and TWO evenings of stunning fireworks displays. Mark your homecoming calendars now, to celebrate Charlevoix with family and friends during the 74th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival, July 18-24, 2004.

Some early traffic safety suggestions

EDITORIAL

You may have noticed that the calendar says that it is May.

This means, according to the calendar, we are well into spring and on our way to summer. However, the cold weather outside may say something different to our minds — it is still May and, yes, summer is on its way.

With summer, comes warm weather, lazy days on the beach and all the other joys of living in northern Michigan.

However, we are not the only ones to enjoy this beauty.

Summer also brings many people to Charlevoix who want to relax and check out the sights.

But, with more people, comes more traffic. With more traffic comes more danger on the roads. With that being said, perhaps it is time to review some basic traffic safety rules for drivers and pedestrians before summer hits us full force.

Let's start with vehicles:

- Do not tailgate — If the vehicle in front of you must come to a sudden stop, which happens frequently when traveling through a tourist-packed town, you may end up ramming it if you are following too closely.
- Slow down — Charlevoix is crowded in the summer. Traffic is bad. This means you must drive slower and more cautiously. Speeding through town is the fastest way to a ticket or the hospital.
- Enjoy the view — There is no use getting upset about the long wait to get through town. It only leads to high blood pressure, stress and general unhappiness. Look around, take in the scenery, smell the fresh air and just relax...you are not going anywhere anytime soon.

Pedestrians:

- Watch the traffic signals — If the little hand is lit up on the pedestrian traffic light, that means do not proceed across the intersection. It does not mean, run across or jog across in front of traffic. You may proceed across the intersection when the picture of the little person walking is lit up.
- Try and stick to the pedestrian crossings — Darting out between cars into heavy traffic is a sure fire way to become a stain on the road.

While it may only be May, we hope residents and visitors keep these little tidbits in mind as the summer season approaches.

What's in a name for businesses today?

Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

I don't know about you, but I have a "Window Butler," a "Grout Medic" a "Computer Doctor" plus a painter, who delightfully calls himself, "How About Bob?"

Still, whatever happened to the general handyman you may ask, that wonderful person who could clean and repair anything? Is my garage door stuck? Do the storm windows need to come down? Is the garbage disposal jammed? Is the lock broken? Does the smoke alarm need a new battery? Does the furnace need a new filter?

Occasionally we get help for our problems from the friendly owner of the local hardware store or paint store, but long gone is the shoe repairman and a seamstress today is hard to find. Nor do we have a locksmith in our town anymore.

I remember going down town to Novotny's plumbing shop, which was located in the parking lot next to the present library. While I waited, he worked over an open fire and made a tin container for me that I still use as a planter. He called himself a tinsmith. What do you think he would call himself today? A metal craft designer?

We are well aware that self-image is important. Postal employees and Federal Express people all wear handsome uniforms. Trucks carry decorative signs that advertise the business. So why not a creative name that signifies a person's expertise and talent?

It certainly easier to remember an inspired name than the appalling route banks have been going these days. For example that prestigious Old Kent State Bank is now calling itself that unpronounceable Fifth Third! What were they thinking? Or drinking? The original, old First National Bank and Trust has changed its name as frequently as the lake changes color from NBD of Petoskey, to NBD, to First Chicago NBD, and now finally to Bank One.

Long ago Shakespeare asked, "What's in a name?" My answer is, "More than we realize!"

Rest assured there's a good chance that he would heartily approve of today's ingenious Window Butler, Grout Medic and Computer Doctor.

Letters to the editor

The cat is out

Editor:

I think the April 21 front page said a lot about the ongoing irony that is Charlevoix. The headlines state that "Wal-Mart postponed." It is said that it threatens the quaintness of this old resort town. The photograph on the front page shows the Appletree building has been torn down to make way for a new high rise.

Just as an experiment drive down US-31 South to, oh, let's say Manthei. Then turn around, drive slowly back to town with the eyes of someone who has never been to this community and raise your hand when you actually see what you would call Charlevoix the Beautiful. This works just as well coming into town the other directions.

I think the cat was let out of the bag a long time ago.

Article response

Editor:

After reading Julie Witthoeft's article on the "dispute" between Wayne Boss and Mark Maynard, some questions/comments are warranted.

- Since Boss "...thinks Maynard has done a good job separating his personal beef with the Hamiltons from his business as township trustee," why does he seek a resignation?
- Boss's response "...was not aware of proper procedure associated with the Freedom of Information Act...," borders on benign neglect since this FOIA has been the law since May 1977! In the oath of office that all public officers are mandated to swear to, they promise to be cognizant of and to uphold laws affecting their office and the citizens that they serve.
- Finally, Mr. Boss continually cites the fact that "...could have been addressed person-to-person..." and "... could have been addressed more constructively if...would have discussed the problem...," but when Wayne Boss was specifically asked a question by a township resident at the past five consecutive township board meetings, his response was, "I don't have the answer because I didn't have time." Five months to answer the one question asked and still no answer?

There have been very appropriate statements made in another newspaper that is food for thought:

"It's amazing how many public officials at many levels of government don't seem to understand that this is public business, not their business.

Public employees are responsible for how public money is spent and how public business is conducted, and it's good to see a sense of ownership for what is done and how.

But the public is the boss. They pay the taxes. They elect board members. Everything is their business."

(Excerpts from "Our View," Traverse City Record-Eagle, April 30, 2004).

Letters to the editor

School should start later

Editor:

I believe that the Charlevoix Middle School should start school one hour later. School starts at 7:44 a.m. I think that's too early, because of the following reasons.

First of all, students aren't getting enough sleep. I have to wake up at 5:40 a.m. to be ready for the bus at 6:40 a.m. I go to bed around 9:30 - 10 p.m. because of homework and sports activities, which leaves seven to eight hours of sleep.

Also in the morning we can accidentally forget our homework, lunch, and others. Because of all the homework we had to do the night before we're forgetting all about it the next morning. This can cause the teacher to get angry and send you to detention.

Another reason is that we have problems in school. We can't concentrate in class, which might cause our grades to drop. We also could be tardy for class because we are slow. Sometimes students will forget a supply that we needed for class.

Over all, please consider starting school later in the day. I really think that if we do start later, students would have a big improvement on our schoolwork and other activities.

A sign needed

Editor:

One reason the Bridge Street-Park Avenue intersection becomes blocked in the summer is that drivers not familiar with Charlevoix traveling south on Bridge Street end up in the wrong lane. Presently there are no road signs to inform unfamiliar motorists that Bridge Street narrows to one lane at Park Avenue. A reasonable low cost solution to minimize this traffic problem would be to install three signs on Petoskey Avenue for southbound traffic. These signs should be placed between Prospect and Burns streets, Burns and Nettleton streets and Nettleton Street and Michigan Avenue. Consideration by city government and MDOT should not be why it should be done, but why not.

P.S. Since reviewing your March 3, article about new signs, "Signs that were supported by the group were those that direct people to places like city hall, parking lots, the Charlevoix County building, public restrooms, schools, The Harsha House and Charlevoix Public Library." I think the group should also support the additional road signs.

Start school later

Editor:

Did you know that students who don't get enough sleep don't do as well in school? One reason is kids are tired in class. This is because we are waking up too early, so it's hard to pay attention.

Another reason is, we may not have time to eat breakfast. If we wake too late, then we would not have time. But we have to eat breakfast — it's the most important meal of the day. At our school you would have to wait four and a half hours until you can eat lunch.

We need at least nine to 10 hours of sleep. If we don't change the time school starts, in order to get that amount of sleep I need, I would be going to bed at 7 p.m.

Those are only a few reasons why I think school should start later.

Open an arcade

Editor:

Do you want your children on the street and possibly getting into trouble or danger? If you don't, then put in an arcade. An arcade will be good for the community.

My first reason is that an arcade would be safer for children. The children would not take their anger out on each other because they would all take it out on the Whack-a-Mole game, which is a stress reducer. This would also be a place for children to get off the streets and inside where it is safe.

Another reason we need an arcade, is that children would be happier. Children could buy prizes that they want with tickets they could win. They would also be happier for homework time because they just won a lot of prizes.

Furthermore, this is a reason that might apply to parents and teachers. If you put in an arcade the parents could, if they wanted to, make their children finish their homework before they are allowed to go to it. Also, the children could get free tokens for their good grades, which would make children do better in school for more fun.

In conclusion, I think it would be a good idea to put in an arcade, I hope that you feel the same way.

Area postal workers to be collecting food

Postal workers throughout Northern Michigan will be collecting non-perishable food items for distribution to local food banks and charitable organizations.

The drive will be May 8. Patrons are asked to leave nonperishable food items in and around their mail receptacles on the morning of the drive, before the mail arrives. City and rural carriers will pick up the food as they deliver the mail. Local food banks will then transport the donated items to facilities for processing.

Post offices around northern Michigan that are participating include Alanson, Boyne City, Brutus, Cross Village, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, Indian River, Pellston, Petoskey, Traverse City, Walloon Lake and Wolverine.

The food drive is part of a national effort conducted by the National Association of Letter Carriers, the United States Postal Service, AFL-CIO and the Rural Carriers Union.

In Northern Michigan, the participation of rural carriers and their substitutes make it possible for the drive to cover a majority of delivery points.

"Without the rural carriers and their substitutes, the amount of area that we now cover would be greatly reduced," said Charles (Rocky) Curry, the director of the drive and local president of Branch 523 of the National Association of Letter Carriers. "It's a combined effort of all postal employees — we all pull together and make it happen. It makes you feel like you are a part of something very special. All we ask of our customers is to leave nonperishable food items in and around their mail receptacles and they will have become a part of this effort as well."

Plans for Charlevoix skate park moving along

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Plans for a temporary skate park have been officially set in motion.

On May 3 city council agreed to open a piece of the former middle school property off Grant, Clinton and Mason streets for use as a temporary home for the Charlevoix Community Skate Park. The approved site is off Mason Street where portable classrooms and concrete basketball courts are located.

"It (council's decision) blows me away. The support is out there We've been really, really lucky," Vickie Daman, a parent coordinator for the skate park group, said.

The group is hoping to have a grand opening at the site on June 15 and to stay open through the fall.

Before they can open the doors they need to level off the cement slab and move the fence to enclose the area. Inside there will likely be a half pipe, a fun box, a three-foot ramp, two 18-inch launch ramps and a three-foot spine.

To enter the supervised park, users will go through the east portable building which is located closest to the road. Inside the building there will be running water, bathrooms and concessions. They'll sign in there and enter the fenced-in skate park area. A liability form signed by a parent will have to be submitted.

The cost for skaters will be between $2.50 and $3 per day. Annual passes will be offered for about $75 to $80. Proceeds from food sales and user fees will go to pay for equipment and the park's permanent enclosed site.

The group's goal is to raise $300,000 for its permanent home. A second skate-a-thon and clinic is being planned for the week of the Venetian Festival to help meet this goal. The first fund-raiser brought in about $6,000.

City manager Mike Wiesner told Daman he doesn't envision the old middle school property as an ideal long-term location.

The city owns the former middle school property. They purchased it in 2003 to use it for marina overflow parking and to sell most of it to the Charlevoix Public Library.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of the 13 lots there for $488,460 if voters pass the bond in June. From there the library project will renovate and expand the old middle school, where it plans to relocate.

Library director Valerie Meyerson said she doesn't see the temporary skate park as having any impact on the project.

While this temporary plan is set in stone the group has not forgotten its quest for a permanent home which they are hoping will be discovered in the city's upcoming Mount McSauba feasibility study. The group is currently selecting the designer and builder for the park. They have narrowed the field to three companies.

For information on the Charlevoix group's drive to bring a skate park to town or to donate, visit www.planner.eskal8.org or call Daman at 547-8063.

Students getting ready for annual art show

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The walls at Charlevoix Elementary School will be covered with color and imagination during the annual K-12 Art Show next week.

The show, which showcases the talents of students in the entire district, will take place May 13, 14 and 17 at the school located off Division Street in Charlevoix.

Mary Beth McGraw, the elementary school art teacher helping coordinate the event, said this exhibit is a unique opportunity for the community to see all the different projects the district's art students have tackled this year.

"I'm not sure of another event that takes that wide variety of students in the system," she said. "The arts have proven over and over again to be an integral part of any education. And beyond that it's a place where kids that may not be best in writing and reading can be really successful and really proud of what they do."

From 6:30 to 9 p.m. the first night of the show, May 13, a handful of student artists will be on site demonstrating their skills including glass bead making and face painting. Those who can't make opening night can visit from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., May 14 and 17.

Displays including everything from painted pictures and sculpture to jewelry, will be set up in the elementary school gym and throughout the halls.

Three pieces will be chosen from this collection, one from each school, to be framed and included in the Superintendent's Collection.

BUSINESS

Charlevoix women to publish guide to web sites

Three enterprising Charlevoix businesswomen have begun a new concept in advertising and marketing recently with the debut of WebBook, a directory of local web sites available on-line or in print.

WebBook partners are Laurie Lesser Hodgson, Linda Boss, and Patsy Ramsey. The trio brings years of experience to the effort in the areas of web site development, design, and marketing. Hodgson has extensive experience with web site development. She and Boss, a freelance graphic designer who has worked for numerous print and advertising businesses, conceived of the idea more than a year ago.

"We realized that the culture has transitioned to web site information gathering before picking up the telephone. So often, you never get a real person on the other end of the telephone line or you can't obtain the information you need. To make it easy for customers and businesses to find each other on the internet, we came up with the WebBook directories to provide a ready resource," Hodgson said.

Any area business can promote its web site for free in WebBook by signing on to www.WebBookUSA.com.

"The Northwest Michigan issue of WebBook brings local focus to area businesses struggling to compete with national chains on the worldwide web who can afford to pay a premium for 'high visibility' on the internet," Ramsey said, who joined the company in September to spearhead the Sales and Marketing effort.

The print directory will be free to the public and distributed throughout the 10 county area of coverage.

"Any business in the area can list its web site address for free in the directory, "Ramsey said . "What good is having a web site if no one knows about it?"

WebBook is a full service company whose main objective is to make sure customers can find local business web sites easily. And if your company doesn't have a web site yet? Not to worry. WebBook web sites can be tailor-made to suit your needs and increase your exposure to this fast growing market segment.

"We can design a web site from scratch or you can choose from among a series of web site looks provided by the company," said Boss. "If you have a web site that needs a 'face lift' or a new company logo, WebBook design services can help you with that too."

Like the print directory, the online directory is readily accessible at no charge at www.WebBookUSA.com.

"To our knowledge, there is no other company in the country like WebBook. We plan to take the concept nation-wide although the corporate office will always be in Charlevoix," Ramsey said.

To contact WebBook, visit the web site or call (231) 237-0801. Their office is located at 106 West Carpenter, next to the Flap Jack Restaurant.

High school students prepare for prom

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Jake Teuscher and Kari Way are juniors at Charlevoix High School. The friends, who both served on the prom planning committee are looking forward to attending the event this weekend.

Movies have been made about it, books have been written about it and everyone knows an urban legend or two that tell the tale of its mysterious draw.

This sacred event is the high school prom. And right now Charlevoix High School students that have been thinking about the mystical night since middle school are rushing around planning last minute details for the event.

"I remember always being excited when I was younger to stay out past my curfew — I thought that would be the best part of prom," Charlevoix High School junior Jake Teuscher said.

The big night of glitz, glamour and in some cases extended curfews, will happen May 8 at the Belvedere Club Casino in Charlevoix.

Teuscher, who is working on the prom committee, will have fellow committee member Kari Way on his arm.

The two are friends and decided since they both didn't have dates for the big event they would go together.

Way has spent the past couple of weeks tanning and planning. The prom frenzy had her thinking outside of the box when it came to her gown. To make sure her dress is the only one of its kind on the dance floor she asked a cousin from southern Michigan to lend her one.

That day Way said she will spend part of the afternoon at a beauty shop getting her hair done.

While girls have hair, makeup, skin and nails to perfect, Teuscher said their dates take the easy road, renting a tuxedo and making dinner reservations.

Way's mom, Kris, who owns Trademark in Charlevoix, even took some of the heat off by picking out Teuscher's ideal dapper duds for him.

After Teuscher gets dressed all that is left is his date.

"I get to pick her up," he said.

The two will travel to dinner with an entourage of about 12 other students and then head to the dance where they'll shake it to tunes spun by DJs from Sound Productions of Traverse City.

School trys to make prom safe

PROM

The theme at this year's event is Heaven on Earth and they said when students get to the dance they'll be welcomed by a enchanted room dripping in silver, white and sky blue.

Like a Cinderella story the anticipated event will end promptly at midnight.

But instead of cars turning into pumpkins and dresses to rags, parents and teachers often worry about kids turning into law breakers.

Jim Rockwell, a motivational speaker from California talked to the student body April 22 about how when he was in high school drinking and driving resulted in a life changing car accident. The moral of his talk was to set high goals and have self-control on prom night.

High School principal Gary Grundman said they brought Rockwell in to remind students that expectations of them on prom night are the same as every other night.

While concerns of underage drinking and sexual activity have some parents awake on prom night anxiously biting their nails until the door opens and their child is home safely, Teuscher and Way and a high school teacher said the stigmas attached to prom aren't so much the reality.

Jill Erskine, a high school teacher helping coordinate the prom, said, "The last thing they are going to do on prom night is get themselves in trouble."

After prom a group of junior parents have coordinated "After Glow" an after hours party to take place from 12:30 to 4 a.m. at the high school. At the party there will be volleyball, dancing, a movie, an ice cream sundae bar and breakfast.

"It's a safe post prom activity," Sherrel Bergmann, a parent committee member for the after prom party, said.

Coast Guard ship in Charlevoix still doubtful

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

Since the summer of 2002, when information was leaked regarding United States Coast Guard Cutter (USCGC) Acacia's possible decommissioning, there has been speculation over the validity and outcome of this rumor.

"Acacia is scheduled for decommissioning no later than June 6, 2006," Executive Officer LT Dave Wilhelm of the USCGC Acacia said.

"The Acacia is aging. We are in need of a new ship like the 225-foot cutters, which are now being used. The newer ships are more appropriate for our use since our primary mission is working buoys."

"Working buoys," consists of pulling a buoy on deck and repairing as needed.

"The new cutters are more efficient and more effective," he said.

According to Wilhelm, as it stands right now the Acacia must use "the old fashioned way" of pulling buoys on deck using an awkward crane. Which takes more time than with a newer ship.

The Acacia was commissioned in 1944 and replacing old ships in the fleet is nothing new. According to Wilhelm, the Coast Guard has cut its number of larger ships by 12 over the last 10 to 12 years. Innovative technology allows them to perform better despite the decrease.

"Nothing will change with search and rescue because the coast guard station runs that," he said.

According to Wilhelm, although no new cutter is slated for Charlevoix, a new multi-mission icebreaker called the Mackinaw will be commissioned in 2005 out of Cheboygan, which will help cover, among others, the Charlevoix area.

In a town as small as Charlevoix the disappearance of 52 people and their families will be noticed economically, but the bright side is the crew of the Acacia won't be losing their jobs.

"They will be reassigned as necessary. Nothing will happen to their jobs," Wilhelm said.

According to BM1 Nicholas A. Gould XPO of the coast guard station on Round Lake, the search and rescue capability in this area will not be compromised with the decommissioning of the Acacia.

"We'll still do business the same way we have. We are two totally separate units," he said.

City officials seem to have a slightly different take on the decommissioning of Acacia.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said, "I've talked to the chamber of commerce about keeping a coast-guard cutter presence in Charlevoix."

The cutter Mackinaw would take roughly four hours to reach Charlevoix from Cheboygan, and according to Wiesner, from a safety standpoint there should be a ship available to service Lake Michigan in any scenario.

"I don't know the overall plan for the Acacia, but it seems like you would want a presence on a lake as large as Michigan from potential terrorist issues," Wiesner said.

The financial aspect of the Acacia's departing seems to be a recurrent theme among city officials.

"Looking at the impact on the community itself, there are 52 people who have families we'll be losing. In addition it's (the Acacia) a major tourist attraction which creates a setting on our harbor our visitors really enjoy," Wiesner said.

As disappointing as the Acacia's decommissioning may seem, the city leaders are just beginning to fight.

"Our first call will be to congressman Stupak's office. I think I can speak for the great majority of the people in town-they want to keep the ship here," he said.

Wiesner added, "The chamber of commerce and the city staff will work together."

Jackie Merta president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce said, "The chamber boards agenda at the April meeting will be taking the steps necessary to make it known we would like a coast guard cutter in Charlevoix and what we can do to keep the ship."

However, this is not the first time Merta has expressed interest in the Acacia. In early 2002, she and city manager Wiesner testified in Lansing with the hopes of retaining the Acacia.

She added, "The Acacia is definitely an asset to our community. It brings a lot of revenue. The personnel and their spouses are involved in the community."

The Acacia seems to symbolize civic pride in Charlevoix.

"There have been many cases where the Acacia has helped out, including the annual ghost ship, Easter egg hunt and tours of the ship during Venetian. The crew even donated the labor to help build bathrooms behind the band shell," Merta said.

"Everybody I talked to has asked 'how can we keep the ship,' or 'how can we get a new ship'?

"The COC has always been hoping and planning that when the Acacia was decommissioned we would get one of the new 225 footers."

It seems local city officials are not the only ones interested in keeping the Acacia in place.

Congressman Bart Stupak said he is not surprised at Charlevoix's desire to maintain the Acacia's presence.

He added, "The Acacia should stay in Charlevoix to protect the interests of the area."

According to Congressman Stupak, Charlevoix's intent may have a direct bearing on the Acacia's fate.

"I've seen them dry-docked or as floating museums. But, before the government will turn it over there must be a valid business plan on what the community wants to do with it and how they will support it," Stupak said.

According to Stupak, the earlier Charlevoix civil leaders get started introducing legislation, the better chance they have of keeping the Acacia.

"We'd be happy to help them out any way we can," Stupak said.

Former Charlevoix ship 'Sundew' retired

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A ship that made Round Lake its home for over 20 years is set to retire and take its place in maritime history.

The Sundew, a 180-foot buoy tender currently stationed in Duluth, Minn., arrived in Charlevoix in the summer of 1958 from Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Charlevoix resident John Coppens, who is now 84, was one of about 40 crew members aboard the ship when it came into port and spent three years working on it here.

Coppens recalls the vessel as being "well built and capable" of its tough task, breaking ice on Lake Michigan during the unforgiving winter months and tending to buoys on lakes Michigan and Huron when the ice cleared.

He even shared a vivid memory from a cold November in 1958 when the Sundew crew had to tackle its third task, search and rescue. On that fall night, Lake Michigan's wrath was too much for the limestone freighter out of Rogers City called the Carl D. Bradley. The boat succumbed to the weather and waves, breaking in half and sending its 35 crew members into the cruel water.

A skeleton Sundew crew left the harbor immediately and about 12 hours after the incident occurred found the site and started turning up bodies. Coppens said two survivors were found, Elmer Fleming and Frank Mays.

Tough tasks like this with amazing success stories litter the Sundew's 22 years in town and 60 years of total active service. The boat was one of a fleet of similar vessels that were built in 1944, during World War II, by the Marine Iron and Ship Building Company out of Duluth, Minn.

Now, with decades of work under her belt, this aged vessel is set to retire at a ceremony May 27.

"This is the end of an era for the Great Lakes," Jeffrey Hall, the chief petty officer for the Coast Guard's Ninth District, said.

After the ceremony the Sundew will cruise for the last time, traveling about 400 yards to its permanent home outside the Duluth Entertainment and Convention Center. There it will be open for public tours.

The Sundew will be supplanted by the last of 14 replacement vessels — a 225-foot cutter called the Alder.

The Sundew bidding its final adieu is a reminder for Coppens that Charlevoix may soon have to say good-bye to the Sundew's sister ship, the Coast Guard cutter Acacia, which is currently in port here.

Hall said the current plan is for the Acacia to be decommissioned in 2006 with no replacement boat coming to Charlevoix. Three other ships stationed around the area are expected to pick up the slack.

Coppens said he hopes to see a change of plans from the Coast Guard.

"I would like to keep a Coast Guard vessel here. I think it's really important for this part of Lake Michigan," Coppens said.

But hope of a new vessel calling Charlevoix its home, is fading.

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay offers free grief support services to children and teens who have lost an important person to death. Support often involves teaming kids with someone their age who has experienced a similar loss.

Mitchell: When my dad died, I was really sad, until I learned that I wasn't the only one who had someone die.

Andrew: It helped me to be able to tell my story to other kids, . and to hear their stories, because we were in the same spot.

Hospice also provides information to schools to help chidren adjust back into their environment.

Jon: The first day back the principal came up to me and said, "I'm sorry about your dad." It helped me have a good year at school.

Library teen group to set up programs

Two Teen Advisory Groups have recently formed at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Middle school students will meet every other month to offer ideas and help for teen programs at the library. They had their first meeting on National Youth Services Day, April 17.

They are doing their part to help the Charlevoix community by helping the library. Thirteen students planned the Teen Summer Reading Program and suggested the library have computer gaming nights next fall.

Linda Adams, volunteer coordinator for the group said, "These students came in with enthusiasm and gave us some great ideas on how to make the library a better place for teens."

Twenty students have joined the group.

Twenty-one Charlevoix High School students are taking part in an electronic teen advisory group for the library. This group will correspond with the library via monthly e-mails. Each month the library will ask the students for advice on library programs and materials.

Val Meyerson, library director, said, "It is our hope that these students can give us the information we need to make the current library the best it can be. We also want them to help us with plans for the teen space at the proposed new library."

The groups were formed with the cooperation of the Charlevoix Public Schools, Northwest Academy and the local homeschoolers group.

Amy Spegele, Youth Services Assistant is the library contact person for the groups. Participation in the group is always open; if you are a teen interested in one of the groups, please contact Amy at 547-2651.

How to compete with mass retailers

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Noted Iowa economist Ken Stone, who has studied the effects of Wal-Mart on communities for many years, will be visiting Charlevoix Thursday to discuss how local businesses can compete with "big box" stores.

Stone's visit is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce as part of its seminar series.

Charlevoix Chamber President Jacqueline Merta said, "He will explain the impact of mass merchandisers and supercenters on the area, how they operate and what kind of impact they will have with competed businesses and our community and strategies existing businesses can take."

Some of the strategies he suggests are handling different merchandise and niche markets.

Stones figures on Wal-Mart and other mass merchandisers and seminars have been reported and quoted in publications throughout the United States, including a March story in the Charlevoix Courier about the economic impact a Wal-Mart could have on the area. His research has also been used by anti-sprawl author Al Norman, who visited Charlevoix recently for a forum on the mega-retailer.

The seminar will be from 9 a.m. to noon, Thursday, May 6 at Charlevoix High School. The cost for the seminar is $20 per person. Call the chamber at 547-2101 to make a reservation.

Stone has been a professor of economics and extension economist at Iowa State University for 27 years. He has recently retired.

His work is primarily in the areas of retail trade and business management. He was the first academic in the United States to conduct studies of the economic impacts of shopping malls, discount department stores and "big box" building materials stores.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark — nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

The Northwest Academy band performing at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor.

Northwest band gets high honors

Northwest Academy shined again at a recent music festival.

On May 1, the 27-member Northwest Academy Advanced Band traveled to Benzonia High School for the State Band and Orchestra Festival.

They performed three prepared numbers and two sight read pieces for several different judges, being held to the very high standards of the state festival.

The band once again received the highest possible ratings from all the judges. The full, rich sound of the band, in spite of its small size, was commended.

One judge wrote, "It is always a pleasure to hear your group perform and today was no exception. Your attention to every detail of performing music puts you in a very select group."

This is the fourth time the Northwest Academy Advanced Band has received first division ratings at the state festival.

The advanced band began the calendar year being one of only 13 groups selected to perform at the Midwest Music Educators' Conference at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. After their performance in the recently renovated historic landmark, the band returned to earn straight First Division rankings at the District Band and Orchestra Festival, a feat which qualified them for the state festival this past weekend.

In addition to the full band performances, local students have the opportunity to compete at District and State Solo and Ensemble Festivals. In February, 17 of 23 soloists and small groups from Northwest Academy received ones at the district festival, qualifying them for the state competition. At the state level last month, the students went on to perform very well, earning four top honors and three 2s.

All of the activity in the many festivals plays a huge part in the overall success and abilities of each member of every band at Northwest Academy. The more performing the students do the better prepared they are for the next event.

The Northwest Academy Middle School band also recently capped a triumphant season with a First Division rating performance at the state festival last month. Their success as a whole followed a wonderful performance at the Solo and Ensemble Festival — 17 groups competed, 14 earning ones and three earning twos. The middle school students' success bodes well for the continued success of the Advanced Band.

You may hear many members of this band at 4 p.m., May 16 as the solo and ensemble groups, along with the school's new String Orchestra, perform at the First Congregational Church.

Girls' soccer team gets two close-outs

The Charlevoix Rayders soccer team tallied two close-outs last week.

On April 26 the Rayders evened their Lake Michigan Conference record at 2-2 with a 5-0 win over Grayling. Charlevoix dominated play, out shooting Grayling 30-2.

Sophomore keeper Laura Nitchman notched her second shutout of the young season.

Charlevoix goals were scored by freshman Lori Zimmerman, sophomore Madison Ramsey and senior tri-captain Shayna Drost. Assists were sent by Drost, Ramsey and Zimmerman.

Junior midfielder, Meghan Lame, earned Rayder Player of the Game honors with her best effort of the season. Also working hard for the Rayders were sophomore defender Lisa Kuebler and junior Madison McKenzie.

Head coach Carol Madison said, "It was a wet and cold field, but this game gave us the opportunity to work on passing and to provide playing time for all our team."

The Rayders traveled to Glen Lake for a non-conference match April 30.

There, they dominated play and evened their record at 3-3-1 beating the Lakers 9-0.

Charlevoix challenged had 40 shots on goal as compared to just two save opportunities for Nitchman who notched her third shutout of the season.

Drost took over Charlevoix's career scoring title with four goals and an assist in leading the Rayders offense. Junior forward Jaime Pettis added a goal and three assists. The remaining goals were scored by senior tri-captain Alyssia McDonough and freshman Jennifer Rich.

Assists came from sophomore Stevie Murray and freshmen Zita Anderson and Lori Zimmerman.

Rayders Player of the Game award went to Ramsey, a midfielder who controlled play and managed two goals and two assists.

Charlevoix faced Traverse City St. Francis Monday, May 3, in an important conference match. The results of that game were not available by press time.

Baseball team has good week with four wins

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders baseball squad reeled off four straight wins last week, sweeping Harbor Springs and St. Ignace before dropping two to conference leader Kalkaska.

The Rayders defeated the Rams 16-9, in seven innings, and 14-3. Game one was the first Charlevoix game involving the use of the international tiebreaker rule newly adopted by the Lake Michigan Conference this year. Each team begins the extra frame with a runner placed on second base.

Freshman Chris Waha was the hero against Harbor, picking up the pitching win in both ends of the doubleheader and going three for five with three RBI at the plate in game one.

In seven innings of work spanning the two games, Waha threw seven innings, allowed only three hits, struck out 12 and didn't walk a batter.

"The real gem of the day was the effort of Chris Waha," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "He came in under pressure and put out the fire in the first game and then dominated in game two. I thought he was superb, and as a freshman he did an outstanding job both on the mound and at the plate."

In the opener, Michael Wojan, Jake Teuscher, Eddie Waldron and Russell Williams each had two hits. Wojan also walked twice and scored four runs.

Charlevoix trailed 9-6 after five innings, but rallied with three runs in the sixth to tie the game and exploded for seven runs in the extra inning.

In game two the Rayders picked up where they left off, led by Matt Burtts 3 for 4, four run scoring performance. Ezra Bakker was 2 for 3 with a double, two runs scored and an RBI.

Teuscher hit a home run and two sacrifice flies to total four RBI. Williams and Wojan also each had hits.

"It was great to see our offense break out," Hawkins said. "We had some guys in a slump and we talked about being more selective at the plate, but in an aggressive mindset. It seemed to pay off."

Charlevoix then carried that momentum over into a home sweep of St. Ignace, winning 8-7 and 5-0.

Tyler Bier was the standout for the Rayders, getting the save in one perfect inning of work in the opener and then throwing a complete game three-hit shutout in game two. Bier helped himself by going 3 for 3 with a double and three RBI in the nightcap.

The Rayders overcame seven errors and nearly lost an 8-2 lead to hold on for the first game win.

Waldron was the winning pitcher. Burtt had two hits while Teuscher was 1 for 2 with three RBI. Waldron, Wojan, Williams, Waha and Taylor Fisher each had hits.

Wojan and Teuscher had two hits apiece in game two. Wojan drove in a run and scored two. Teuscher scored one and plated one. Burtt singled and scored two runs.

"We've been fortunate to overcome our poor defensive play and inexperience," Hawkins said. "However, we can't expect to give up five, seven or eight errors in a game and beat good teams. We've had great defensive games sprinkled in there too, so my hope is that we can become consistently better all around."

The Rayders fell to conference unbeaten Kalkaska by scores of 10-0 and 7-0. Details were unavailable at press time. Charlevoix (7-6 overall, 4-3 conference) hosts Traverse City St. Francis on Thursday, May 6.

Softball team sweeps

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was an up and down week for the Charlevoix Rayders softball team as they swept non-conference foe St. Ignace in a home doubleheader, 15-0 and 18-3, but lost two on the road to Kalkaska, 12-2 and 10-0.

"Against St. Ignace, we played solid defense and kept the attack at the plate going throughout both games," coach Liz Grunch said.

In game one against the Saints, Jessica Pettis, Sally Haselschwardt, Andrea Ruhlman and Denise Barta had two hits apiece. Haselschwardt and Ruhlman each tripled.

Monica Cornell picked up the win in the mercy rule victory with relief assistance from freshman Sasha Spencley.

Gen Kochanny led the hitting in game two with a four-for-four performance at the plate. Haselschwardt again singled and tripled. Barta had two hits and Ruhlman hit another triple.

Spencley went the distance for the pitching victory.

"Sasha did a great job getting the ball over the plate," Grunch said.

Charlevoix was only outhit 7-6 in game one against Kalkaska but a five-run Blazer second inning was too much for the Rayders to overcome.

Amanda Boss had two hits. Pettis, Ruhlman, Barta and Spencley each had one.

Cornell took the pitching loss, striking out six in five innings but giving up nine walks.

The Rayder bats were silenced in the nightcap, as the only Charlevoix hit was a double by Haselschwardt. Nicole Higdon took the loss.

Charlevoix (2-5 conference, 5-8 overall) hosts Traverse City St. Francis on Thursday, May 6.

Citizens could help city find areas to cut change in order to meet the demands of the budget. There is also $25,000 budgeted to have a consultant assist in this effort.

BUDGET

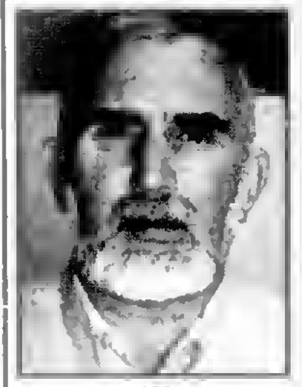
Rick Brandi



Mike Wiesner

The committee, working in conjunction with city council, will get to work in January of 2005 to see what can stay and what may have to go.

In the meantime, Brandi and Wiesner are gathering information to be considered.

Part of the data the group will review includes two studies, one done by the auditing firm Plante Moran called "System Failure: Michigan's Broken Municipal Finance Model" and another prepared by the MML called "Cities and Villages at the Crossroads: Fiscal Problems Facing Local Officials."

The other big piece of information will be a list of all the services the city currently provides, from police officers to Mount McSauba.

Wiesner explained Charlevoix's revenue squeeze has many factors that play into it including declining state revenue sharing and decreasing money from the state's gas and weight tax. But he said the two major problems are Proposal A and the Headlee Amendment that have tied the city's hands. Both are laws limiting the amount of taxes Michigan governments can collect.

Those limitations have serious implications for the city's revenue, 14 percent of which comes from property taxes.

The Headlee Amendment was adopted in 1978 and limits the total amount of taxes government agencies in Michigan can collect. Proposal A came into being in 1994 and keeps the growth of property values in check with the inflation rate.

In Charlevoix, there is just over $86 million in property value that can't be taxed because of these laws. That equates to about a $1 million loss in potential revenue for the city, which is 7 percent of the current budget. And this tax free property value continues to climb.

The Plante Moran study says these two tax relief measures are resulting in service cuts and the loss of residents from communities.

The report also says that communities with room to grow can increase their tax base when new homes are built and new businesses locate there. But in Charlevoix, where the city is bound by water and basically built out, there are few ways to increase revenue because there is little growth potential.

Wiesner and Brandi did not advocate changing the system but both said changes are inevitable in order to overcome the obstacles it has created.

One option other than making cuts is to ask residents for extra taxes — which is permitted by the Headlee Amendment. However, as Wiesner and Brandi pointed out, this is generally not met with open arms by residents. Of 17 communities that attempted it in the past two years only two were successful. The city's current millage rate is 12.1618 mills.

"And that (extra taxes) is only a temporary fix. It buys you time until it gets rolled back again (by Headlee)," Brandi said.

Whatever long-term fix the committee comes up with Wiesner said it will likely have an impact.

"We try to operate very efficiently. I don't think there are places you could reduce expenditures and not see it," he said.

Judge to decide the fate of Sunnybank's plan

PLAN

John Hess, a city planning commissioner and a resident that lives near the proposed Sunnybank site urged council not to sign the consent order and agree that the ordinance is invalid in relation to this site.

"It gives the other side leverage they really don't need," he said.

The Sunnybank group also has another strong trump card to play — in the consent order the city agrees that there is a demonstrated need for this type of facility.

According to Engstrom, this is a strength for the Sunnybank group because according to state statute a municipality can't exclude a use when it is proven to be needed.

Hess said as far as he knows no one has demonstrated this need.

But Young said testimony from Harsch supports that there is a need.

"Based on testimony on the record from our own witness, there are sufficient facts to show there is a need. A judge is going to find there is a demonstrated need," he said.

Harsch said he based his testimony on city demographic data he gathered when the planning commission was preparing its ordinance amendment.

This consent order will now be passed along to Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas who during an evidentiary hearing will decide whether the project is a reasonable use of the proposed site.

Pajtas said the standards by which he has to make this determination will come from the two sides. He will listen to testimony and review the site plan.

Within the next couple weeks, copies of the consent order will be given to all the property owners within 300 feet of the site. Those people will then have 14 days to request to intervene to represent their individual interests.

The city plans to have intervention forms available at city hall.

Charlevoix resident Bill Joy, who lives near the proposed site, said, "I'm sure I'm going to be there. Just because you sue someone doesn't mean you get to circumvent zoning."

Hess will also likely intervene. In an affidavit included in the suit, he states Sunnybank is a higher density project than is supported by the zoning ordinance, it would be a business use in a residential area, that its physical appearance doesn't mesh with the surrounding neighborhood and that parking and traffic problems would likely arise.

Engstrom will rebut that argument at the hearing.

"It's not going to harm their property values, it's not going to cause traffic. The people aren't going to cause noise. It's a good facility. The only issue remaining is whether its reasonable on that property," Engstrom said.

Students volunteer on island

National Volunteer Week was the kick-off for the seventh and eighth grade "Honor our Local Heroes" campaign on Beaver Island.

Prior to this week, the students contacted the 32 volunteer organizations on Beaver Island, asking for a list of their volunteer members. Over 300 names appeared on these lists.

Next the students contacted local businesses asking for a donation of a small gift to be awarded to some of these volunteers.

The response was overwhelming. Gifts poured into the school during the week. Each day during the school week, names of volunteers were drawn randomly and awarded a gift from these businesses.

Also, signs were posted around the community listing the organization, its members and the statement "Recognizing Our Local Heroes."

VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

The time honored Charlevoix tradition of "Venetian," and the overwhelming community support of Charlevoix's homecoming celebration, rolls into its 74th year! The labor of love shown each year, by the legions of volunteers who bring "Venetian" to life, remains a tribute to the Charlevoix spirit of community. "Venetian" would likewise not be possible without the support of those individuals, organizations and businesses which comprise the Venetian Burgee Club. Year in and year out, Burgee Club members generously contribute the funds, goods and services which make the Festival a financial reality. It is a pleasure to acknowledge and thank the members of the 2003 Venetian Burgee Club, who are reflected below.

Stone: You can survive Wal-Mart's presence

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Life in Charlevoix with or without a Wal-Mart Supercenter will have economic implications.

Ken Stone, an Iowa economist who has studied the effects of Wal-Mart on communities for many years, was in Charlevoix May 6 to discuss how local businesses can compete with "big box" stores.

The seminar, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, is a reaction to Wal-Mart's plan to develop a 155,000 square foot supercenter on a piece of property near Marion Center and Stover roads in Charlevoix Township.

As the planning effort for this huge store has gained momentum over the past two years, so has the campaign to fight it.

Merchants in the local business community, the chamber and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority have all come out against the project. They claim it threatens the vitality of local stores and Charlevoix's small town appeal.

At last week's seminar, Stone told a group of concerned Charlevoix area business members that while their fears of the mega-retailer are valid, a supercenter could have a greater economic impact if Wal-Mart drops its Charlevoix plan and locates to an outlying town, like East Jordan or Boyne City. Stone has dubbed this theory the "law of unintended consequences."

"When $1 million leaves Charlevoix, its more than $1 million. It turns over about five times before it peters out generating about $600,000 to $700,000 in ripple effect," he said.

He said if Wal-Mart is built in Charlevoix, it will

School to offer all-day kindergarten

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A new all day kindergarten program will makes its debut at Charlevoix Elementary School in the fall of 2004.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education approved the new program at its meeting Monday night.

"There are a lot of reasons to get behind this with regards to research. It will make us more competitive than we are now and there are pluses on the education end of things," school board president Dennis Halverson said.

He explained that the district has been losing students to other schools like St. Mary's, that have the full-day option. And other schools have decided to offer it because of its proven academic benefit. Proponents of this approach argue it better prepares students for first grade.

Elementary School principal Dick Swenor said the biggest gains from this type of program have been seen in at-risk children who show higher achievement. Other benefits include less attendance problems and fewer transitions for children with attention disorders who have problems switching from a daycare environment, to school and back to daycare.

While the program will help at-risk kids the most, they won't be the only ones in it. Swenor said the greatest benefit is seen in a mixed classroom with high, moderate and low achievers.

This new concept has been a hit with parents. In fact, it has generated so much interest that not all the parents who want their child in the program will get a spot.

Two all-day sessions will be offered to accommodate about

Student project hopes to lure butterflies

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Butterflies will soon have a new landing pad in town.

Science students at Charlevoix Middle School and members of The Builders Club, an offshoot of Kiwanis International, are working with the Charlevoix Area Garden Club to craft a butterfly garden on school grounds.

"We thought it would be beautiful and something the children could really learn from and take so much pride in showing off," Mary Kengle, Charlevoix Area Garden Club chairperson for the butterfly garden, said.

Middle school counselor Kasie LaFramboise, who helps coordinate the group, said the local garden club approached the students with the idea, setting the plans in motion.

"It really fits with their (The Builders Club's) whole philosophy of building a better community and school," LaFramboise said.

The kids have since learned about butterfly migration and garden planning.

The site they chose is located off the science wing between the rear parking lot and track area. The final product will include a pond, shrubs and bright annual and perennial flowers that attract butterflies.

Erica Moses, The Builders Club's volunteer committee member, said they are hoping to see monarch butterflies use the site for breeding and as a summer migration destination.

The group of about 20 kids that have been involved in the project celebrated its official start on April 30 at a groundbreaking ceremony.

Once warm weather hits they'll start the planting effort. This summer the group plans to sign up on a garden maintenance schedule to make sure it stays in top shape.

"It's going to feel like a big accomplishment. We are all working together and putting a big effort in to make it one big garden," Chelsey Haske, the 12-year-old president of the Builders Club, said.

All-day Kindergarten an excellent addition

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix Community Schools has added more options for parents of young children with the addition of an all-day kindergarten.

The new program will make its début in the fall of 2004. It was approved by the school board Monday night.

According to the schools, the addition of an all-day kindergarten to its regular half-day program, will make the school district more competitive with others in the community and give those students that attend the program some academic benefits.

The district has said it is loosing some young students to schools, like St. Mary's, that already offer an all-day program.

Plus, while children in an all-day program do not necessarily learn more than their counterparts in a half-day program, they get more time to absorb the information that is being presented to them. This makes the program especially beneficial to "at-risk" children, which have shown the biggest gains in studies of all-day Kindergarten programs.

Other benefits include less attendance problems and fewer transitions for children with attention disorders who have problems switching from a daycare environment, to school and back to daycare.

And the program is already popular among Charlevoix parents. According to the school district out of the 89 students that registered for Kindergarten this year, 50 parents chose the full-day program.

However, while this is popular it creates problems for the school district, because the new program can only handle about 40 students. While it would be nice to open up another all-day class because of the interest, the school budget will not allow for this.

Therefore, parents must submit to a lottery and hopefully their children will get in.

This all-day program is a great idea for the children and parents of Charlevoix. It is a wonderful addition to our public schools. It is hoped that the district can find additional funds in the future to further fund the program and expand it to include all children whose parents would like to take part.

Keep an eye open for area's overlooked flowers

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

This is the season when those of us who enjoy finding, or even photographing, the spring flowers are most pleased with the world.

The woods are full of new growth and flowers seem to be more abundant than in any other season. Maybe it is just that winter is finally over. Among the plants I especially enjoy looking for during this early spring season are some that almost always escape our collective notice.

Many years ago I saw an issue of Life Magazine that had a photo essay on what were called "belly plants." These were found in the southwest deserts after spring rains, and were only an inch or two high when they were finished with growth and flowering. They had to be small to manage their entire life cycle from seed to flowers and back to seed before the limited moisture of a desert spring was exhausted. It was years before I discovered that such plants were not found only in deserts, but were part of spring almost everywhere. Does Michigan have its share of these tiny, overlooked spring flowers? Yes indeed. There are at least a half-dozen different kinds to be found in Charlevoix.

Where should you look for our smallest spring flowers? Look in places were there isn't much grass, and where life is difficult for any sort of plant: desert-like places with extremely shallow soil, very little moisture, and a lot of light. If something is as small as these plants, a desert need not be more than a few feet across. Look for the smallest white flowers you have ever seen on plants that are an inch or so tall. One plant is a tiny Primrose with a single minute white flower on a inch high stalk. Another is a diminutive relative of the tall, yellow mustard plants. It also has white flowers, each in the form of a cross with four white petals open to the sun. And there are a whole bunch of what are called dwarf Chickweeds. Many of these are described as rare plants, but most of their apparent rarity is the product of small size and inconspicuous growth.

The entire growing season for these plants is about three weeks in April and early May. Each of them produces enough seed to almost assure that the same tiny plants will grow in the same place next year. None of the seeds will germinate until next spring, no matter how much it may rain in summer or fall. No one knows exactly how these minute plants and their tiny seeds manage to survive so well.

Life is rich and complicated, and while we may drive satisfaction from finding the largest blooms or the tallest plants, the smallest of them can be equally fascinating.

Next time you are out walking the dog or just wandering around Charlevoix, see if you can find some of our own home grown "belly plants."

Letters to the editor

Thank you

Editor:

In recognition of National EMS Week (May 16 - 22), I would like to invite the general public to take a moment to give a well deserved "Thank You" to their local EMS providers. In today's hectic environment, it's wonderful to know that these people have taken the time to complete the training required to provide this service to their communities.

EMS field providers face many challenges including threats to their safety, shift work, a high stress work environment, low salaries (many volunteer their time), and difficulty meeting the physical demands of a long career in EMS. It really is dedication in its truest form.

I encourage everyone to take a moment to make a phone call, or drop a note to your local agencies in support of their ongoing efforts to provide emergency medical service to your area.

Response to letter

Editor:

Writing a letter to the editor is a fine example of freedom of speech in this country and a sure fire way to get your opinion to the public; however if one uses this means to express an opinion it is a good idea to get your facts straight before attempting to discredit an individual in public. So, I am compelled to respond to Mrs. Wright's letter to the editor in the Charlevoix Courier of April 28, 2004 wherein she stated that I have used my position as an elected member of city council in order for the tax payers to reimburse attorney fees so that I could confront a neighbor.

The attorney was hired to analyze a zoning ordinance not to confront any neighbor about anything. City Council voted to reimburse my fees when four weeks prior they voted to reimburse the city planners for hiring an attorney, which set a dangerous precedent. A resolution has now been passed so that in the future any member of council or planning must receive prior approval from council for outside legal

Do something about jobs

Editor:

Lets all forget about Wal-Mart for a moment. What are city leaders doing now to bring more full-time year-round jobs to Charlevoix?

How many new jobs will be created after building a $12 million marina and a $7 million library? Are they offering tax breaks and incentives to entice companies to relocate here or maybe expand their existing facilities? What are they doing to fill vacant buildings? The gas station at the corner of US-31 and M-66 has been empty for years, and now a new office building is planned to be built there. Will this create new high-end jobs for the future of Charlevoix? Not likely. What about the former site of Hoskins Industries, which has been closed for some time now. Are city leaders looking for another business to fill that space? And what of the businesses in and around the downtown? Some say that they can't stay open year-round because it would be too expensive. Then maybe those businesses should get a break on their lease or the city could offer an incentive for them to stay open year-round.

Then again it's probably easier to send people to Wal-Mart in Petoskey than to try to figure out what would keep people shopping in Charlevoix.

No smoking/drinking bowling needed

Editor:

Do you like bowling when you know that smokers/drinkers are around? Well, most childrent/parents don't like to bowl when smokers/drinkers are around. That's why I think that there should be a non-smoking/drinking bowling center.

First of all, most children/adults that bowl aren't likely to like the smell of smoke, when you come out of the bowling alley. Sometimes even after you wash your clothes they still smell like smoke and it doesn't smell very good. Also, people that smell like smoke might get addicted to the smell and start smoking.

We should also have a non-smoking/drinking bowling center for health reasons. People who inhale second-hand smoke can die or get serious diseases from second-hand smoke. When smoke gets into your body it can hurt you very badly, and affect your breathing. Smoke can also make your lungs black, even if it is second-hand smoke.

In addition, a lot of people don't want to worry about where to go because of smoking. Some people don't smoke or drink so it might feel awkward for them to go bowling, at the bowling center. People who have children probably don't want their kids being harmed by the smoke. Lastly, some people have allergic reactions to smoke, and might be injured.

In conclusion, I would like to say that we should have a non-smoking and drinking bowling center. Mostly people shouldn't have to worry about their health, because of smoking from bowling centers.

Boss not doing his job

Editor:

To the residents of Norwood Township,

We are being poorly served by Township Supervisor Wayne Boss. For five months I have been requesting a plan from Mr. Boss for the future use of citizen tax moneys on the roads of Norwood Township and Mr. Boss has not complied with my requests and has said he didn't have such a report.

It makes one wonder how road decisions were made in the past, doesn't it, if there were not written plans or reports published to tax payers? We in the township will be asked to vote for a road millage in the fall. How can we make intelligent choices if we don't have information?

At the March Township Board meeting Mr. Boss told me he would have at least a three year plan available to me at the next meeting.

The April 19 meeting came and Mr. Boss did not have the report. He said he didn't have it. When I asked why he didn't have it he said "I didn't do it." I filed a Freedom of Information Act request on April 21 and the clerk sent it on to Mr. Boss as she did not have the information herself. The clerk sent me a message on May 1 stating that she does not have that document yet.

The clerk of Norwood Township has done her job, but Mr. Boss has not and it appears that he doesn't intend to after five months of requests.

I find it hard to believe his protestations that he is working hard for the township when he cannot produce this document after five months of requests. I think all of us in Norwood Township deserve better treatment than this.

We will be asked to vote for a road millage this year; at present, without some information on how our tax moneys will be spent, I think our response should be a resounding no vote on the proposed road millage.

Golf camp to give scholarships once again

Several lucky youngsters that participated in the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's 2003 summer program will be awarded scholarships to attend the prestigious golf camp at Ferris State University this summer.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the popular summer program, announced that the Association's Board members approved renewing the scholarship program with Ferris State University. Awards will be likely made to six deserving Juniors for scholarships enabling them to spend a week on the campus of Ferris State.

Applicants must have participated in more than half of the past summer's sessions and be at least 12 years of age to be eligible. Application packets were mailed recently to over 70 youngsters that qualified for consideration. Winners are selected because of their dedication and interest in golf, their potential and the manner in which they respond to the official application questions. During the past seven years 50 junior golfers from the Charlevoix area have been awarded scholarships.

Local PGA professional from the Belvedere Golf Club, Steve Braun again adds greatly to the camp scholarship fund by taking pledges for his "100 Holes in a Day" fund-raiser last fall.

Dennis LaCroix, board president, said, "Steve's effort is greatly appreciated by all of us connected to the program. His dedication and interest in young golfers is typical of the excellent cooperation we get from everyone including the courses that host our golfers'; Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells, the Belvedere, municipal and the Charlevoix Country Club."

Sam Supernaw, board treasurer, said, "Our major fund-raiser, the Supe Classic Golf Tournament, has helped fund this project through the years and last year we sent the most recipients ever to a wee's golf camp. It's been a great experience for them, not only to learn more about the game, but to do so at a great setting like a college campus."

More information regarding this year's program and the June 10 registration procedures will be announced soon.

Congregational church to host string orchestra Sunday

At 4 p.m. Sunday, May 16 at the First Congregational/UCC of Charlevoix, the Sunday,s at Four concert series will present a group of area musicians in the annual Young Artists Concert.

Appearing for the first time will be the newly formed Northwest Academy String Orchestra under the direction of guest conductor, Robert Dudd.

The instrumental soloists and ensembles will include a flute duet and quartet, a clarinet choir, sax quartet and trio, a brass sextet, as well as violin, piano and sax solos.

The soloists and ensembles will be performing works of J.S. Bach, Vivaldi, Handel, Mitushkin, Deviene, and J.C. Bach. The orchestra will play works by Frost, Nylhybel and Mauret-Leidig.

All of these young people received high praise from adjudicators at the state festival.

One comment was, "The musicians performed at a level that many students never realize, and the judges who listen to them are very impressed with their sensitivity to the music and the way they approach their craft."

Gary Stutzman is the director of bands and the orchestra at Northwest Academy.

Elizabeth Humphrey will accompany the soloists.

There is no charge but a donation will be gratefully accepted. The public is encouraged to attend and cordially invited to a reception honoring the young artists following the program.

Charlevoix Senior Center begins expansion

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Senior Center is expanding.

The center provides meals to hundreds of people every week. But what regulars who go there to socialize and fill up on reasonably priced, hot, homemade dishes may not realize, is the kitchen staff is working elbow to elbow to make it come together.

"We are getting more and more clients and customers all the time. We've got to add on to the kitchen. There just isn't enough space," Earl Muma, director of the Charlevoix Senior Center, said.

Head cook at the center, Janet Dobrowloski, said, "Everything is lacking in the kitchen. It's crowded, we don't have enough counter space, the oven and butcher block are both too small, we need a commercial dishwasher and we have refrigeration problems."

Since 2002, Muma has been working to expand the current kitchen to make way for these improvements and to give the cooks more room to work in.

Last week, on May 5, Muma's efforts came to fruition at a groundbreaking ceremony. The project will build a 800 square foot addition at the back of the center.

"If you ever lived in a sardine can and all of a sudden you get a cracker box, that's what this is going to feel like," Muma said.

Former Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud was an honorary guest at the groundbreaking because he was in office in 1988 when the township deeded its old hall to the center.

"I'm for anything they can do to make it bigger and better to serve the people here. As long as they don't give it away," Stroud joked.

The addition and renovation project will not only add space, it will also update the space and appliances. A double oven and larger range will be installed, a walk-in refrigerator and freezer will be added and cabinets will be installed.

The project will cost the center about $100,000. The fund-raising effort has reached the $50,000 mark through the generosity of contributors and grants. Muma is crossing his fingers that more donations come in and grants come through.

The addition project is expected to be complete this fall. Muma is hoping if the center has to close during construction it will only be for about a week and he may request use of the kitchen at the Charlevoix County Jail to cover the center's Meals on Wheels program.

On May 5 the Charlevoix Senior Center celebrated its birthday. Here Earl Muma serves ice cream to Joe Powell at the lunch celebration. After those who attended ate they went outside to break ground on a new addition to the center.

Immunizations needed for a healthy lifestyle

As a polio survivor, Paul Van Wagoner, of Petoskey, encourages parents of infants to fully immunize their children.

Immunizations prevent many infectious diseases that disabled or killed children in our grandparents' day.

Van Wagoner contracted polio as an infant, paralyzing his shoulder His parents chose therapies to keep as much movement as possible through his shoulder and arm.

"My parents encouraged me to knit, to play the saxophone, and to exercise, anything to keep improving dexterity," he said. "My dad was a physical education teacher and I could see the benefits of exercise."

It paid off. Van Wagoner went on to play basketball at the college level and devoted a career to teaching and coaching. But still, he says there are prices to pay for the polio he contracted so many years ago. He finds his body is continually making adjustments to the problems in his shoulder. He has lower back pain.

"It's something I have to deal with every day," he said.

"Immunizations are safe and protect our families and community," said Patricia Fralick, director of Family Health of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. "They are one of our most successful and cost-effective public health strategies."

Immunizations not only protect vaccinated individuals from developing potentially serious diseases, they also help protect entire communities by preventing and reducing the spread of infectious agents.

Outstanding progress has been made in immunization rates for children younger than 2 years old. Nationwide, immunization levels are high for most vaccines and most vaccine-preventable deaths have been reduced by more than 99 percent since the introduction of vaccines.

Vaccines not only save lives, they save money. Infant Immunization is a simple and inexpensive way to protect children from 11 potentially deadly infectious diseases. For example, our nation saves $14.50 in direct and indirect costs for each dollar invested in giving the Hepatitis B vaccine to infants at birth and two months of age. Each dollar spent on the measles-mumps-rubella vaccine generates about $23 in total savings or about $9 billion each year.

In the four-county district served by the health department, childhood immunization rates match state and national rates.

"We must keep working to ensure all of our children have all of the vaccines needed to protect their health," said Fralick.

For additional information regarding infant immunizations, contact your child's health care provider or your local health department office.

BUSINESS

Mother, daughter team up with business venture

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Kris Way and her daughter Kelly Way are teaming up to satisfy the caffeine needs of Charlevoix residents and visitors.

The mother-daughter combo are the new owners of The Coffee Shop, formerly Black Bear Coffee, in downtown Charlevoix on Bridge Street.

Kris said she decided to purchase the business because she loves Charlevoix's downtown.

"I love being downtown. I love coming downtown," she said. "I just decided I would rather work for myself."

With this new team behind the counter, customers will see a few changes at The Coffee Shop.

Kris said she has redesigned many of the recipes of foods and drinks sold at the business and has made a lot of cosmetic changes. She added The Coffee Shop also has halted selling lunches and has decided to stick to coffee and baked goods.

She said they have also added a line of rustic-style bird houses and paintings.

While The Coffee Shop can offer its customers a variety of coffee flavors and bulk coffee, it also has tea, baked goods, espresso drinks, candy and nut products, hot chocolate and steamers. Plus, those who enjoy technology can make use of The Coffee Shop's wireless Internet connection — customers must provide their own laptop computer though — and there is a television that patrons can enjoy.

As for baked goods, Kris said she sells pies from the Grand Traverse Pie Company, Johan's bagels and products from Friske's Orchard and Farm Market in Atwood.

The Coffee Shop is open during the winter from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday. She said as it gets closer to summer and more people are in town, she will increase her hours on Friday and Saturday.

During the summer, The Coffee Shop's hours will be 6 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week.

They can be contacted by calling (231) 547-9663.

Charlevoix students take medals for problem solving

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff Writer

A group of four seventh grade boys at Charlevoix Middle School have proven that together, they can solve the problems of the future.

The boys, Michael Heckendorn, Collin McDonough, Thomas Parrish and Weston Bryan were awarded a fourth place finish for presentation of best solution in the Michigan Future Problem Solving Program Bowl March 27 at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

The Future Problem Solvers program, which was developed in 1973 at the University of Georgia, challenges students to creatively seek, attack and solve problems that may arise in the future. Nationwide there are about 200,000 students from the United States and foreign countries participating, 8,000-10,000 of those are in the state of Michigan.

The four boys were the only one's to make the state competition out of seven Charlevoix Middle School groups to submit a qualifying packet.

Pat Miller, the program coach and middle school science teacher, said the fact that each boy brings a unique skill to the problem solving table is what set them apart from the rest.

She said Weston is the academic, Parrish is the level headed one, Heckendorn is the supervisor and McDonough provides writing skills and comic relief.

"The uniqueness of this team has made them successful. They are four different boys pulling their strength from four different areas. Plus, they are all friends and respect each other," Miller said.

At the bowl, the boys were given a problem — "How to fix a media monopoly." Then, they went into an isolated room for two hours and worked on a set of 16 problems and solutions related to the fictitions media debacle.

As their time wound down the Charlevoix group picked their best scenario and presented it to a panel of judges and other problem solvers using a set of props that included tin foil and paper plates.

It was this presentation that earned them a fourth place finish among 10 teams.

They said the exciting finish has their gears turning for next year's bowl. Their goal is to place first in the world at the international competition. They said meeting this goal will take more training and research.

While they look forward to more challenges and the thrill of competition, Miller said what they are taking away will last longer than the weekend bowl.

She said the program's emphasis on higher thinking and problem solving skills benefit the students in the classroom and in life.

"The skills they learn here they use in everyday life — in school, on the playing field — it's a six-step (problem solving) process that helps you make meaningful decisions," Miller said.

City gets grants for land use planning

Coastal Zone and PAL Grants are in place for Charlevoix Planning Area Multi-Jurisdictional Smart Growth Land Use Planning Initiative.

The Michigan Coastal Zone Management Program has provided a grant to the City of Charlevoix.

The People and Land Program, sponsored by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, has provided a matching grant to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The grants are to support a smart growth land use planning initiative which is designed to involve the citizens of Charlevoix, Marion, Hayes, Eveline and Norwood townships and the City of Charlevoix in an area wide land use planning initiative to be undertaken this spring and summer.

This initiative is intended to address, on a coordinated basis, the issues of accommodation of future land use needs, inadvertent sprawl, maintenance of open space and rural character, loss of farmland, etc.

The planning initiative will be initiated with a meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 18 at the Charlevoix Township Hall. This event will be keynoted by Brian Warner a member of the Michigan Land Use Leadership Council.

A subsequent visioning session will be on May 25. With a vision for the area developed in these two sessions, a planning charrette will be held beginning on the evening of Thursday, June 24, continuing through Saturday, June 26.

A charrette is a collaborative planning process that harnesses the talents and energies of all interested parties to create and support a buildable smart growth plan. The citizen stakeholders from the five townships and the City are encouraged to attend and participate in this initiative.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Gerry Harsh, city planner for the City of Charlevoix, at 547-3254.

Beaver Island 'citizens of the year' named

Hospice of Helping Hands and Connie Wojan were honored by the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce as citizens of the year at a recent banquet.

Chamber of Commerce President Kathy Speck spoke at the April 24 event saying there has been amazing growth of interest shown in the prestigious award. This is the third year the island chamber has given out the award.

Speck said, "This year alone we received over 30 nominations and two of those nominations were signed by over 50 people."

Speck announced all of the nominees in both award categories and included comments from the written nominations received by the chamber.

This year's Citizen of the Year organization was Hospice & Helping Hands.

Speck said this group, originally organized by Joyce Runberg and Pat Rowley, has volunteers in place year-round to assist anyone with a need for their services.

The 19 Hospice and Helping Hands volunteers are: Joyce Runberg, Sandy LoDico, Karen Whitecraft, Penny Young, Jane Dwyer, Mary Kay Dorais, Di Shoop, Lois Rich, Helen Pike, Pat Rowley, Lois Williams, Pinky Harmon, Margaret Bass, Sue Welke, Floss Frank, Kay McElwain, Shirley Sowa, Nancy Cull and Eula Thomas.

Harmon formally accepted the award.

"It's been a rare privilege to serve with these guys," said Harmon, who invited anyone interested in helping those in need to join the organization. Hospice and Helping Hands volunteer Sandy LoDico said the group plans to display their award at the new Health Center.

The individual Citizen of the Year was Connie Wojan.

Speck said Wojan has served the community with countless volunteer hours over the years in a variety of capacities, including 12 years on the school board, where as president she saw the school through difficult mileage votes and accomplished the construction of the new gym and addition. Wojan also volunteers her time at the Beaver Island Library conducting "Story Hour" for the children, as well as volunteering at Holy Cross Church, scheduling all the servers at mass and singing in the choir.

Wojan currently serves as the president of the Beaver Island Rural Health Center Board, a special contribution for her as she continues the legacy of her mother's (Laurene Adams) dedication to the Health Center.

Wojan said she would like to share the award with all members of the Health Center Board of Directors — past and present — who have worked so tirelessly to bring quality health care to Beaver Island.

In addition to the framed photograph, the award winners also received Special Tributes for their service to the island community from state officials. The Special Tributes were signed by State Senator Jason Allen, State Representative Kenneth L. Bradstreet and Governor Jennifer Granholm.

Scammers selling paving work may be coming to area

Each year traveling criminals come to northern Michigan to do hit and run paving work.

Homeowners and business owners are urged by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office to be especially cautious when approached by people selling asphalt paving and sealing products.

Traveling criminals were very active in Northern Michigan last year. They are expected to return in force during the spring, summer and fall of 2004. If suspicious of fraudulent activity, consumers should call the nearest local law enforcement agency.

Traveling criminals usually leave their customers with a driveway or parking area that will eventually reveal poor workmanship. Poor work is not always evident immediately. Problems may not appear for several weeks or months. The traveling criminal paver will be long-gone when the pavement begins to break up, making legal action difficult or impossible.

Traveling criminals traditionally have no real local business address. They are even known to use the name of a reputable local asphalt supplier in order to win customer confidence. They may use business cards and truck signs that appear legitimate. Addresses and telephone numbers are frequently those of only an answering service in another city.

Traveling criminals sell asphalt paving material door-to-door after having scouted neighborhoods for their best targets. Their sales pitch is designed to appeal to those who are especially susceptible to the offer of a so-called bargain. Their victims are often Northern Michigan senior citizens.

If suspicious of fraudulent activity, please contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office or any police agency so they can assist you at 547-4461.

Brass band to present spring concert May 23

The Northern Michigan Brass Band will present a spring concert beginning at 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 23, at the First Congregational Church, located at 101 State Street, in Charlevoix.

Now in its fifth year of operation, this 28 member, British-style ensemble will perform a program of traditional British and American brass band music by Percy Grainger, Aaron Copland, George Gershwin, Claudio Grafulla, James Curnow, John Williams and Count Basie. Admission is by donation.

Long a tradition in Great Britain, the brass band movement has been gaining increasing popularity in the United States in recent years, according to founder and conductor Ralph Schweigert.

"In the mid-nineteenth century, brass bands were common on both sides of the Atlantic," Schweigert said. "In America, the concert band, which includes woodwind instruments, over-shadowed and eventually replaced the all-brass instrumentation that continued full force in England.

Centered in Gaylord, the all-volunteer band has attracted enthusiastic adult brass players from throughout the northern half of the Lower Peninsula including Clare, Mancelona, Alpena, Beulah, Johannesburg, Gaylord, Bellaire, Standish, Petoskey, Cheboygan, Mackinaw City, Gladwin, Charlevoix and Traverse City.

Since the band was organized in January 1999, it has presented over 25 concerts at various locations throughout northern Michigan.

Many parents like the all-day option

ALL-DAY

40 students. At kindergarten registration, which took place April 26 and 27, 104 students signed up for the 2004-2005 school year.

Out of the 89 students that registered for regular kindergarten, 50 parents chose the full-day program. And of the 15 that registered for "Begindergarten," a low-key alternative to kindergarten, 13 asked for a full-day option. There will be no full-day Begindergarten program.

Swenor said three full day sessions are not being offered because of financial constraints.

Because demand is greater than what the program can accommodate, a lottery will take place this week to see what students will be accepted into the full-day program.

The 23 students who don't make the cut for the full-day program will be put in one of four half day sessions. The half-day sessions run just over three hours each, five days a week. The full day program will follow the regular school schedule that lasts for about seven hours.

The lottery system has some parents nervous.

"I'm just hoping we get a call next week," Charlevoix resident Mel Spencely, whose son is starting kindergarten in the fall.

"I really want him to have that little bit of head start if he can. I just don't want my son to fall behind, he loves school. If he doesn't get full day I'll just have to work with him more at home," she added.

Swenor said students in a full day classroom won't be asked to do more, they'll just have more time to learn through an in-depth approach to the curriculum.

"We are confident we can meet the needs of the kids whether its a half day or full day," he said.

Teachers for the full day program have not been chosen. A new kindergarten teacher will be hired to help keep class size under 20. Current kindergarten teachers include Jessica Martin, Diane Priess and Dorothy Miller.

The board is treating the all day program as a pilot that will be reviewed in June of 2005.

For more information about the kindergarten options call the school at 547-3215.

The Crooked Tree Summer Orchestra Strings Camp is designed to give students an opportunity to participate in both large and small ensemble experiences, as well as to take classes in music theory and weekly solo master classes.

The camp will be held Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays July 6-29. There will be special guest clinicians who will work with the students in the ensemble classes. Members of the faculty of Bay View are coaching the musicianship classes.

Students who are involved with the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra, the Beginning Strings Program in the schools, or who meet the level criteria for the classes, are encouraged to sign up. Interested students, not in a Crooked Tree Arts Center program, should call for an audition.

A Springfed Songwriting Workshop for students 11 to 15 years will meet on Saturday, June 26. Instructors are professional musicians and songwriters Michelle Chenard and John D. Lamb. Students will spend time writing, presenting and performing. Song assignments will be given following a group workshop with the instructors. Instructors will cover song structure and its meaning, finding chords and more. Students songs will be performed as 'works in progress' at the end of the day.

Dance classes will be held throughout the summer in ballet and hip-hop jazz, with instructors Cynthia Lee and Heather Raue.

For more information on the summer arts workshops, schedules and enrollment fees, call the arts center for an enrollment form, 347-4337, or go online to register, www.crookedtree.org. Limited enrollment for all classes, so early registration is encouraged. The arts center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey.

Prosecutors team up with attorney general on ID theft

The statewide campaign to crack down on identity theft, "It's MI Identity," is already having an impact on crime, Attorney General Mike Cox said recently after meeting with local prosecutors about the campaign in Charlevoix.

"Identity theft is an invisible mugging that can take place anywhere at any time. The sophisticated robber's weapon of choice in the 21 Century is a computer," Cox said. "The 'It's MI Identity' campaign investigates ID theft in adult resident care facilities, assists local law enforcement to help prosecute ID thieves, and raises public awareness about this crime and what citizens can do to protect themselves."

Cox's office currently has more than 40 warrants outstanding against suspected ID thieves and is pursuing another 30 complaints. Those cases so far in which a suspect was arrested and prosecuted include:

A nursing home resident who was victimized when ID thieves assumed the victim's identity-forging her signature on checks, forging withdrawal requests for resident's IRA and annuity accounts. The total amount embezzled was approximately $100,000. The victim was forced to go onto Medicaid after personal accounts were depleted.

A guardian who diverted $17,000 for her own use from the 89-year-old victim's Social Security and Chrysler Corp. pension fund over a three-year period and failed to make nursing home payments-forcing the victim onto Medicaid.

A thief who, during a one-year period, used the victim's Social Security checks for her own use instead of paying nursing home bills. Total amount embezzled exceeded $13,000.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur said her office welcomes Cox's assistance in the fight against ID theft.

"No one is safe from ID theft, and its effects can have devastating effects on Michigan families," Kur noted. "Combining our local efforts with the Attorney General's efforts will ensure greater protection for Michigan citizens from the pervasive threat of identity theft."

Grand Traverse County Prosecutor Dennis LaBelle said his office will also help raise public awareness by distributing information to citizens on how to protect themselves against ID theft and what to do if they're victimized.

"We are taking aggressive steps to guard the people of Michigan from this pernicious crime," Labelle said. "Our efforts are focused on quashing the rapid rise in this area of criminal activity."

Later this year, investigators and attorneys from Attorney General Cox's office will interview residents to get a snapshot of their financial picture and compare that with a free credit report. If the comparison reveals any discrepancies, such as additional credit cards or overdue payments, the Attorney General's office will investigate. This year, the "It's MI Identity Campaign" has interviewed citizens in facilities in Flint, Saginaw and Marquette.

draw its customers from Charlevoix and a radius of about 50 to 60 miles bringing between 4,000 and 5,000 carloads of shoppers each day. He anticipates most of this traffic coming from the south.

With these shoppers comes cash. Stone's research has found that stores that sell something Wal-Mart doesn't will enjoy some of the ripple effect money.

"People are starting to realize that if they have something different they can capitalize on the traffic," Stone said.

Stone's research in a tourist town called Spirit Lake, Iowa, where a Wal-Mart Supercenter is located, found businesses that have profited the most from Wal-Mart include furniture stores, restaurants and car dealerships. Restaurants in that small Iowa town realized a 10 percent hike in sales three years after Wal-Mart was up and running.

But Stone said not everyone will be lining their pocketbooks with Wal-Mart fallout — the grocery stores and Kmart will "feel it tremendously."

Stone said one of the existing local grocery stores in town will likely go out of business. He said the victim will be whichever of the two is less in tune with prices and service.

And he added that Kmart, located off M-66, will have to make changes or close its doors.

However, Stone said after briefly scanning the stores downtown, he doesn't feel they'll take much of a hit, if any. He said the key to making it with Wal-Mart in town is selling something they don't sell.

"My take is that a tourist town like this has a lot of unique stores and it probably wouldn't hurt too much," he said.

Stone explained that for merchants who try to go head-to-head with the Wal-Mart empire, defeat is almost certain. He said retail success in a supercenter town comes from selling something Wal-Mart doesn't sell.

But finding something Wal-Mart doesn't sell is a challenge in and of itself. Supercenters have 53 departments with everything from food and clothing to hardware and services including an oil change, a one hour photo lab and optical and hair care areas.

That means businesses like Charlevoix Camera, ACE Hardware, The Clothing Company and optometrists will be butting heads with Wal-Mart.

Jackie Dipert, owner of The Clothing Company, said she is still trying to figure out how she will survive if Wal-Mart comes to town.

She sells low to moderately priced clothing and said competing with Wal-Mart, who can sell some of the same clothing for less because of bulk buying power, would be next to impossible.

"So the question is does the local resident want me to carry higher priced merchandise," Dipert said.

Owner of The Bridge Street Book Shop, Jim Berlage, said he is facing the same problem and in some cases he would have to lose money to match Wal-Mart's prices because of the deals they get from their suppliers.

Dr. Steven Voci, a local optometrist with a shop off Clinton Street and another in East Jordan, said, he anticipates one of the three local part-time eye doctors' practices going out of business if Wal-Mart comes to town. He plans to fight for his practice by accepting a wide array of insurance and selling a high quality product complete with a more knowledgeable staff. He also plans to offer more extensive services like emergency eye care, better warranty options and a vast selection of products to choose from.

"We've worked hard at building what we've got. I hope we can keep it going and be able to continue to live here, because we love it here," Voci said.

Stone's survival advice for those like Voci that may have to compete in some way is to develop a strategy and get back to the basics of doing good business.

"Good local merchants that are in touch with the tastes and preferences of the local community make it," he said.

By developing strategy he suggests analyzing your market, developing a niche and determining necessary changes. He said some good business practices are establishing a flexible return policy, developing knowledge of the store and the products and establishing convenient hours.

In closing he said what will keep retailers afloat is attitude.

"If a Wal-Mart Supercenter does come it would behoove you to try and take a positive attitude — say I can compete with them. Take a negative attitude and there isn't much hope," he said.

After the seminar, President of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Jacqueline Merta said the chamber maintains its opposition to Wal-Mart locating a supercenter in Charlevoix.

Maura Snabes, chairman of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, said she saw some hope in Stone's commentary.

"I thought what stood out was it's not the host town that will suffer most, it's outside communities that will suffer most. A lot of stores downtown are very unique and have their own niche and I think they are going to be fine," she said.

The next host in the chamber's seminar series is Bob Negen with Whiz Bang Training. He will be in town June 17 to offer sales advice to people in the retail and service industries. For more information call the chamber at 547-2101.

Haske hired as girls' basketball coach

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix High School boys' basketball coach Keith Haske is also going to use his talents with the girls' basketball team next year.

Haske, also the middle school principal, was hired as the girls' varsity basketball coach by the Charlevoix School Board Monday. Haske said he will be coaching both the boys and girls teams.

In a letter to the school board, Charlevoix Athletic Director Jim Kanine said, "My vision for the girls' varsity basketball program is the same as the boys. I know of no better way to accomplish that vision than to hire Keith Haske as our girls' coach. Keith is a great competitor and he relishes the challenge of establishing the girls' program at the same elite level as the boys."

Kanine added he believes the students will do well under Haske's guidance.

"Not everyone is aware of Keith's rapport with student-athletes. He is an excellent communicator and a life-long educator. He likes kids and they respond well to him," Kanine said.

Haske said he started thinking about taking on the girls' coaching position after speaking with a few other coaches around the state that have taken on both the boys' and girls' basketball teams.

He said he learned it can be done and is actually a sensible fit.

Haske added he will be posting the assistant coaching positions for next year.

Charlevoix School Board Member Larry Levengood motioned to accept Kanine's recommendation to hire Haske. There were 10 applicants for the position and six people were interviewed.

Haske's hiring passed unanimously.

Haske has been the boys' varsity basketball coach for the past seven years.

Under his coaching, the teams have been to the final four on four different occasions and have played in the state finals twice.

The girls' team has had a fair amount of success over the years, with winning seasons for the last two, under the coaching of Jim Parrish.

However, Parrish was fired by Kanine over the winter.

Girls track team makes good stand in meet

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While the Charlevoix High School girls' track team had some tough meets last week, many Rayder competitors still had standout finishes in their events.

On May 7, the team took part in the Traverse City Invitational and on May 3, they took part in the Bellaire Invitational.

Mary Plude, girls' coach, said the Traverse City Invitational was tough, "but the girls did well against the larger schools."

Plude said the 1600 meter relay team ran their fastest time of the year and Lindi Edger had a personal best in the two mile.

"If she can do that at regionals it will qualify her to the state meet," Plude said.

At Bellaire, Plude said she only had about two-thirds of the squad because of other school commitments. Charlevoix finished seventh out of 13 teams at this meet.

Individual medalists for the Traverse City meet were:

- 3200 meter relay — the team of Michelle Rowe, Theresa Martin, Emily Westenbroek and Edger finished fourth with a time of 10 minutes, 41.3 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Jasmine Witthoeft, Shannon Dibble, Caitlin Ernst and Sonya Plude finished fourth with a time of 55.4 seconds.
- 3200 meter run — Edger finished fifth with a time of 12 minutes, 12.2 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — the team of Amy Drew, Martin, Dibble and Liz Madison finished fourth with a time of 4 minutes, 21.3 seconds.

Individual results for the Bellaire meet were:

- 3200 meter relay — a co-ed team with Rowe and Martin on it finished fourth with a time of 9 minutes, 40.4 seconds.
- 800 meter relay — the team of Witthoeft, Heffling, Ernst and Drew finished fourth with a time of 1 minute, 57.4 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — the team of Witthoeft, Heffling, Ernst and Dibble finished third with a time of 56.1 seconds.
- 1600 meter relay — a co-ed team with Drew and Edger on it finished second with a time of 4 minutes, 1.7 seconds.
- Long jump — Witthoeft finished first with a distance of 14 feet, 9 inches.

Soccer team has fantastic week on the field

Charlevoix dominated play throughout against Boyne City last week, winning 5-0.

The team improved to 4-2 in Lake Michigan conference play. The Rayders managed 17 shots on goal while the Ramblers' challenged Charlevoix keeper Laura Nitchman on six occasions.

Charlevoix got on the board early when senior tricaptain Shayna Drost finished on an assist from junior Jaime Pettis. The Rayders scored twice more before the break.

Freshman midfielder Zita Anderson finished on a corner kick sent by sophomore Stevie Murray and fellow sophomore Madison Ramsey sent home a rocket from 18 yards out, assisted by Drost. Second half scoring chances were completed by Pettis on an assist by Drost and by Ramsey on a penalty kick awarded to the Rayders when Pettis was fouled by the Boyne keeper.

Murray junior tri-captain Sarah Cross and junior Madison McKenzie controlled the Ramblers defensively. McKenzie also spent some time in the midfield, working with senior tri-captain Alyssia McDonough, Anderson and freshman Lori Zimmerman.

Rayders Player of the Game award went to the always hustling McKenzie.

The Rayders continued their winning ways with a strong showing against a good Traverse City team, winning 4-0, also last week.

Charlevoix scored just a minute into the match when junior Meghan Lame assisted senior Drost, who got behind the Traverse City defense and sent the ball home. From then on through the first half, Traverse City, playing with the wind, asserted themselves, winning most of the 50-50 balls and managing several shots on goalkeeper Nitchman.

. Traverse City actually put one in the net on an indirect kick resulting in no goal and a Charlevoix goal kick.

The Rayders came out strong in the second half and began to dominate the play, Pettis scored twice and Drost again on 2 assists by midfielder Madison Ramsey and one from Cross.

Charlevoix managed 13 shots on net while Nitchman recorded her fourth shutout of the season with five saves. Rayder player of the game honors went to Pettis.

Baseball team loses in double-header

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders suffered a heartbreaking doubleheader sweep to arch-rival Boyne City, 7-5 and 3-2.

"Both pitchers (Chris Waha and Jake Teuscher) had tremendous outings," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "I can't speak highly enough of the job Waha has done for us as a freshman on the varsity team, being thrown into the fire of a Boyne City-Charlevoix rivalry like this."

The Rayders trailed 5-0 heading into the last of the sixth but Charlevoix rallied to score five to force extra innings, before giving up two runs in the top of the eighth.

"This group has a lot of fight in them," Hawkins said. "It showed in (that) comeback and the all-around play in game two. We still have our moments of unsteadiness in the field and on the bases, but we're working hard on it in practice and learning as we go."

In game one, Tyler Bier went two-for-four with an RBI and run scored. Russell Williams was two-for-three with a double and run scored. Waha was two-for-three with a double and run scored.

Waha went seven innings on the mound, giving up only three earned runs, eight hits and two walks while striking out eight.

In the nightcap, Boyne scored three in the second and held on for the win. Charlevoix scored single runs in the fourth and fifth.

Jake Teuscher was the tough luck loser, throwing six innings and yielding only three hits, two walks and one earned run. He struck out three.

"Jake Teuscher is a bulldog out there on the mound," Hawkins said. "He won't back down from anybody. With (Waha and Teuscher) settled into our rotation, I think were poised to make a good run down the stretch and into the district tournament."

Michael Wojan had two of the Rayder hits and scored a run. Bier had the other hit and scored the other Charlevoix run.

Charlevoix (7-10 overall, 4-7 conference) travels to Maple City Glen Lake on Thursday, hosts Suttons Bay on Saturday and Grayling on Monday.

The Charlevoix junior varsity lost a doubleheader to Traverse City St. Francis, 7-3 and 3-1.

Zach Scharenbroch had three hits and Danny Waldron had two in the opener. In the nightcap, Zack Lake was the losing pitcher but gave up only three hits and one earned run. Jeremy Yaldo and Matt Heimbuch had the only Rayder hits.

Rayders' varsity softball team has rough week

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was a rough week on the diamond last week for the Charlevoix Rayders softball squad as they lost doubleheaders to Traverse City St. Francis, 9-1 and 13-8, and to Boyne City, 11-5 and 4-1.

"We've been struggling," coach Liz Grunch said. "We've been up and down on defense. We've played real well at time but errors keep hurting us."

In game one against St. Francis, Amanda Boss and Sally Haselschwardt had the Rayder hits. Monica Cornell took the pitching loss despite nine strikeouts.

In the nightcap, Boss, Gen Kochanny and Denise Barta had two hits apiece. Andrea Ruhlman and Sasha Spencley had singles as well. Nicole Higdon was the losing pitcher.

"We hit the ball pretty well," Grunch said. "But were not taking capitalizing, were leaving a lot of runners on base because we can't get the job done in the clutch situations."

Against Boyne in game one, Boss, Brittany Niswander and Spencley singled while Ruhlman and Cornell slugged doubles. Cornell took the loss while striking out seven Rambler hitters.

Jessica Pettis and Haselschwardt each had two hits in the nightcap. Ruhlman, Niswander, Barta and Kochanny also had hits for Charlevoix. Higdon suffered the pitching loss.

The Rayders (5-12 overall, 2-9 conference) travel to Maple City Glen Lake on Thursday, May 13 before hosting Suttons Bay on Saturday, May 15.

Hospice gearing up for annual fund-raising auction

This year's Hospice of Northwest Michigan auction has two significant changes from those in the past.

The event has been in early June, but this year the date is Friday, July 30. Also, for may years, the auction has been held at Boyne Mountain, an organization that has been (and still is) very supportive of Hospice, but an opportunity became available to use Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

The evening's activities start at 5:30 p.m. and, as in the past, will include both live and silent auctions. Scott MacKenzie and Rip Hayes will be the auctioneers.

Ticket prices will be $30 and $60 with corporate tables available at $90 per seat. A variety of hors d'oeuvres will be on hand as well as a cash bar. Two door prizes of $300 and $200 will be drawn during intervals in the program.

On June 1, tickets will be available at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Orchard Hills LTD in Bellaire, Adam's Madams in Central Lake and the Hospice Office in East Jordan as well as at the door. Hospice of Northwest Michigan is in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency that provides the clinical component of the program - nursing, social work, home health aides, chaplain and therapists.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan provides the volunteer, bereavement and fund-raising component of the program.

Sooo cute

Lydia Balyo, 4 of Charlevoix, took her 8-week-old Golden Retriever puppy Sunny and dad Dave Balyo for a spring strut up Division Street recently. Sunny stopped to sniff and discover just about everything on the street. The two were returning from show and tell with Lydia's second grade sister Alexandra, a second grade student in Nicole Sterret's class at Charlevoix Elementary School.

School may use library as central office

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix Public Schools is considering moving its central office site to the current Charlevoix Public Library.

In March the library found out that if it sticks to its plan and relocates to the former Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street, ownership of its Clinton Street building reverts to Charlevoix Public Schools.

According to Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock, this issue dates back to 1994 when Proposal A was passed in Michigan. At that time libraries were under the control of school boards. But that proposal mandated that public libraries be their own entity with their own board.

Charlevoix followed suit, established a library board of trustees and began collecting .5 mill for operating expenses.

At that time the Clinton Street building was owned by the school district. According to the state's school code, public school districts can not hand over property, it has to be sold for its appraised value. So, in 1997 the school board decided to deed the property to the library for $1. It was written into the exchange that the building would be the property of the library unless it was no longer used as a library in which case ownership would revert back to the district.

As the library's planning for its new project got underway, Charlevoix Public Library Director Valerie Meyerson did a title search of the current property and found the quit claim deed was never filed with the Charlevoix County Clerk. This meant the library didn't have title to the building.

She contacted Sturock to clear up the problem by registering the quit claim deed.

Sturock signed it and this winter found the "reverter" clause had inadvertently been left out of the new document. The library's attorney and the school district's attorney agreed this clause has to be added.

That means that if the library moves to the former middle school property, it will lose its rights to its current site.

The library has been planning to use money from the sale of its current Clinton Street building which has been appraised at $595,000 to help pay for the new $7.6 million library project.

But Sturock told the board it would be a smart financial decision to use the site as the district's new administrative central office.

The current central office is located off Clinton Street near the former middle school. The building is lacking in space and needs some serious updates.

A representative of The Christman Company toured the building and told the board's building a grounds committee it will cost $190,000 to renovate it. The renovation would leave all the main functions on the first floor, including a board room. This single level model would meet code requirements so the district could avoid installing a pricey elevator.

Sturock said the sale of the current office for about $160,000 would make the move "virtually a wash."

The building and grounds committee supports this option.

However, the board did not give it a yea or nay because any use of that building by the school district is contingent on the library passing a .75 mill bond for 20 years request on June 14.

This bond along with a successful $1 million fund-raising campaign and a donation from Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) will make the project a reality.

The new library proposal looks to renovate and add on to the school that was built in the late 1920s. The proposed brick facility is about 24,000 square feet, with all its main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, quiet reading areas, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas.

The city bought the property from the school district last winter in order to secure it for the library.

The plan is for the library to buy 10 of those 13 lots from the city for $488,460 if in the spring voters pass the bond issue, which will now likely be larger than initially anticipated. If that bond doesn't pass, the DDA has discussed having to sell the property which would likely end up in the hands of a private developer.

He added that the school board supports the library's initiative but has to support the intentions of the board that made the reverter clause decision back in 1997.

Meyerson said she doesn't know what direction her board plans to take with regards to the district possibly taking over the current library building.

"We don't know if there is anything we can do. We are concerned about it and still want to work with our attorney to see what our legal options are," she said.

Wrong turn?

Charlevoix residents might have thought they were in Florida last week if they visited Lake Michigan near the Cemex Cement Plant. These two white pelicans were seen lounging about. The birds winter in the Gulf of Mexico and migrate in the spring to northern Manitoba, Canada. According to the DNR, these two seem to have strayed from their migration route.

Schools to make big cuts

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A hudget crisis impacting schools across the state will likely mean cuts for Charlevoix Puhlic Schools.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Dr. John Sturock told the board of education that he is anticipating an $800,000 shortfall in revenue for the 2004-2005 school year. And this deficit means cuts across the board are inevitahle.

Dennis Halverson, president of the Charlevoix Puhlic Schools Board of Education said, "As difficult as these decisions are, they are being made all across the state. A lot of us haven't seen these times, especially in Charlevoix. This is new to us, which doesn't make it any easier. But I don't see any alternative to get to where we need to he financially to keep our head ahove water."

He added, "We've heen making cuts for the past two years without many people noticing. Unfortunately, these days where things are going, you will notice this. And unfortunately there isn't a whole heck of a lot from our place in the state of Michigan that we can do ahout that."

The less visihle cuts Halverson alluded to were

Area gas prices break $2 mark

By JEREMY MCBAIN

Gasoline prices in Charlevoix have reached the $2 a gallon mark, echoing similar price increases around the country.

The price for a gallon of regular gas on Friday in Charlevoix was around $2.09. It had heen hovering around $1.90 a gallon for several days before finally hreaking $2.

Ed Hoffman, director of petroleum marketing for Holiday stations, said there are several reasons for this increase.

"The cost of crude oil is climbing to break the record price of $41.15 a barrel. The demand is extremely strong and Mideast tensions are impacting costs and creating an unsettled situation which drives prices up," he said.

Jim Rinks, spokesperson for AAA Michigan, added this latest increase is also a continuation of what the industry and consumers have been seeing since the start of this year.

"The demand continues for fuel, especially as we enter the summer season," he said. "We hasically keep using more and more oil, but we can only make so much. We continue to drive SUVs and minivans and types

Several contenders for city government spots

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

In the city of Charlevoix, everyone but the clerk will have to claw their way to the top this election season.

Nominating petitions that were turned in by 4 p.m., May 11 revealed that voters will have two choices for the first, second and third ward city council seats and the mayor's seat at the Nov. 2 general election.

First ward councilman Bill Haggard, third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, second ward council member Karen Campbell and Mayor Gabe Campbell all plan to run for reelection.

Their opposition includes new comers to the political arena and some veterans.

Former councilman and deputy mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson will run against Mayor Campbell.

Carlson, 37, resigned from council in September of 2003 after serving for four years. At that time he moved from the first to the third ward and said he could no longer serve due to family responsibilities. Now, after a one-year hiatus from politics, he said he's ready to jump back in the ring but doesn't want to run against Chamberlain, who he supports.

Carlson said he doesn't have a major beef with Mayor Campbell, but said his run for the seat is just a logical next step in his political career.

In the months leading up to the election, Carlson plans to be "a sound board" for the community, to listen to the wants and needs of residents.

Mayor Campbell, 71, is vying for his second term in office. He also has eight years as a city councilman under his belt and is a current member of the Downtown Development Authority.

He wants to serve another term to further his efforts to stamp out closed door politics.

"I think people have more of a say than in the past and think they need more of a say. I hope people want to have someone who supports the residents more than the developers," he said.

Mayor Campbell is happy to have competition for his seat because he feels people need to have options.

It was unclear in the weeks leading up to the filing date whether third ward residents would have options. Chamberlain, who is currently finishing his second term said he was unsure he would run for another term.

After contacting five people in the ward he felt would be effective council members he found they all believed their efforts would be better spent in non-elected positions.

"Which left me or Dave Scott and I think the third ward needs someone with long standing roots to the community," he said.

This is the first time Chamberlain has ran opposed.

"It's (running contested) a good benchmark to see if you are in touch with the community," Chamberlain said.

Scott, 45, is Chamberlain's opposition.

Scott got into local politics In the spring and summer of 2003 when he started questioning operations at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport and now, almost a year later has taken an interest in other topics at council meetings that he regularly attends.

In a previous interview he said he could better represent the residents of the third ward by not supporting every proposal that comes out of city hall.

A battle for Haggard's first ward seat has also been set in motion.

Haggard, 67, has served on and off council for a total of four terms and will run again.

"To keep everything straight, keep us out of court. It's a challenge," he said.

But he isn't a shoe in for the fifth term — Becky Doan will contest him.

Doan, 42, has lived in Charlevoix for the past 18 years. She said her interest in politics peaked in March of 2003 when the city planning commission started exploring a zoning ordinance amendment to include assisted living in the single family residential district as a special use.

Since then Doan has attended most council meetings and said she belongs at the big table.

Campbell, 61, is completing her first term, after beating out DJ Way in 2002.

She said she'll continue her regular meeting attendance, having missed only one in two years, and will actively work to help establish a skate park for students.

"I've learned a lot in this first term and want to learn more," she said.

Campbell will face former mayor and councilman Alvin "Butch" Russell. Russell lost to Mayor Campbell in the 2002 election and said "it's time to run again."

If elected, he said he's looking forward to the challenges of being a councilman.

While the eight people mentioned above duke it out for a council seat, Charlevoix native Carol Ochs will be the only name on the ballot for city clerk.

Even though a write-in candidate is the only one that could steal the seat from Ochs, making her a virtual shoe-in, she isn't totally pleased.

She said she decided to run because she felt someone needed to show some interest. She was disappointed to hear she was the only one to submit a nominating petition. But she is hoping to win the seat and get to work.

Ochs, 35, is the daughter of Bill and Shirley Ormsby and the wife of Tom Ochs who is the son of John and Lani Ochs.

Lots of candidates, gas prices and fun times

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Here are a few thoughts to ponder as you prepare for another summer season.

Election

After years of seeing fewer and fewer people putting their names in the running for local government seats, this year looks like it is going to kick that trend in the rear.

In all areas of government, incumbent officials are facing challengers for their seats. We have two people squaring off for the prosecuting attorney seat, six going after the Republican nomination for the 105th district seat, two going after the Democratic nomination for the 105th seat, two people running for city mayor and several running for council seats, as well as a slew of contested seats in the townships.

This is fantastic. It is a prime example of how democracy is alive and well in northern Michigan. Plus, because of all the contested seats, it will make the races more interesting for observers and give me a ton to write about.

My newsroom is already trying to figure out how to cover all of these races fairly, without burning ourselves out by mid-June. We are going to try to give you as much information as we can in the Charlevoix Courier, after all it is what we do for a living.

On a side note, for all you visiting journalists who are covering the 105th District Race, John Ramsey is not the only candidate for the Republican seat. There are five others: Jack Apol, Kevin Elsenheimer, Jeff Garfield, Bonnie Nothoff and Craig Ryan. There are also two Democratic candidates: Greg Dean and Jim McKimmy. I will expect you to give them all equal coverage, as any good journalist would strive to do. I will also expect you to stick to the issues, not the tabloid stuff.

Good luck to all of the candidates this year.

Gas prices

Oh dear Lord! What is going on?

Every time I stop to fill up my gas tank lately I am cringing. Soon I will have to start choosing between eating lunch or making it home at night. I am thinking about bringing a cot to the office.

I never thought I would see gas prices hit $2 a gallon. But, lo and behold, at the time I am writing this column we are actually higher than $2 a gallon.

So what are the causes of this? First of all, OPEC has decreased production, increasing the price of crude oil. Secondly, because we can't seem to get over our love of gas-guzzling SUVs, our nation is sucking up oil faster than the supply.

The solution to me seems to be not to boycott the stations, as some e-mails have suggested lately, but for us to increase our supplies by tapping into the national emergency stockpile. This could force OPEC to increase its output.

Second, we need to decrease our dependency on oil. This can be done easily by buying more fuel friendly vehicles — no, that does not mean the new Hummer. This can also be done by increasing research into new forms of fuel, such as electric and hydrogen.

It is time for us to get serious about this oil issue. I believe we — the SUV-loving public — are just as much to blame in this oil game as anyone.

Highland games

Only two more weeks until a new Highland Games season begins for me. Yes, that is right, your beloved editor will take to the field of competition at the end of this month in Alma and toss a few poles looking like telephone wires should be hooked to them and throwing around cumbersome weights, all for the fun of it. I am not your average, everyday, pencil-necked newspaper editor.

This year I have taken on a student in my quest to improve my skills in this insane game. Bob Drebenstedt, the director of Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs, has joined me in my evening practices to learn what the Highland Games are like.

After several sore evenings, he seems to be getting the hang of the games. He even attempted to pick up the caber — that 17 foot long thing that looks like a telephone pole we highland athletes throw through the air — the other day.

I give him credit for trying something new. Anyone who goes out and decides they want to try a new sport, a new hobby or anything new is a good person in my book. Life is too short just to spend it watching television or working around the house.

Spend life making your heart rate climb in a sailboat race, feel the rush of jumping out of a plane with a parachute, feel the satisfaction of teaching a scouting troop how to start a fire with two sticks or attempt to crush your head with a caber. It will make you a happier person who has some great stories for the grandkids.

Thank you library

Editor:

I am so grateful for our wonderful library! Of all the centers in our city, the library is my favorite. Rooms for meeting or study or children's story time, computers for accessing the world, books, magazines, newspapers, an ongoing book sale, a copy machine and tape, pencils and staples!

Our library is set up to serve our lucky community. It is a busy, happy place. Young people gather after school to write reports, elders consult the stock market, young people come in to get help writing their first resume. Our library gives us the ability to access worlds of information, get in touch with people across the world, order hard to find, out of print or new books and there is always a friendly librarian available to help.

There is something for everyone! Art books, music books, how-to-do books, political books, books on tape, fiction and romance, copies of the oldest Charlevoix newspapers, a Michigan Room and even movies! With the new computer system, one can use the library to access magazines, journals, newspapers and educational information. (Valerie will get you started!)

Ben Franklin started the first lending library in America 1731. He wanted to help build his new young country. Democracy is dependent on an informed and involved citizenry. Of all the institutions in America, our public libraries have been vigilant in protecting our freedom to information and ensuring that the American public has the capability to access the ideas, information and events that shape our world.

Thank you Valerie and all your helpers.

amount of people at Kelsey's "Celebration of Life" was enormous. The suffering that everyone felt and still feels must be incredible. Like a terrible pain that will not go away, Kelsey's death brought many people tremendous emotional sorrow. I realize that my actions on Aug. 5, 2002 were irresponsible, selfish and wild. I am truly sorry for what I did.

Throughout the summer of 2002, I had the privilege to get to know Kelsey pretty well. I met Kelsey through my younger cousin, who skied with him at Junior Olympics. Over the course of the summer, Kelsey and I became good friends. Kelsey would take a bunch of my cousins and me into town and show us what we had never seen before in our 15 years in Charlevoix: Fun hangout spots, shortcuts around town and the breathtaking sunset view points. Without Kelsey, I would have never known the true Charlevoix. All of this was in a matter of one month. For all of you who knew Kelsey for the better part of 15 years, I cannot imagine the pain that you went through. I am truly sorry for taking Kelsey's life away.

When Kelsey was in town, he was always hanging out with big groups of kids having a great time. It did not take me long at all to realize that Kelsey's presence was energizing. Whether just sitting around and talking or jet-skiing across Lake Charlevoix, Kelsey added another dimension to the activity at hand. Without Kelsey, life was just not the same in Charlevoix. And if this is how I feel, then the pain and agony you, Kelsey's peers, must feel is thousands times greater. For this, I am truly sorry.

I will do everything in my power to prevent this type of tragedy from occurring to someone else. The pain for all involved has and will be far too much for anyone to fully understand. This situation can be avoided. The solution: challenge other young drivers to be careful and make responsible decisions, especially when in the driver's seat.

I am fully responsible for what happened. I will live with this for the rest of my life. Please know, Kelsey will be with me forever. I hope he also will be with all of you because I know much he meant to all of you. I saw it at the "Celebration of his Life."

Thank you

Editor:

The Charlevoix Senior Center would like to again thank all of the over 100 persons who helped the celebrate the May 5, birthday party for the Senior Center. We would like to express our appreciation for the lovely decorations furnished by Alice Muma. We definitely want to thank all of those who brought birthday cards and contributions to express their thanks and love for the Center.

In addition to the birthday celebration, the added attraction was breaking ground for the new expansion to the kitchen/dining area. The board of directors has worked hard to secure the approvals for the expansion, and after working for almost two years, all approvals have been received to start the much needed expansion on the backside of the center hall.

The Charlevoix Senior Center started in the early 1970s with a few seniors having lunches together, then using the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post Home as a daily meeting place, with all types of programs including lunches, crafts, cards, quilting, classes for those who had not completed high school graduation and requiring their GED certificates and others. From there, the old Charlevoix Township Hall was deeded to the County in 1988 for a Senior Center, and the additions to the small office have been completed as time and money would allow. Almost all of the work has been completed by volunteers, and money received from contributions, fund-raisers, and grants. No millage money has been available for renovations or additions.

The center has become a true community center, used for all purposes and by all persons, regardless of age. We sponsor all types of classes for the general public, including art, wood-carving, crafts, quilting, exercise programs, cards, meetings and computer training. All teachers and leaders are also volunteers. With the added usage, it has become necessary to make several additions to the size of the building for various reasons. With the additional meals being prepared and served daily at the Center, more working space is definitely needed. The center now serves lunches five days each week, volunteers deliver "Meals-on-Wheels" to those who cannot attend the center lunches, and serves two fund-raiser evening dinners each month, open to the public. A Swiss steak dinner will be served on Tuesday, May 25. Please buy your tickets for the Swiss steak dinner in advance early as only 300 tickets will be sold. To accommodate everyone, there will be two seatings with one at 4:30 to 6 p.m. and the other at 6 to 7 p.m.

Again our grateful thanks for the response and contributions to our birthday party and for the new expansion program. We hope to see all of you at the Center. If you have not visited the Center recently, we invite you to come and see the improvements that have been made, and to enjoy the friendship and companionship evident there. As we say — you, too, may be a "senior" some day.

Great job band

Editor:

I would like to recognize Charlevoix's Northwest Academy's Advanced and Intermediate Bands. The Advanced Band received straight ones at District Band Festival and also at State Band Festival. This band also performed at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor this winter, a place where bands can only dream of playing on stage. They did it and received high praise for a job very well done. This band has a total of 28 members.

The Intermediate Band received an overall one rating at District Band Festival. This is the first year this band has participated in this type of competition. This band has a total of 18 members.

The following Intermediate Band members represent Northwest Academy in the 120 member Middle School Honors Band: Evan and Alyssa Themm, Andy Tuck and Kelly Brethauer.

These bands are awesome. The bands are under the direction of Mr. Gary Stutzman who works very hard with them.

I would also like to thank the community and band parents for all their help and support to make these bands what they are.

Legion, VFW to distribute poppies

The members of the American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Unit 226 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Charlevoix Post 1153, and their auxiliary members will be distributing memorial poppies the next two weeks.

The Legion members will be selling the poppies on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 20 through 22, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars will sell their Buddy Poppies on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 27 through 29.

The poppies are made by disabled veterans at the military hospitals, who earn a small amount by making the poppies. One they are purchased by the local military veterans organizations, they are distributed to the public.

Money donated by the public for the poppies is used by both groups for relief to local veterans and their families, to assist with veterans' hospitals and others. Please be generous and buy both kinds of poppies to assist with these important relief programs.

Any member of either group who has not been contacted to sell poppies, should contact Katie Curtis 547-6943 or Rosalyn Goldstick 547-2636 for the American Legion poppies and Arlene Staley 547-2985 or Rosalyn Goldstick 547-2636 to assist with the VFW poppies.

The sign of our life

By FR. JIM GUNN
Rector
Christ Church

Beacons of Blessing

There are signs at both ends of Charlevoix that make the bold proclamation "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

That would tend to raise people's expectations as they drive into town — especially since there tends to be a widespread distrust in advertising anymore. Fortunately, Charlevoix is able to deliver on the promise.

Charlevoix is beautiful in a number of ways. Charlevoix has waterfront and beaches, beautiful houses and historic buildings, and, of course, all of our petunias during the summer season. Having experienced the physical beauty, people are drawn into stopping and sampling that which the city has to offer. Fine dining and fishing and boating and just plain soaking up the sun on the beach will cement the visitor's relationship with our fair community.

In the end result, perhaps they will be tempted to become a resident of Charlevoix for at least part of the year.

My intent in this article was not to write a chamber of commerce brochure for Charlevoix! However, the process I described of being drawn to beauty seems to me to have a spiritual parallel.

The Sunday before I wrote this piece our Gospel reading was John 13:31-35 in which Jesus gives his disciples the commandment to love one another. The final verse says, "By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Another verse comes to my mind in this regard. It is Matthew 5:16 - "let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven." It is as though Jesus is telling us to hang out a sign saying "A Beautiful Life."

The Bible makes very clear that there should be a noticeable difference in the lives of those who claim to be disciples of Jesus Christ. Having noticed the difference, people would then be drawn to come to know the person whose life they were observing. If they then come to know the "beauty" at close range, it is reasonable to assume that they will want to learn what (or, rather, Who) made the difference in the person's life.

The end result would be that the observer would become a participant — and would then hang out their own "A Beautiful Life" sign.

Here's a thought for you to ponder: Would you find it a reasonable thing to hang out your "A Beautiful Life" sign? Do you think that people could look at the terrain and furnishings of your existence and see the kind of difference that I have been describing – the kind of difference that draws them to the One who brought about the change?

Venetian board picks sports theme

The Venetian Board recently approved the festival's 2004 theme — "Charlevoix's Sports Legends."

President Dan Barron, in announcing the decision, pointed out that there were several factors that influenced the selection.

He said, "Number one, Charlevoix has a very long and brilliant sports heritage with remarkable individual and team accomplishments. Number two, we have had, as part of Venetian week, 14 sporting events with over 2,000 participants each summer in our Venetian Games. Sports are huge in our town. The third factor was the intention of the Charlevoix Historical Society to focus on athletes and teams from Charlevoix's past and to include them in their Heritage Day exhibit. The theme became an easy choice."

The theme will be used throughout the 2004 Venetian Festival, including both the street parade, and the grand electrical boat parade. Selected sport celebrities will also be part of the street parade and could also be introduced as special guests to crowds in the park attending the four nights of Rhythms of Venetian music.

Dean Davenport, commissioner of the Venetian Games, will head up an advisory committee that will help identify the most obvious sport legends of Charlevoix. The committee includes Dave Novotny, Street Parade chair; Jack McKenzie, chair of the Heritage Day exhibit; Jim Kanine, high school athletic director; Ken Plude, high school coach; Dwight (Ike) Boss, Charlevoix Recreation Department director; Vane Smith, former school principal, and retired educators Marilyn Novak and Toni Felter.

Public input is important in identifying prominent and less obvious sports legends and there will be more information as to how the public can participate in selection of the outstanding individuals and teams which will be recognized.

More information can be secured by calling Venetian Headquarters at (800) 360-8750.

Vendors needed for farmers market

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation is currently seeking area vendors to participate in the 2nd Annual Farmers Market starting Friday, May 28, and offered weekly at the Foundation office, 14634 Park Avenue.

"We already have seven vendors who have signed up," says Patti Barraw, coordinator for the market.

"We have heard from Marvin's Gardens, Bolt Farm, Berg Farm, Pine Hill Nursery, Stardog Bakehouse, Two Dog Deli and Bakery, Dekorne Honey Farm and Royal Farms. We're still hoping for more local vendors and we would like to see more variety."

The Farmers Market opened last year in August for a test run.

Barraw explained the original idea was to have vendors nearby to assist hospital Farmers Market Vendors employees who have limited time, and are frequently working when many markets are open.

"Our employees were able to access the Farmers Market during their breaks, but then we realized that the community wanted the opportunity to have a local Farmers Market, so it's evolving into a wonderful opportunity for vendors to sell locally and for area residents to shop in Charlevoix for their fresh vegetables, plants and baked goods," she said.

Barraw explained the group is hoping that more vendors who have local items will participate.

There is space available behind the Foundation Office for the Market to expand and Barraw and the Foundation hope vendors will take advantage of this opportunity.

For information on being a vendor contact Barraw at 231-547-8685.

Vendors may choose to participate, paying a small weekly fee that will be used to run ads for the market. Those signing up for the entire season will realize a significant savings.

BUSINESS

Uniforms Unlimited finding its niche

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Cynthia and Renee Cebulski can supply your staff with a uniform look.

On April 1, the mother and daughter team opened Uniforms Unlimited, to meet the needs of Charlevoix businesses who are in need of uniforms for their employees. The business is located at 161 M-66 North, in the Captain's Corner's Plaza.

Cynthia said she opened the business because she saw a need in Charlevoix for it. Uniforms Unlimited currently can supply outfits for those in the medical professions and chefs, as well as many others.

But, the Cebulski's do not just supply uniforms to their customers.

According to Cynthia, the business sells hats, jackets and other clothing items and does silk screening and embroidery.

And there are many more plans for the future.

Cynthia said she is looking into a uniform for construction workers and postal service workers, as well as uniform rentals and a web site. She also hopes to have a sales-person on hand in the near future.

Additionally, there are many more options for uniforms she is looking into.

"Every time you get a customer in the door they want to lead you to an area," she said.

"Because it is so new, I was not aware of the demand in certain areas."

This is the first time either Cynthia of Renee have been involved in the retail business.

Cynthia is a cook at Boulder Park and Renee was a college student.

Cynthia said business has been very good since she and her daughter opened their doors.

"People are so friendly and so small business oriented," she said.

For more information on Uniforms Unlimited, contact the Cebulskis by calling (231) 237-9605 or e-mailing rcebulski@speed2u.net.

Beemon goes from wild child to honor student

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix native Sally Beemon has transformed her life from a high school hell-raiser to a collegiate New Century Scholar.

Sally Beemon

"I feel like I've come so far. I know I have so much further to go, but it's nice to feel like I've really accomplished something," she said.

Sally is the 20-year-old daughter of Rick and JoAnne Beemon of Charlevoix — two people she knows she gave a few gray hairs.

Looking back on her tumultuous adolescent years spent in the Beemon's Clinton Street home, Sally remembers getting into a lot of trouble. The incident that stands out most in her mind happened on her fourteenth birthday when her parents called the Charlevoix City Police because Sally had been drinking. That day she was arrested and charged as a minor in possession of alcohol.

"It was the hardest thing I've ever had to do, to pick up the phone and call the authorities to arrest my beautiful daughter," JoAnne said.

The roller coaster ride with Sally continued to be an uphill battle for the Beemon family and even escalated to the point where Sally considered dropping out of Charlevoix High School.

She said the support of her family and the teachers at the high school are the only reason she graduated with her class in 2001.

"Living in that town — people won't let you go down. I'm so grateful everyone did what they did to get me through," she said.

After graduation she enrolled at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. She closed this successful chapter of her life earlier this month, on May 1, when she dawned a cap and gown and graduated with 3.81 grade point average and an associate's degree in science.

"We are just so proud of her. She's worked really hard and strives to do the very best she can," JoAnne said.

Sally's drive to succeed recently landed her on top of the All-Michigan Academic Team, a national recognition program sponsored by USA Today and the Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society. The program recognizes the best and brightest community college students.

As the highest scoring member of the team in Michigan Sally was also named one of the elite New Century Scholars. Her score was based in part on an essay she wrote to qualify for the state academic team about her high school struggle. This honor brings with it a $2,000 stipend funded by the Coca-Cola Foundation and the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation.

She collected her scholarship prize at the 2004 American Association of Community Colleges Convention April 24-26 in Minneapolis, Minn. where President George W. Bush made a surprise appearance.

Sally plans to use the money at Wayne State University where she has enrolled as a junior for the fall of 2004. There she will pursue a degree in medicine and a future as a doctor.

"I love the sciences; I love math and I love working with people," she said.

Hospice - "the angels who hold you up during the journey you make with your loved ones"

When Jim & I became "northerners" in April of 2000, so did my Mom & Dad, Betty & Bob. They had been married 58 years and it was time for us to take care of them and their lives to be easier. Mom had Alzheimer's and other health issues; Dad had a laundry list of illnesses including heart failure.

We had a wonderful first year together on the lake. Dad could fish and take Mom for rides in their golf cart. In fall of 2001, Mom began to fail & we were encouraged to call Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. They helped us care for Mom until she died on April 27, 2002.

Our journey with Hospice didn't end there. Shortly after Mom died, Dad became more ill. Hospice was with us again until he died on August 5, 2003.

The people of Hospice of Little Traverse Bay are the angels who hold you up during the journey you make with your loved ones. We were blessed to have Hospice with us for almost a year and a half. It takes truly gifted people to make the journey to death another of God's miracles. We love you, Hospice, and always will.

Peace & hugs, Kathy & Jim Weidman

Several running for 105th district seat

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

ELECTION 2004

The race for the 105th District seat in the Michigan State House of Representatives — which includes Charlevoix in its district — is a hot one this year with six Republican candidates and two Democrats.

The race will be whittled down to one person in each party for the November general election in the August primaries. The seat is currently held by Representative Ken Bradstreet, who is term limited from running again.

The candidates are:

Republicans

• Jack Apol — Apol is a Charlevoix resident who describes himself as running on the typical Republican platform. His topics are bringing more jobs to the area, supporting hunting rights, supporting property rights, lowering taxes and keeping the water clean.

After serving two enlistments in the United States Navy, Apol has a degree in political science from Grand Valley State University and is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School. Currently he is a professor emeritus at the law school of Michigan State University. He specializes in criminal law and constitutional law.

He has been coming to northern Michigan since 1965 and purchased property in Charlevoix in the early 1990s. He and his wife since 1965, Carol, retired to Charlevoix full-time in 2002.

He said his political experience is that of an observer.

"I have been observing politics as far as I can remember," he said.

He added, "I really want to concentrate on two things, the issues and my qualifications. We don't have enough of that in politics today. I think that my concerns are probably the concerns of the people of this district."

• Kevin A. Elsenheimer — Elsenheimer is a Bellaire resident who describes himself as a "pro-life, pro-gun and pro-school choice candidate." His platform includes working to "restrict the growth of state government," creating jobs and eliminating the "small business tax."

Elsenheimer is a lifelong northern Michigan resident. He is a municipal, land-use attorney and former assistant prosecutor in Antrim County. He is the owner of the law firm Young, Graham and Elsenheimer, PC, in Bellaire.

Elsenheimer has served for more than five years on the Bellaire School boards, is an adjunct faculty member at Davenport University in Gaylord and is a former member of the Northwest Michigan Council of Government's Workforce Development Board. He is also a member of the Antrim County Special Elections Commission and served as chair of the Antrim County Republican Party for over five years.

He is also a lifelong hunter and fisherman.

"While we need to protect our environment and enable the recreation and tourism that is so important to this area, we also must respect the rights of private property owners to utilize their property," he said.

• Jeff Garfield — Garfield has been a resident of Gaylord for about six years. He describes himself as "pro-life," "pro-business," "pro-firearms," "environmental," "lower taxes," "less government" and wanting accountability in government.

Garfield touts himself as a family man who knows the struggles families face, a small business owner who thinks the single business tax and personal property tax needs to be phased out, a Christian who believes the constitution is based on the teaching of the bible and there is no such thing as freedom from religion, a taxpayer and a consumer.

Garfield is an Otsego County Commissioner, a former Otsego Lake Township Board trustee and a member of the Otsego County Sheriff Search and Recovery Dive Team.

He is originally from the Fenton area, where he owned an operated a restaurant. He has also owned a building development company in Gaylord and worked as a federal housing inspector for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

• Bonnie M. Nothoff — Nothoff has been a resident of Kewadin for four years. She has been visiting the area for about 25 years. She said, "Learning what is important to the residents and business owners is an integral part of my campaign."

Nothoff wants to bring respectable businesses to the area, keep taxes low and keep the property owners in mind with land use issues. She also believes health care is a right of all Michigan residents.

Nothoff is also very knowledgeable on health issues, having been the director of governmental affairs for the Michigan Dental Hygienists Association and the president of the Michigan Dental Hygienists Association.

In these groups, she has worked closely with legislators on both sides of the aisle in Lansing. She has helped pass several pieces of health care legislation in Lansing. She adds, in her positions, she has been accountable to a constituency of 9,000 dental hygienists in the state of Michigan.

Nothoff has been a registered dental hygienist for 19 years. She was also a dental hygiene educator for seven years.

• John B. Ramsey — Ramsey recently purchased a full-time home in Charlevoix after visiting the area since the mid-1980s. He describes himself as a non-politician who has real world experience.

His platform is to have an elected government that will not compromise their core values and a government that is flexible and can reinvent itself rather than asking for more money. He said he will find ways to bring new jobs to the area, help find a solution to the health insurance issue, protect the sanctity of life and fight crime, as well as helping the victims of those crimes.

Ramsey was a decorated World War II pilot and served as director of the Michigan Department of Aeronautics from 1956 to 1972. He attended high school in Battle Creek and also lived in Okemos, where he graduated from High School. He is also a graduate of Michigan State University with a degree in electrical engineering and a masters degree in business administration.

He has been a resident of Colorado and Georgia, before moving to Charlevoix full time.

Ramsey touts himself as a successful businessman. He started a small computer products distribution business in the garage of his home in the early 1980s. The company grew and he sold it in 1994 to the Lockheed Corporation. He left Lockheed-Martin in 1998 and became a consultant with several small distressed companies.

He is married to Patsy Ramsey. Besides his late daughter JonBenet and son Burke, the Ramseys have two other children, Melinda and John. They also have another daughter, Beth, who was killed in an automobile accident in the early 1990s. JonBenet was murdered in 1996. No charges have been filed in that case.

• Craig Ryan — Ryan is a resident of Gaylord and has served on Bradstreet's staff for several years. He said he "hopes to continue the outstanding work he (Bradstreet) has accomplished in Lansing and throughout the district."

Ryan said his platform includes limited government, personal property rights, economic growth, the sanctity of life and second amendment rights.

"I will vigorously defend the fundamental philosophies embodied in the constitutional right to own and bear arms and I pledge to fight for unborn children," he said.

Ryan and his wife, Telly, are both graduates of Gaylord High School. He is a member of the Michigan Right to Life, the Gaylord Right to Life, the National Rifle Association and the Michigan Coalition for Responsible Gun Owners.

Democrats

• Greg A. Dean — Dean, of Antrim County, is a businessman who is proud that he has never been a politician and does not have all the answers. His platform is based on three issues: energy, the environment and education.

He wants to promote clean burning facilities for energy and support the use of new technologies in business to help keep them environmentally sound and promote more jobs. As for education, he wants to change it from the top down and shift back to a trade-oriented curriculum.

"We can't all be CEOs. We need to accept that," he said.

Dean originally filed as a Republican, but withdrew and filed as a Democrat. He had considered filing as an independent. Part of the reason for this change, he said, was because he knew there would be a "circus atmosphere" surrounding the Republican nomination. He added he has the heart of a Democrat and the mind of a Republican.

Dean has been married for 14 years to Corinn. He has worked for a powerplant in Detroit before moving north and has been instrumental in starting up two businesses in the area — a limestone fabricating business and the development of a piece of property he owns.

• Jim McKimmy — McKimmy is a resident of Rapid City, but Charlevoix residents may remember him as the superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools from 1973 to 1977.

He believes strongly in education and the right of every child to be educated, preserving the environment, helping seniors maintain a good quality of life and reforming unfair medical costs.

"I have followed with deepening concern the declining support for public education," he said.

As for other issues, he said he is concerned about the high rate of unemployment in the district and said he will seek a way to solve this problem. He also is concerned about affordable housing in the area, adding even Habitat for Humanity is having trouble building homes because of the price of land.

In addition to being the superintendent of Charlevoix, McKimmy was superinendent of Cadillac Area Public Schools, Northwest School District of Jackson County, Midland County Intermediate School District and part-owner of Michigan Education Management, Inc.

Because of his experience with school districts, McKimmy has worked on several legislative matters related to schools.

"I've managed situations where resources weren't available, where layoffs were required and have seen the anguish of families when their jobs were lost. I can see the big picture and develop policies to reach desired goals," he said.

The 105th District is comprised of Antrim, Charlevoix, most of Cheboygan and Otsego counties.

Kiwanis honored for reading program

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club's outreach at the local Head Start Preschool earned the group a Volunteer Award from the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency.

The agency surprised a group of Kiwanians with the special recognition at the agency's Thirtieth Anniversary and Awards Celebration May 6.

The award acknowledges the one-on-one reading program started by the club in the fall of 2002 in conjunction with Charlevoix Public Library. According to Ted Dumbald, the Kiwanis membership coordinator and board member, it was a natural fit for Kiwanis, whose mission is to serve the children of the world.

The outreach effort started with donations of $500 in books and now, almost two years later, has transformed into priceless intergenerational friendships.

Shirley Roloff, Chairman of the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency Board of Directors, said the Kiwanis group was an easy pick for this year's Volunteer Award.

"They contribute so much and it is such a wonderful program. What else could you ask for. This is just one way of saying thanks for your help," Roloff said.

The undertaking has brought Kiwanis members and student club members from Charlevoix elementary and high schools and Northwest Academy, along with non-Kiwanian community members to the school for reading sessions.

Each Monday teams of about eight volunteers arrive at the classroom at 10:30 a.m. and read to each one of the 15 students for 30 minutes.

"It's hard to describe the enjoyment of reading to these kids. They seem to appreciate us and we certainly appreciate them. Each week we go in they are waiting with their eyes all aglow. It's really a gratifying experience," Dumbald said.

Head Start program coordinator Phyliss Hess said the Kiwanis effort has not only been rewarding for the volunteer readers but the students have also benefited.

One-on-one programs like this help introduce children to books, literature and reading, boost self-esteem and build independence.

Other projects Kiwanis has worked on with Head Start that were wrapped into this award include the club's $500 donation to buy slippers and outdoor wear for Head Start kids and their families.

For information about the school contact Sarah Rose at the Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency at (231) 547-3973.

To offer assistance in the reading program contact Dumbald at 547-9373.

Library needs your pennies

If April showers bring May flowers, the Charlevoix Public Library is hoping that May showers bring pennies from Heaven.

In conjunction with the capital campaign kick off for the library's building fund, the library is announcing its "One Million Pennies Campaign, Pennies from Heaven."

How long is a line of one million pennies? How high is a tower of one million pennies? How high does your scale have to read to weigh one million pennies? What can one million pennies do for the Charlevoix Public Library?

These are only a few of the many questions concerning pennies that will be answered in the next few months as Pennies from Heaven start raining down on Charlevoix.

The answers are 11.94 miles long; .96 miles or almost a mile high; 5,511 pounds or over two tons (more than the average automobile); and most importantly, $10,000 towards the $1,000,000 goal that the capital campaign has set to help fund the proposed new library project.

How can you help? Just bring your pennies to the library and be a part of this exciting project to make the new improved Charlevoix Public Library a reality.

For further information or just to see how much space one million pennies will occupy visit the library at 109 Clinton Street or call at (231)547-2651.

Operation Petunia to be May 27

It's petunia time in Charlevoix.

Operation Petunia, the community wide planting party, will be at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 27.

Five miles of petunias will be planted on both sides of US-31 from the airport to Mercer Boulevard and on M-66 to Stover Road. Now in its twenty-third year the event is so well organized that the hundreds of volunteers usually finish planting in less than one hour.

The planting will be followed by a picnic in East Park for all the planters. Hot dogs and other treats will be served courtesy of several local businesses. Local service clubs do the cooking and Gary Stutzman and a band from Northwest Academy will provide music.

In order to insure a beautiful display of petunias, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president Bob Hoffman along with Dale Boss met with Andy Norman from the Michigan State University Extension Service. Based on his recommendation 6 inches of soil was removed and replaced in all of the beds.

Anyone who wants to plant can go to any location along the road at 5 p.m. and start planting. Areas that can always use more help are south of town on the west side of US-31 from State Street to the airport and on the east side from Carpenter to M-66 and around the corner to Stover Road.

Also extra help is needed on the north side by the golf course.

Block captains will help direct planting and distribute coupons for the picnic and treats from Dairy Queen, 7-11 and Kilwins.

Volunteers are urged to wear comfortable cloths and to bring their garden trowels along.

If you have any questions or would like to volunteer to be a block captain please call Marrell Staffel at 547-2561 or 547-5574.

Library announces its campaign goal

Mary Ann Chew, president of the Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees, has announced the library's capital campaign goal of $1,600,000. Money from the effort will be used in tandem with bond proceeds from a June 14 vote towards the purchase and renovation of the 1927 school.

"$924,000, or 58 percent of the goal, has been pledged to date for the Charlevoix Public Library's building project," she said.

A capital campaign committee, chaired by Don Heise, includes 33 supporters of the Charlevoix Public Library. Honorary chairs include Tom Carey, Edith Gilbert, Mary Helen Riggle and Gordon VanWieren.

The committee's efforts will save $115,000 in fund-raising consulting fees for the library.

The group is seeking donations and pledges, which will be paid over a five-year period from 2004 through 2008. Commitments to date include governmental units, businesses, private foundations and individual philanthropists.

Charlevoix residents and summer homeowners have donated and pledged $298,000. The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority has made the largest pledge so far of $30,000 per year for 20 years.

Heise is confident that during the next 12 months the campaign goal will be met.

"A successful campaign and a positive millage election will make us all winners," he said. "This project is more than expanding the library; it is a beneficial investment for Charlevoix over the next 100 years. It will give us a spectacular library, contribute to the stability of downtown, and preserve a magnificent art deco building."

For further information on the library project stop by the library for an information session on Wednesday at 10 a.m. or call 547-2651.

Keep campaign signs out of the right of way

The City of Charlevoix Police Department reminds candidates and campaign workers that local ordinance prohibits the placement of signs in the street right of way. The right of way is the area between the curb and the sidewalk. In cases where no curb is present signs must be 15 feet from pavement. Violations may result in confiscation of signs and a possible civil infraction ticket.

Many contested seats in township elections

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A large group of incumbents including supervisors, trustees and clerks in Norwood, Charlevoix, Marion and Eveline townships will have to fight to hang on at the August primary.

Norwood Township

In Norwood Township, four-year terms for the supervisor, clerk, treasurer and trustees will all be contested at the coming primary.

It will be the battle of the Waynes for the supervisor's seat as incumbent Wayne Boss faces off against newcomer on the political scene, Wayne Wynkoop.

Boss, 58, has lived in the township since 1976 and for the past five years has served as supervisor. He is hoping to extend his service for another four-year term.

"I want to continue the work we've been doing, primarily on improving the quality of the road systems. I would also like to see our zoning ordinance reflect what is more advantageous to the residents rather than what is consistent with what typical planners say we should have," Boss said.

While Boss is hoping voters continue their support of him at the polls, Wynkoop, 46, said there is a group of residents that are ready to see a change.

"It's obvious we need a change; we need to uplift this township," he said.

Wynkoop, was alluding to recent zoning disputes and lawsuits filed against the township board. And he said his supporters think he is just the man to bring the township out of the doldrums.

Wynkoop doesn't have past political experience but has been a vocal participant at township board meetings this year. He said his current involvement in the township earned him the respect of fellow residents who urged him to file.

Qualities Wynkoop said make him a good pick for supervisor include honesty, common sense and "level headedness."

While he claims residents are ready for change, current clerk , Doris Pearl, a Norwood Township native who has held the seat for almost 14 years, said the township needs healing and incumbents can provide that.

"I am hoping that somehow we can heal this divisiveness that has infected our community," she said.

Pearl, 59, has extensive experience in zoning as a current zoning administrator for Banks Township and the Village of Ellsworth and former Norwood Township zoning administrator. She said she brings to the table a good understanding of the issues facing townships and knowledge of Norwood Township and the tastes and preferences of residents.

She will face Michelle Cyr. Who did not return calls by press time.

Pearl's daughter, Ellen Jenson, 33, a Norwood Township native, that has served as treasurer since 2000 will also have to work to keep her position.

While she has made great strides during her first term in the treasurer's seat, including computerizing tax records, she isn't a shoe in for a second term.

Jenson will face Paul Grapp, 43. Grapp has lived in the township for over 30 years and wants to be more involved with the community. He has no prior political experience and said he draws accounting insight from running his own landscaping and excavating business.

Rounding out competition for the board is a trustees race for two open seats. Four candidates are jostling for position. They include Frank Hamilton, Dennis Way, Sadie Bartosik and Lynn Smolenyak.

Bartosik, 68, served a term on the planning commission in the past and decided to come out of the woodwork because she feels its time for change in Norwood Township.

Way, 48, has lived in the township for the past five years. He has no previous political experience but said he feels he could bring a lot to the board.

"I think it's time to get some new blood in there," he said.

Smolenyak, 47, is the former township zoning administrator who resigned this past winter due to time constraints. The township resident of 10 years said a board seat would be a good way to put her knowledge to use without stretching her time wise.

Hamilton, 65, has lived in Norwood Township for 24 years and has over 20 years experience in local polities including time served in Norwood Township. He said he is qualified for the position.

Hamilton is also the co-owner of Auntie Barb's Country Kennel which he operates with his wife Barb. The property from which they operate the kennel has been the topic of a lengthy zoning debate that ended with the zoning board of appeals requiring he and his wife to acquire a new special use permit to operate their business. The Hamiltons are fighting this in circuit court.

He said the zoning issue is unrelated to his candidacy and he has no agenda.

"I think I can do some good in the township. We need to think more about the best interest of the township," he said.

Charlevoix Township

In Charlevoix Township, the supervisor and the trustees are in the hot seat.

Newly appointed supervisor Dale Glass will face Ted Felter.

"I've had competition before, I'm not too alarmed by it," Glass said. "I've been on the township board well over 30 years and I'm very familiar with it. I feel having my experience and knowledge I could be helpful to the township. I'm the best man for the job."

Glass, 71, has been on the board for 35 years and is a township resident of 42 years.

If elected, he said he plans to continue to work to extend the city of Charlevoix's sewer system to the Pine Point residential area off Boyne City Road.

He also has plans for changes including upgrades to township recreational facilities and roads and the introduction of new public services like brush and branch removal.

His competition Felter, 55, owns and operates Key Controls, an electrical business.

He said he has no major heef with the way the township has operated, he was just looking for something to do.

Felter has four years of political experience under his belt as a former councilman and has lived in the township for eight years.

One of the two current trustees, Nancy Rajewski and Chuck Center, may also have to say good-bye as Chuck Sherping launches his political attack.

Rajewski, 66, is a board member of over 20 years and a longtime planning commission member.

She hopes to stick around to finish working on the township's master plan work and see through the Wal-Mart issue.

"I like doing what I'm doing and I want to help the township," she said.

Center, 58, has been a trustee since December of this year when Glass left his trustee's position to take over for former supervisor Oscar Stroud who resigned.

Prior to taking the board seat Center served for five years on the township's planning commission.

Sherping, 60, hopes to win one of the two open seats because he thinks it's time for the township to have some new trustees. He served on the zoning board of appeals in both the township and the city of Charlevoix. He said that experience coupled with his engineering background make him a good choice for voters.

He said several board decisions over the past couple of years prompted him to run including zoning ordinance amendments and funding the Pine Point sewer extension out of general fund dollars.

Eveline Township

In Eveline Township, supervisor Dan Skreczkoski will have to fight for his seat.

Skreczkoski, 50, has been on the board for 16 years. He said his service to the township is his way of giving back. He hopes to be elected to another term to see through some projects he has been working on.

But he may have to run a convincing campaign. Boyne City resident John Vrondran who has lived in the township for 35 years wants a crack at the supervisor's title.

Vrondran, 57, has no experience in politics but said that since he is planning to retire from USD Corporation in July after 29 years of work he thought it was time to make his political debut.

"I just want to be part of a township government that works for all the residents and listens to the people," he said.

Marion Township

While Marion Township Supervisor Wilson "Bud" Boss who is running unopposed, isn't feeling the heat like some of his fellow supervisors, two trustees seats in his township are being sought by three candidates.

Former trustee Tim Matchett stepped down to run for clerk, a seat vacated by former Marion Township clerk Bob Drebenstedt who opted not to run. He will run unopposed for this seat.

While Matchett's road to the clerk's seat won't be rocky, his vacant trustee seat is sought after as is the seat of trustee Joanne Jones.

Jones, 63, has filed to run for reelection. She has nine years of experience in the position. She will join two other residents on the ballot in the primary —. Joe Seidel and Bob Fales.

Seidel, 46, a native and lifelong resident of Marion Township has gained political experience through current positions on both the Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees and the Farm Bureau Board of Directors.

He decided to run to represent a new point of view on the hoard.

Fales could not he reached by press time.

Because these are partisan races and all the aforementioned candidates have filed as Republicans, the big showdown in the townships will happen at the Aug. 3 primary.

The only opposition they could then face at the general election Nov. 2 is a write-in candidate.

Baseball team has roller coaster of a week

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

It was an up and down week for the Charlevoix Rayders baseball team as they took two at Maple City Glen Lake but were swept by Grayling at home.

Charlevoix defeated the Lakers, 6-2 and 9-6. Details on the Grayling losses were unavailable at presstime.

"Glen Lake is a very similar team to us in the sense that they are very young and are gaining experience as they go," coach Bryan Hawkins said. "They typically have an outstanding program and their facilities are beautiful."

In the opener, Tyler Bier stymied the Lakers' bats with over four innings of two-hit relief. He didn't walk a batter and struck out four, yielding only one unearned run.

Bier also was the hitting hero, going three for four with an RBI and a run scored. Eddie Waldron clubbed a two-run homer to stake the Rayders to an early lead they never lost.

Matt Burtt singled in two runs while Chris Waha, Jake Teuscher and Ezra Bakker each had a hit.

In the nightcap, Jake Teuscher was two for two with a walk, three runs scored and an RBI. Russell Williams singled, stole a base and drove in a run. Michael Wojan was 1 for 3 and scored two runs.

"We were able to take advantage of some key moments by pressuring their defense into some mistakes," Hawkins said. "It was especially important for us to get runners in scoring position because they had some young pitchers who threw a few to the backstop and we finally delivered with a big hit here and there to plate some runners."

The Rayder JV squad lost a double-header to Boyne City, 10-8 and 5-3.

Kris Bartling and Shannon Gillespie each had two hits in the opener. Logan Niswander had three hits in the nightcap. Zach Scharenbroch didn't give up an earned run in his five innings on the mound.

The Rayder varsity traveled to Cheboygan on Tuesday, May 18 but results were unavailable. They play at Mancelona on Thursday, May 20 and host Elk Rapids on Monday, May 24.

Rayders' softball team splits double-header

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders softball squad split a conference double-header with Grayling, losing game one, 9-5 and rallying to win the nightcap, 4-0.

Earlier in the week, they tied Maple City Glen Lake, 1-1 and lost game two, 14-4.

Against the Vikings, Jessica Pettis, Andrea Ruhlman, Gen Kochanny, Brittany Niswander and Sarah Featherly all had hits in game one. Monica Cornell took the pitching loss, striking out seven.

In game two, Nicole Higdon threw a shutout to get the win. Pettis was 3 for 3 at the plate. Amanda Boss doubled while Ruhlman, Cornell and Niswander all singled.

Cornell threw a one-hitter against Glen Lake in the first game of the double-header, walking only two and striking out seven.

Niswander had two hits to lead the Rayders. Ruhlman, Cornell and Denise Barta had one hit apiece.

Sally Haselschwardt had the only Charlevoix hit in the nightcap. Higdon took the pitching loss.

"We're still struggling to maintain consistency on defense while keeping the bats going," coach Liz Grunch said. "At times, the girls have shown tremendous growth in their physical skills and mental aspect of the game."

The Rayders (5-14-1 overall, 3-9 conference) host Elk Rapids next Monday, May 24.

Girls' soccer team's winning streak comes to end

Suttons Bay ended the Rayders' unbeaten streak at 6 with a victory under tough wind conditions Wednesday at the Charlevoix High School Field, 2-0.

The Rayders had the wind in the first half but were unable to keep the ball on the field, failing to capitalize on several opportunities.

Charlevoix managed eight shots, with a long ball from 40 yards out missing the score by just inches.

Charlevoix keeper Laura Nitchman made five saves.

Suttons Bay scored midway through the second half from 10 yards out when the Rayders' back line failed to pull out, giving Nitchman virtually no chance at the save. The second tally came off a nice head ball from a corner kick.

The Rayders received a good defensive effort from Murray, junior center back Sarah Cross and outside back Madison McKenzie. Freshmen midfielders Zita Anderson and Lori Zimmerman also played strong games with Zimmerman winning the Rayders' Player of the Game ball.

"Suttons Bay won this match because they were more experienced and knew how to handle the win. We learned a lot tonight and will improve because of it," coach Carol Madison said.

The Rayders are 5-2 in the Lake Michigan conference and 6-4-1 overall.

Scholarship to Ferris State University to be given at golf camp

Several lucky youngsters who participated in the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's 2003 summer program will be awarded scholarships to attend the prestigious golf camp at Ferris State University this summer.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the popular summer program, announced that the Association's Board members approved renewing the scholarship program with Ferris State University. Awards will be likely made to six deserving Juniors for scholarships enabling them to spend a week on the campus of Ferris State.

Applicants must have participated in more than half of the past summer's sessions and be at least 12 years of age to be eligible. Application packets were mailed recently to over 70 youngsters who qualified for consideration. Winners are selected because of their dedication and interest in golf, their potential and the manner in which they respond to the official application questions. During the past seven years 50 junior golfers from the Charlevoix area have been awarded scholarships.

Local PGA professional from the Belvedere Golf Club, Steve Braun again adds greatly to the camp scholarship fund by taking pledges for his "100 Holes in a Day" fund-raiser last fall.

Dennis LaCroix, board president, said, "Steve's effort is greatly appreciated by all of us connected to the program. His dedication and interest in young golfers is typical of the excellent cooperation we get from everyone including the courses that host our golfers'; Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells, the Belvedere, municipal and the Charlevoix Country Club."

More information regarding this year's program and the June 10 registration procedures will be announced soon.

Special meeting planned on Loeb Road project

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A special meeting of the Marion Township Planning Commission could make or break plans for a dense housing development off Loeb Road.

The planning commission has scheduled a special meeting to take place at 7 p.m., May 25 at the township hall off Marion Center Road to consider a controversial rezoning request.

In the fall of 2003, Charlevoix resident Wayne Boss and his family members who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC, filed a request with the Marion Township Board to rezone land they own from agricultural to R-1, single family residential, to make way for 85 "affordable" home sites.

The request applies to two parcels totaling 53 acres, both fronting on Loeb Road around where it intersects with Veenstra Road. The development plan for the site includes lots that would be a minimum of 20,000 square feet. Boss said he is aiming to keep prices under $120,000.

In November, the Marion Township Board delayed that rezoning request when it hired a consultant to evaluate soil and water suitability at the site.

Tests that were done by Performance Engineers of Charlevoix showed there exists an adequate supply of water for individual wells to be drilled to service the homes.

The soil study, which looked at whether the land can support on-site septic systems for each individual home, came away with different results for the two parcels. The engineers found that soil on the north site is better suited for higher density development like what Boss is proposing. On the south site, they found more variation in the soil which would make it less suitable for this type of development in some areas.

Boss concurred with this report. At the commission's April meeting he told the commissioners that the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department, and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality would never approve an on-site septic system where the soil is questionable and he doesn't plan to use those areas.

Residents and the engineers have voiced concerns that those wells could be polluted if a high density of septic systems is permitted.

A report by Ball Environmental Associates of Traverse City, suggests shallow wells be monitored for nitrates or deepened to ensure a long-term, high quality water supply.

The planning commission will use the information it has gathered and may reach its decision as to whether or not to recommend approval of the request to the township board. This recommendation will require a majority vote of the seven-person commission.

If the commission makes its decision the request will be passed along to the Charlevoix County Planning Commission which will then review the request and make its recommendation. And then the township board will review it and make the final decision.

School district facing lean times

CUTS

made during the current school year when $800,000 was taken out of the budget. So, whatever "fat" that was in the budget has already been trimmed.

In the past, budget problems have also been made up through the district's fund balance, a savings account with emergency money that is set aside without a designated place it has to be spent. However, this extended budget crunch has dwindled that account to the edge of its limit.

The school board's policy requires the fund balance stay at 8 percent of the previous year's budget. The district will end this year with a fund balance just under 12 percent of 2002-2003 expenditures. But if the $800,000 deficit projected for 2004-2005 is taken out, the fund balance would dip below the allowed 8 percent.

So the money will have to come out of the budget.

A survey taken of about 100 parents in the school district to gauge where cuts should be made showed their highest priorities are protecting academic programs, class size and teachers. Those respondents said if changes have to be made they want to see fees increase for non-curricular activities like field trips, cuts to foreign language programs, hikes in athletic event ticket prices and layoffs of support staff like clerical staff, bus drivers or teacher assistants.

Sturock said, "We don't want to implement layoffs but when 85 percent of your program is people it's hard to stay away from that."

An outline of the direction cuts could take shows the bulk of the impact will be felt in personnel. The district is looking at saving $683,078 in personnel cuts. These may include a decision not to replace employees that retire, layoffs or reduction of the teaching load.

Another $113,000 may come from athletics, teaching supplies and drivers education. This leaves about $4,000 more for the district to scrape together somewhere in the budget.

The board will nail down the fine details of the plan before school lets out on June 10 so people who may be without a job next year can start planning.

Sturock said local and state factors contribute to the gray reality the school district is facing.

On the state side of things, the per pupil foundation allowance has flat lined at $7,887 per student over the past two years and no increase is projected for next year. The school district looks to a rise in that money to meet its changes in costs like salary and fringe benefit increases.

The local piece of the puzzle is declining enrollment which has been dropping at a rate of 20 students a year over the past four years. In 2000-2001 school year over 1,420 students were enrolled and projections for next year are at 1,360. Sturock said this reality has come about because of a lack of affordable housing in the area for young families and birth trends.

According to Scott Cochran, administrator at Charlevoix's charter school, Northwest Academy, no cuts are planned there. He said any shortfall that is realized can be met by the school's reserve account.

Gas prices rising across the country

GAS

of vehicles that have higher gas consumption."

And high prices are expected to continue throughout the summer.

Hoffman said areas on the west coast and east coast of the nation may even see the cost jump to $3 a gallon. Additionally, Hoffman said Michigan residents will see higher prices than many other areas due to the gasoline taxes in the state.

There higher gas prices could have an impact on Charlevoix's economy, which relies on people traveling to the area to visit from larger cities.

Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said it is still hard to gauge the gas price impact. She said some businesspeople in town have reported higher than usual traffic amounts in the city, but others have reported less.

As for consumers, she said they may be seeing higher prices on goods.

"It is a fact when gas goes up for delivers and distribution we all have to pay," Merta said.

Margo Marks, general manager of the Beaver Island Boat Company, said gas prices have contributed to increasing expenses of the company's ferry service, but so far the business has been able to absorb those costs rather than pass them on to its customers.

She said the boat company does have the ability to add a fuel surcharge to its ticket prices if gasoline rates go up dramatically. So far, she said the company has not had to do that.

While the impact of gas prices on our economy is still up in the air, higher gas prices also impact what kinds of vehicles people buy.

Pat McKeown, owner of the Charlevoix automobile dealership Pat McKeown Ford, said while people have not really started buying more fuel efficient cars, he has started hearing more questions from customers about some of Ford's more fuel efficient vehicles, such as hybrids and the SUV Escape — which gets much better gas mileage than normal SUVs.

However, he said he still is selling a lot of trucks — which are his best seller — because most of them are sold to people who use them in their businesses.

Dave Baker, business manager at Crown Motors in Charlevoix, said gas prices really have not effected what people are buying at this time.

"It seems to me to be consistent with a majority of the cars going out are SUVs and minivans. People are not concerned about gas prices right now," he said.

In addition to impacts impact on businesses in Charlevoix, according to Hoffman high gas prices also have a negative impact on gasoline stations.

"We make less money at higher retail prices. We tend to take a bath when they get higher. Credit card fees go up, bad checks are written, there are drive offs. Everything in our cost of doing business goes up," he said.

SCRAPBOOK

The strange sayings of American English

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

Through the years there have been many wise and not so wise sayings that have passed from one generation to another among the old timers in town.

I hear them every day, usually from Dale or the grandchildren who have heard some of them. There is no way of knowing how they began, but many of them refer to everyday things around us. Our family was sitting around talking the other day and they helped me think of some of them.

Many of these came from Dale's dad and his grandpa Chew. One of grandpa Chew's frequently used sayings was, "I don't know him from Adam's off ox." He also frequently said, "He is poorer than job's turkey."

One of Dale's often used saying is, "It's a great life if you don't weaken and I'm weakening." Our grandson, Beau, loves to repeat it and will write it on a birthday card for Dale, chuckling about it.

Then, there is a saying, "The acorn never falls far from the tree." How about, "Monkey see monkey do." Really tells the story of copying someone else's way of doing things. We all know the saying "Slower than molasses in January." Now that's slow.

"Nuttier than a fruit cake," also speaks for itself. As does, "His elevator doesn't go clear to the top," or "Dumber than Paddy's pig." That one must have originated in Ireland. The sayings "Faster than greased lighting," or "Goes like a scalded hog" both speak for themselves.

There is one that says "Slicker than a hound's tooth," or the one, "Slipperier than a greased pig." There's "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones," and "He didn't know sic 'em."

Then there is "Uglier than dirt," "Neat as a pin," "Cute as a button," "Homelier than a hedge fence," or "Cute as a bug's ear." A friend describes some things as "Brick bat hard." I remember hearing some of the Dutchmen use the saying, "Hotter than Dutch love." Some other sayings were "Dirty as a pig sty," "Sweeter than honey," "Happy as a lark," "Dumb as a post," "Free as a bird," "Uglier than sin," and "Got so much money he doesn't know what to do with it."

Then there is the saying that someone is, "Not working with a full deck," or the one, "The fog is thicker than pea soup." Then, there's "Hotter than a cat on a tin roof," and "Madder than a hatter," "Poorer than a church mouse," "Finer than frog hair," and "Snug as a bug in a rug." I would think that would be very snug, indeed. There is the profound, "Handsome is as handsome does."

When someone says, "It's raining cats and dogs," we all know what that means. There also is "Slipperier than an eel," and, "There's something rotten in Denmark," or in describing someone, there is "He's a happy camper," or "Looser than a goose," and "Older than the hills." Then there is "Busy as a bee," "So tight he squeaks," and someone is "Tighter than bark on a tree."

"He should be given three lashes with a wet noodle," was also said, and "He kicked the bucket," described when a fellow died.

When the movie "It's a mad, mad, mad, mad world" first came out in the downtown theater, we went. My brother Glenn and his family and our family sat in he middle of the theater, and when Jimmy Durante died, a pail rolled down the embankment where he was lying and Dale yelled out, "He kicked the bucket," not thinking that everyone could hear him because we usually didn't go to the movies. When the viewers heard him say that and begin to laugh as he does, they started laughing too. It was contagious, and we all doubled over.

The saying, "Dead dog tired," also speaks for itself, as does, "Colder than a well digger's hind end." Another one is describing something which "Handles like a greased snake on ice." Also, "He's not the sharpest tool in the box." There is one I saw and wrote down a few years ago, which read, "Looks like something no self-respecting cat would watch a mouse hole for."

Then there is "Lazier than a pet coon," "Deader than a hammer," "Hotter than the hubs of Hades," "Drunker than a skunk," or "Stinks like a gut wagon," which referred to a wagon that used to go around to the grocery stores and pick up the leftovers from butchered animals.

Some others we remembered were, "Sly as a fox, "Older than dirt," "It stuck out like a sore thumb," "Out of sight out of mind," "Thick as thieves," "Nervous as a cat" and "Nobody's fool."

Then there were the following, "Adding fuel to the fire," "He was all ears," "Befitting a king," and "Hit the dust."

A friend told us that his housekeeper was cleaning and he mentioned that a person they both knew had, "Bought the farm," meaning someone died. She immediately asked him, "What farm?" He pulled that one on her several times.

One last quip was, "He was so tight, he wouldn't pay a dollar to see the Lord himself walk across Round Lake."

Quite a few years ago, when we had an exchange student from Germany in our home for the school year, we constantly had to explain to her what we were saying. We Americans use so much slang, that for a student who had studied Oxford English in her land, it was quite a chore to understand the Americanese we speak.

We had such fun remembering all these old sayings, and of course, the kids all said I wouldn't have enough of them to write about, but I did.

Many of these were heard from Dale's grandfather and others who used them to describe something going on in town. This made for rather colorful language as they told their stories, describing their lives and those of others around them.

Fund-raiser may help your health

Area food pantries will get a boost this summer from this year's "Get Moving Charlevoix County — 100 Miles in 100 Days."

All registration fees of $1 (or a canned good) will be distributed to one of the designated community food pantries.

Registration forms for this third annual walk are available at chamber of commerce offices in Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Office, Charlevoix Area Hospital Gift Shop, Boyne Rehabilitation Center and Trinity Fellowship Church (both in Boyne City), Jordan Valley Rehabilitation Center in East Jordan, and at the East Jordan and Boyne City city hall offices.

When participants register they will receive a "log" to keep track of their miles, exercise and diet tips and other healthful information.

"This year the program has been changed just a little, we've gone back to having postcards to mail in for drawings," Kathy Johnson, foundation director, said. "In addition we still have the $100 drawing at the end of the summer."

The program was designed to encourage area residents to get out and "move it." The program kickoff will be at 5 p.m. at area Chamber Offices on Friday, May 21.

"May is National Physical Fitness and Sports Month," Johnson said. "It is also National Bike Month so it is a perfect time to start an exercise program. Participants can walk, bike, swim, hike, golf — the idea is to just get moving. Treadmill miles count."

The program starts May 21 and will end Aug. 28. Those registering are encouraged to "do their personal best."

Care and Share in East Jordan, the Boyne City Food Pantry at Trinity Fellowship Church and the Food Pantry at the Congregational Church in Charlevoix will receive food and money from this event.

For more information about the program or to register, call 547-8502.

Wal-Mart pulls out

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Wal-Mart has ended its plans for a supercenter in Charlevoix Township.

According to township attorney Mike Corcoran, the mega-retailer informed Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Chair Nancy Rajewski Monday that it has ended its push for a supercenter on the township's south side near the intersection of Marion Center Road and US-31.

"I think the number of hurdles Wal-Mart was facing may have caused the company to reconsider," Corcoran said.

Wal-Mart wanted to build a 155,800 square foot supercenter.

However, the company faced stiff resistance from many area residents who formed the anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town. It was also not supported by the area chamber of commerce and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

In addition to the resistance the company faced, the site it had picked had many issues as well. Wal-Mart needed to get Stover Road vacated, there were many wetlands issues, the traffic flow from the site was under question and the city of Charlevoix did not seem very favorable to extending sewer and electrical service to the site.

Time to plant the petunias

It's petunia planting time in Charlevoix.

Operation Petunia, the community wide planting party, will be at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 27.

Five miles of petunias will be planted on both sides of US-31 from the airport to Mercer Boulevard and on M-66 to Stover Road. Now in its twenty-third year the event is so well organized that the hundreds of volunteers usually finish planting in less than one hour.

The planting will be followed by a picnic in East Park for all the planters.

Anyone who wants to plant can go to any location along the road at 5 p.m. and start planting. Areas that can always use more help are south of town on the west side of US-31 from State Street to the Airport and on the east side from Carpenter to M-66 and around the corner to Stover Road.

Also extra help is needed on the north side by the golf course.

Block captains will help direct planting and distribute coupons for the picnic and treats from Dairy Queen, 7-Eleven and Kilwin's. Volunteers are urged to wear comfortable clothes and to bring their garden trowels along.

If you have any questions or would like to volunteer to be a block captain please call Marrell Staffel at 547-2561 or 547-5574.

Castle faces busy summer

Renovations to the Castle are almost complete, with an open house planned for Sunday, May 30.

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

In 2001, a woman enamored with castles and a man who made his fortune in pizzas took on a project few have the financial wherewithal or the patience to tackle and conquer.

And now they are ready to share the fruits of their labor with Charlevoix.

The couple is Charlevoix residents Linda and Richard Mueller. The project is the restoration of the local landmark Castle Farms.

"We had a dream and now it's come together and it looks prettier than our dream," Richard said.

Three years of hard work will culminate in an afternoon celebration this weekend. The open house will take place from noon to 6 p.m., May 30 at the site located at 05052 M-66 in Charlevoix. That day the gates will finally open to allow the public to tour, play and bask in the magnificent resurrection of the Castle Farms.

Linda, a connoisseur of Gothic architecture including castles and cathedrals, bought the 38 acre parcel from the Reibel family in January of 2001 and set out shortly thereafter to transform it to its original architectural design.

The Muellers have strong local ties and wanted to do something for the community. Richard's mother, Rosemary Mueller, who currently owns a home in the Belvedere Club, had a grandfather by the name of Oscar Allen who built the well-known Blue Bell Cottage in the club and was one of the club's founding fathers.

Charlevoix Children's House celebrates birthday

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A group of pint-sized party goers got together to celebrate a special anniversary last week.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of The Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School, was recognized May 19 with a special gallery style showing of the students' art, called Creation Celebration.

The scene was that of a typical party — kids covered with white frosting and chocolate cake, a tent full of silent auction items and groups of young friends giggling.

In the midst of the classic party was a group of students proudly holding the hands of their loved ones as they guided them to the special section in the room where their work was displayed.

"It's like the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair for kids 6 and under," director of the Children's House, Barbara Godwin-Chulick, said.

The school building that parents and students celebrated in is located off Mercer Boulevard. But the roots of the program were first set in the basement of Charlevoix's First Congregational Church off State Street. Shortly thereafter the classroom moved to a pole barn off Taylor Road. And after five years of moving the school came to rest at its present location.

While its homes have been fluid, Godwin-Chulick, who has been director of the school for the past three years, said the core of the program has stayed the same.

Teachers and assistants still follow the Montessori learning model developed in the late 1800s and early 1900s by Maria Montessori, Italy's first woman physician who later turned education innovator.

Dr. Montessori based her approach to early childhood education on intuitive as well as a traditional understanding of children's cognitive growth and development.

"The focus is the child. Everything the child needs to learn is within them to start with. We (teachers) are guides to bring richness to their little lives. And they are sponges that drink it all in," Godwin-Chulick said.

So while the program has evolved to the needs and interests of the children, its fundamental basis has stayed the same.

Godwin-Chulick looked around the room and pointed out different areas where developmental stations are set up. She said that the environment in the classroom is the school's curriculum.

"All the materials are here, available to them to build the basis of learning math, language and geography," she said.

The local school is a three-year program that starts when kids are two and a half years old. Godwin-Chulick says this multiage classroom is a key element of the model.

"In the third year, it all comes together," she said.

She remembered when she first got involved with the program and a friend told her it was a better investment than college. Now, after over a decade of hands on work with the Montessori model, she agrees.

"If they love learning and get excited about learning and lock that in at this age, that will stay with them the rest of their lives," she said.

There are currently 28 students enrolled at the school which accepts students from pre-school age through Kindergarten. The school offers a full-day program. For more information or to register a student call the school at 547-5599.

Time to learn from this Wal-Mart issue

EDITORIAL

They said it couldn't be done.

They said the task was too big.

They said it was useless to fight.

They were wrong. Wal-Mart, it seems, has been beaten away in Charlevoix.

On Monday, the mega-retailer informed Charlevoix Township Planning Commission Chair Nancy Rajewski that it was canceling its supercenter project near the intersection of US-31 and Marion Center Road.

While this over 155,000 square foot retail and grocery store would have brought a whole slew of cheaper products to the Charlevoix consumer, it also would have brought a host of problems to the community.

It would have caused a traffic nightmare at that intersection, there were concerns about stormwater runoff into Stover Creek, wetland concerns and sprawl concerns. The business would not have brought in any more new jobs to the area according to many economists, nor would it have brought in any more tax dollars. Instead, it probably would have caused a loss in jobs and tax dollars after about 10 years.

This project had many cons to it and only a couple of pros.

But, can you fight the world's largest retailer? The Charlevoix group This Is Our Town did just that and it seems they have won.

This group must not celebrate too long. Wal-Mart most likely will not give up its push into our area and will probably try to come to other communities near us — which would be even more of a disaster for our economy.

On the flip side, there were many people in Charlevoix who were in support of a Wal-Mart coming. Wal-Mart meant more shopping options in Charlevoix for them.

It is hoped that the Charlevoix merchants have taken note of their concerns. Perhaps there is a need for lower prices on retail goods in this community, perhaps there is a segment of the population that is not being served and perhaps we are losing money to other communities who do serve these folks.

Perhaps one way our merchants and This Is Our Town can keep big box retailers from coming to Charlevoix is to meet the needs of these folks.

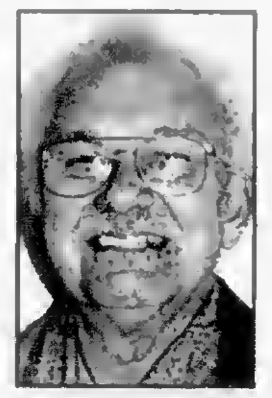
The mysterious cicada will be making its appearance



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

An ordinary spring is amazing enough, what with the seeming overnight appearance of all the maple leaves, and the bright and falling petals of forsythia, plums, apples and even the occasional magnolia.

Some springs provide us with more astonishing images of the bounty of nature than others do. I am speaking of the emergence of what are usually called 17-year locusts. These are not locusts in the sense of those creatures of Biblical plagues, or the grasshoppers that chewed up the crops of early settlers on the western plains of the United States.

The wonder of this spring for the northeast corner of our country is properly referred to as a cicada. Cicadas look just a bit like a vastly overgrown house fly, about an inch and a half long.

Most of the 17-year cicadas can't live as far north as Charlevoix, but from Pennsylvania to Illinois and just a bit of southern Michigan, they provide one of nature's most amazing spectacles. There are a few cicadas most springs, but some years their abundance almost belies description. Cicadas spend 17 years living below ground and out of sight, sucking on the juices of plant roots and causing no trouble to the trees they are feeding on. They emerge as adults ready to breed in late May or early June. The most abundant brood of cicadas last emerged as adults in 1987. They were the parents of those that are climbing out of the ground this spring. The grandparents of this year's cicadas had their day in the sun in 1970. The adults live for a month or so, lay eggs and die.

Cicadas live in environments that have trees. They need the roots for food during their overlong excursion underground, and they need the branches to lay eggs on as adults. Jeffrey Lockwood, a professor of Natural Sciences at the University of Wyoming, has calculated that this year's adult cicadas will lay about 500 trillion eggs, as many as there are stars in our Milky Way galaxy. Up to 40,000 cicadas can emerge from the soil under a single large tree. Dr. Lockwood calculates that the total population of cicadas in seven states this May and June will outweigh the total human population of the United States. That is a lot of cicadas.

Need we fear anything but some minor annoyance from this tidal wave of insects? The answer is no. They make a lot of noise, but they are only interested in trees and one another. We can be awed without being troubled.

How a small insect manages to know when exactly 17 years has elapsed from the time it began life remains a mystery. Why they live underground for so long may have an explanation. Most insects, indeed most living things, have as their primary reasons for being providing food for some other creature. No organism specializes in eating cicadas, at least partly because 17 years is a long time to wait between meals. Having escaped predators almost completely, Cicada numbers will likely remain high as long as there are trees and tree roots.

Visit the cicadas this spring. They are a natural phenomenon at least as impressive as the Grand Canyon or the Great Lakes.

The pledge

Editor:

Memorial Day is on Monday, May 31, 2004. How about saying "The Pledge of Allegiance," every day starting today?

Since the Civil War, Memorial Day has been a time to remember those who have faithfully served in America's armed forces, so many of whom made the ultimate sacrifice for the sake of freedom. We must never forget its price.

Senator John McCain told about his five-and one-half years as prisoner of war during the Vietnam War. In the early years of his imprisonment, the North Vietnam (NVA) kept him in solitary confinement with two or three soldiers to a cell.

"In 1971 the NVA moved me from these conditions of isolation into large rooms with as many as 30 or 40 men to a room.

"This was, as you can imagine, a wonderful change and was a direct result of efforts of millions of Americans on behalf of a few hundred Prisoners of War (POW) 10,000 miles from home.

"One of the men who moved into my room was a young man named Mike Christian. Mike came from a small town near Selma, Ala. He didn't wear a pair of shoes until he was 13 years old. At 17, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He later earned a commission by going to Officer Training School; then he became a Naval Flight Officer and was shot down and captured in 1967. Mike had a keen and deep appreciation of the opportunities this country and our military provided for people who wanted to work and wanted to succeed.

"Mike got himself a bamboo needle, and over a period of a couple of months, he created an American flag and sewed it on the inside of his shirt.

"Every afternoon, before we had a bowl of soup, we would hang Mike's shirt on the wall of the cell and say the Pledge of Allegiance.

"I know the Pledge of Allegiance may not seem the most important part of our day now, but I can assure that in that stark cell, it was indeed the most important and meaningful event."

With that may we all have the same love and pride for our wonderful country we all share to all nations. May God Bless America.

Don't put trash in bins

Editor:

In the few years the Charlevoix County Recycling Program has been in effect, it has been a remarkable success, thanks to the hard work of the committee members and to the public's enthusiastic participation.

We would like to especially thank WATCH, Charlevoix State Bank, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Charlevoix County Road Commission, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Radio Shack, and the many volunteers who help supervise the sites and run the household hazardous waste program. Would anyone else like to join us?

We do still have a few problems that we are working on. There are six drop off locations in Charlevoix County. The drop off sites that are open 24/ 7 are the most convenient for recyclers and the most frustrating for volunteers. The bins are checked, often daily, to see that items are being recycled correctly.

This is where a few ruin it for the many conscientious recyclers. These are a few of the unrecyclable items that have been found in or near the bins: styrofoam chunks or "peanuts," window panes, baby seats, a keyboard, and household garbage. Please, do not bring these items.

Two reminders: thoroughly rinse all cans, plastic and glass. Otherwise, they attract bees and other pests to the site. Flatten everything that you can. Air space is expensive to haul.

For the volunteers, scheduling the emptying of the bins can be tricky. We can visit in the morning, and it looks like there is plenty of room in the bins, but, by afternoon, some bins could be full. If you stop to drop off your recyclables and the bins are full, please come back the next day. Do not leave your stuff piled up outside the bins. If it's on the ground and it's raining, it becomes garbage.

There is now a surveillance camera installed to monitor the sites. If you are one of the people putting unacceptable items in the recycling, you will be ticketed. Leaving garbage, trash or unacceptable items at the sites is a ticket waiting to happen.

We have kept more than 12,540 tons of recyclables from going to a landfill and saved 26,000 trees. Let's all work together to continue the success story of this program.

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department and the City of Charlevoix Fire Department would like to thank the people of Charlevoix and surrounding area for their overwhelming support at the Pizza Hut benefit dinner for Charlevoix Township Fireman Captain Steve Paterka, who has recently suffered a serious medical illness resulting in paralysis.

We would like to send a huge thank you to Pizza Hut manager Caytee Scott and her staff who worked so diligently all evening, and so generously donated their place of business, their time and their tips for the evening. This is clearly above and beyond the call of "duty."

Thanks to the generosity of the community, over $2,500 was raised to help Steve and his family with mounting medical bills. We, the firemen, and Steve's family are overwhelmed by the generosity of the community. It gives new meaning to the words "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Steve continues to show improvement at Munson Medical Center. His positive attitude is not only helping him to recover; he continues to spread his always optimistic attitude to the patients around him.

We hope Steve will have a full recovery and be home soon.

Thank you, again, to the community of Charlevoix and surrounding area for your generosity.

Clarification

Editor:

The May 19 letter from Rosalyn Goldstick to Charlevoix Senior Center members and supporters who celebrated the Center's recent birthday and groundbreaking was a very warm and interesting history of the Center and its wonderful accomplishments over the years.

I would like to clarify what I consider an important point, however. The letter says that "no millage money has been available for renovations or additions." What is not mentioned is that the Charlevoix County senior millage covers the center's operating expenses (up to $15,000 in this fiscal year) in addition to emergency repairs to the building interior and equipment. An additional $10,000 of senior millage funds has also been set aside this year for capital equipment purchases that will be required in the center's expanded kitchen.

The Charlevoix County senior millage is not intended for construction or renovation. It is generally expended in direct services to our county's seniors, a very large number of whom live in the Charlevoix area. However, because we believe the Charlevoix Senior Center is an integral and extremely valuable asset in our community, the county has allocated financial support to the Center even though it is a private organization.

Congratulations and best wishes to the Charlevoix Senior Center for all that it does for our seniors and our entire community. We look forward to a continued mutually beneficial relationship with the Center for many years to come.

Memorial Day ceremonies to start at 9 a.m. with wreath laying Charlevoix Memorial Day Celebrations will begin at 9 a.m. with a wreath laying ceremony at the Brookside Cemetery flagpole.

At 10 a.m. the parade will commence from Garfield Street heading downtown. The parade will stop to lay a wreath at the memorial in Veterans Park and then proceed to East Park for the rest of the remembrance celebrations.

Participants in the parade include groups from both high schools — the Rayder Marching Band and the Northwest Academy choir.

Other units scheduled to march include the following: American Legion and Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary, Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, Marine Corps League, Civil Air Patrol, Girl Scouts and Friends of the Library.

All residents are invited to attend. After the ceremonies the Rayder Marching Band will play in the park and the Northwest choir will sing at the American Legion Hall.

Charlevoix Historical Society to have dedication of Heritage Garden

The Charlevoix Historical Society, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, and the Charlevoix Evening Garden Club invite you to attend a dedication of the Heritage Garden at 7 p.m. on June 1 at the Charlevoix Historic Depot.

Robert Pew will cut the ribbon.

The Depot Heritage Garden idea began in August of 2001 with a mission to plant a historically accurate garden involving the community in gathering, documenting, planting and maintaining the garden. Organizers for this project were Patti Aikin and Rhea Dow. Brian Devlin, a historic garden landscape designer was hired and plans were developed.

The official groundbreaking took place September 19, 2002.

Historic gates, once the iron entrance gates at the Colonial Club, saved by Gary Forbrig and ultimately donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society, were refurbished by Richard Louiselle, and installed in 2002. Additional fencing, created and installed by Ed Fralick, was made possible through individuals who contributed $50 per foot of fencing.

Boxwood, serviceberry bushes, spruce, hydrangeas, viburnum and Black Hills spruce were planted.

The garden paths, built with 1890s brick, saved from the old railway baggage platform, allow visitors to walk between shrubbery and flower beds that were planted in 2003, with historically appropriate plants of direct descendants of plants grown in Charlevoix from the 1870s to the 1930s; plant markers cite the historic plants.

The garden continues to be a joint project of the Historical Society and the Garden Clubs, and is maintained by members.

Additional grants have been written, and depending on the availability of funds, the Depot Heritage Garden Committee hopes to add a pergola, additional fencing and benches for seating in the pergola.

For further information on this event or the Charlevoix Historical Society please call 547-0373.

Sheriff completing book on area veterans

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater's book on area veterans' contributions to World War II is almost ready to print.

Lasater has been working on the book for the last two years. It will be sold locally and all of the profits will go to veterans' organizations who have helped with this project.

George T. Lasater

"Hopefully, I will have it ready for press this summer," Lasater said.

The book, whose title will be picked by a Boyne City fourth grade class, will be about the many Charlevoix County veterans of World War II.

According to Lasater over 1,000 people in Charlevoix County are veterans of World War II. He has also compiled about 400 pictures of many of those veterans' in uniform during that time of history.

Lasater's research has discovered 421 residents served in the army, 111 served in the air force, 247 served in the navy, 1 served in the Red Cross, 53 served in the Marines, 11 served in the coast guard, eight served as merchant marines and three served in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Lasater even found three Charlevoix residents who had served in the German army during the war. While these men served on the Russian front, Lasater said he is not sure if he will include them in his book.

The three men who served in the Canadian Air Force did so because all of the piloting classes in the United States Army Air Force were filled up when they attempted to enlist during the war. So the men went to Canada and joined up.

Lasater said all three went to Europe and one fought flying a Spitfire in the Battle of Britain. However, he was shot down and killed.

Of the other veterans in the war, Lasater said there are many tales to tell.

"The stories could go on and on," he said of his book.

Lasater discovered one man who was a paratrooper during the war who was in the same unit the HBO movie Band of Brothers was based on. His story followed right along to the movie, Lasater said.

One of the saddest stories he has in his book is about the Foster family. Lasater said the father of the Foster family was the town postmaster at the time of the war and he had four sons serving and one daughter at home in high school.

However, his daughter was killed in an automobile accident and less than a year later, he received word that one of his sons was killed in battle. Then only about 90 days after that horrible news, he learned another son had been killed in battle.

Because of the sacrifices made by the Foster family, many people in town wanted to name the bridge after them — "The Foster Memorial Bridge." But, Lasater said, the mother of the family declined this honor, saying many more men in Charlevoix were also sacrificing their lives for their country.

Therefore, the bridge was named, "The Memorial Bridge."

Another interesting story Lasater tells is of a soldier with the last name of Richardson who lived in Norwood. This man was drafted right out of high school and had never really set foot outside of the county.

However, he found himself in the Carolinas, facing the fact that he was going to be shipped off to war. To make matter worse for him, he had not been granted leave following his stint in basic training and was terribly homesick, Lasater said.

The man just knew he was not going to survive the war and felt as though he had to see his parents one last time. So he went AWOL and started hitch-hiking from the Carolinas to Charlevoix, to spend one last weekend with his family.

Just past Grand Rapids, the man was picked up by county sheriff's deputies. But, after hearing his tale on how he believed he was not going to survive the war and that he just wanted to see his parents once more, the deputies drove him to the county line and wished him luck.

Lasater said the man did make it home and spent a weekend with his parents and family before they took him to Traverse City and he was sent back to his unit. The military did not charge him AWOL, so he went to war, where he was a part of the first wave at D-Day and was killed.

Other notables include a medal of honor winner who was a soldier in the Pacific theater and Orin Sutton, who was such a legend as a jungle fighter, that he was the subject of a comic book.

"There are some great stories out there," Lasater said.

However, as Lasater finishes up his book, he is still seeking information on some soldiers. He said he needs help finding the relatives of soldiers in the Schwab and Eccleston family.

If you have any information on these soldiers or families, contact Lasater by calling 547-4461.

One home, per five acres too much for some

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A cabin development planned for a big chunk of land off Boyne City-Charlevoix Road has sparked concerns from surrounding property owners.

In early February, Denny Heck, a Charlevoix resident and broker with Vacation Properties Network, submitted a rezoning request to the Hayes Township Board on behalf of an unnamed landowner from Florida operating under the business name Lake Charlevoix Farms, LLC.

The request asks the board to rezone just over 75 acres of land located at 08799 Boyne City Road, from agricultural to RR-1, rural residential, with a planned unit development (PUD) overlay.

Under the current agricultural zoning they can develop one home per 10 acres. If the rezoning goes through that development potential would double.

Heck said the developer plans to build about 15 single family log homes that would be 2,000 to 3,000 square feet each. They would each be situated on a five-acre piece of property. The homes would be built on between four and six building pods with each site accommodating between four and six homes.

The plan is to maintain gravel roads to give the property a rustic feel. They may even plant a vineyard on part of the property that right now is an open pasture area so homeowners can enjoy their own private label wine.

The property will also include a 20 acre conservation easement that includes a wetland area and a group of mature pines.

"People will actually be able to say I'm going to the cottage instead of I'm going to my 14,000 square foot getaway," Heck said.

But the developer's rustic retreat concept hasn't been met with nostalgic smiles from surrounding neighbors who have taken issue with the proposed land use.

A citizens committee made up of about 10 people living near the property has formed to police the project.

One of the people leading the effort to put the brakes on is Bill Henne, owner of a 62 acre farm that adjoins this property. Of Henne's acreage, his house is situated on a 10 acre parcel and the remaining property is located in a conservation easement.

Henne said that in reading the township's master plan and zoning ordinance as it relates to PUD zoning, open space is an integral part of the development and in his mind, the easement that is planned isn't ideal.

"That's nice, wetlands are useful to all of us. But I don't think that's the intent of the master plan. Open space should be land that can be developed or farmed," Henne said. "I want to see a good PUD."

Henne feels that the property that adjoins his, which includes a pasture area and some forest land, should be the easement location.

He added that his vision of a "good PUD" clusters or groups homes on smaller lots of about three-quarters of an acre per home. And instead of pursuing the "vague" pod plan which Henne said sacrifices open space, he suggests one or two of these clusters for the Lake Charlevoix Farms acreage, leaving most of the property as open.

"They (the pods) take up a lot of area and fragment the open space which is not in line with the master plan," he said.

Heck disagrees and said the clustering concept is not the best use of the property and doesn't fit with why people come to northern Michigan.

"There is a difference between no growth and good growth. I've lived here since 1972 and it (the attitude) seems to be, 'I'm here, now let's shut the gates.' We want to do something everyone can be proud of," Heck said.

Heck said the property is a close fit with surrounding uses and follows the trend of residential development in Hayes Township which is moving toward five acre plots. He pointed out that a 10 acre piece near the middle of the property has already been rezoned to RR-1.

According to Hayes Township Clerk Ethel Knepp, all properties north of this parcel along Boyne City Road are zoned agricultural with the following exceptions — the area surrounded by the parcel is zoned RR-1, as are properties located half a mile to the west, a quarter of a mile to the north and a fifth of a mile to the east.

Aside from the lot size being consistent with township land use, Heck stressed that the activity at the site will be in-line with the quiet, country atmosphere neighbors have come to know.

"What they (those opposed to the project) don't seem to understand is the people we anticipate living here are going to want the same things they want," Heck said. "Nobody has more of an interest in preserving the integrity of the property than we have."

Heck has sat down with the opposing group twice to try and iron out their differences and agreed to table the rezoning request to the board's June 14 meeting. At that meeting which will take place at 7 p.m. in the township hall located near the corner of Burgess Road and Old US-31, they will review the planning commission's recommendation regarding the project.

At the commission's March 16 meeting five of six commissioners voted in favor of recommending that the township board approve the rezone request. However, Anne Kantola who voted in favor of the recommendation, did so with hesitation.

Kantola said she didn't feel the township had strong legal standing to deny the request because of precedent set in a lawsuit that was filed against the township the mid-1990s by Scott's Ventures, a company owned by a former Dunmaglas operator.

In this instance, the township board voted to rezone the property for residential development but residents mounted a referendum campaign that overturned that decision. The referendum was upheld in Charlevoix County Circuit Court, but when it went to the Michigan Court of Appeals the court ruled it was unreasonable for a township to require 10 acres per residence and the initial rezoning decision stuck.

Henne is anticipating the board changing the zoning for Lake Charlevoix Farms.

"I've gone to the board and I find their attitude with regards to land use very discouraging. In my opinion if they allow this rezone, they are not following their own master plan and looking at land use the way it was intended to be looked at," Henne said.

According to Sara Gay Dammann, who also feels this rezoning request in appropriate for the property, a referendum may follow if the township approves the rezoning request.

"We would much prefer to come to an amicable agreement on what is good for the land, good for the township and good for the project," she said.

Doctor using lasers to treat tooth problems

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix dentist Dr. Harry Suckert is looking to the technology of lasers to help solve his patient's tooth troubles.

As of this winter, Suckert became one of the first dentists in northern Michigan to begin using the Waterlase Dental Laser in his practice.

"I'm a real big fan of patient comfort," he said. "With laser dentistry, it just helps make the whole experience better."

The Waterlase Dental Laser allows patients to visit the dentist without having to take a shot of anesthetic, hear the sound of the drill or even suffer pain. According to information supplied by Suckert, the equipment works by emitting laser energy into a spray of atomized water.

"The water is energized and then is capable of cutting a wide range of human tissue, including enamel, bone, cartilage and soft tissue," the information states.

The laser claims to be able to perform these dental procedures without, in most cases, anesthesia, little or no bleeding or any problems caused by a high speed drill — such as micro-fissures which weaken the tooth structure and eventually allow decay to set in.

In addition to the usual filling duties a dentist performs on patients, the dental laser can be used for root canals, oral surgery and extractions. It can also be used to treat canker sores and cold sores.

Suckert said his patients seem to really like the procedure and he has several written testimonials to back this up.

Jenna Ward, one of Suckert's patients, wrote, "I've had bad experiences in the past with fillings that have been painful to do. I came expecting to have to be numbed and have my teeth drilled, but, with the new laser technique there was no numbing and absolutely no pain. My cavity experience today was very pleasant and I would recommend this technique to anyone who needs to have cavities filled."

Dr. Harry Suckert shows off his laser drill.

While using the laser tool with his patients, Suckert also has given classes on the subject to area dentists. He said he gave one in February and is planning another. He has also been asked to help teach a national class.

Suckert's office is located at 14695 Park Avenue in Charlevoix.

He can be contacted by calling (231) 547-4347 or e-mailing laserdds@chartermi.net.

Kelly, Henry named OPIE award winners

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Two dedicated teachers with Charlevoix Public Schools were given the Ninth Annual Outstanding Person in Education (OPIE) award May 20 at a banquet at Boyne Falls.

"The award is a way for our local employees to recognize the person that works there that contributes that extra bit to education, to kids and to the association," Terry Cox, Uniserv Director with the Michigan Education Association, said.

Earlier this school year, teachers in the Charlevoix School District nominated and chose fifth-grade teacher Anne Kelly and Charlevoix Elementary School library clerk Coreen Henry as award recipients.

"The recognition and appreciation from the staff is a great honor. It gives me a feeling of accomplishment," Henry said.

"I feel especially honored to be sharing the spotlight in the Charlevoix district with Anne Kelly — she's been a great inspiration to me," she added.

Henry's over 20-year stay at the elementary school started in 1979 when her daughters attended the school and she volunteered to help in the library.

After just one day of work she was offered the clerical's position and quickly accepted.

"I love books, I love kids and I love libraries. It all just fell together," she said.

Now, at age 61, things are stilling falling together as she watches her two youngest grandchildren finish fourth grade and prepare to move to the middle school.

"They've had a great start here," she said of her grandchildren and other elementary school students.

As Henry sat in a medium-sized chair, just right for little learners, surrounded by 12,000 books, she reflected on her job and her most recent honor.

"I've learned patience I thought I'd never have. And an understanding of children and my desire to be there for them. If I can even help one or two it makes a world of difference," she said.

"I don't want any child to fall through the cracks. Their future is our future and it's so important to be there for them."

Henry's inspiration and fellow OPIE winner, Kelly, has taught at Charlevoix Public Schools for 15 years.

Even though she has put in a decade and a half of hard work for the school district she said she was surprised to find out she had won the OPIE award.

"We have so many wonderful teachers in our district. To be given this honor in the year I'm retiring — what a way to put a bow on the whole package of my educational career," she said.

Most remember Kelly as a fourth-grade teacher at the elementary school where she spent 14 of her 15 years of service. This year she made a move to the middle school to try her hand at fifth grade.

She currently teaches language arts, reading and science at the fifth grade level.

Kelly decided to become a teacher after working closely with her mother, a former teacher of 25 years, and because of her passion for working with children.

Teachers honored to get awards

"Being able to learn and share with them, that's what this is all about," Kelly said.

"Every day there is something I learn from them."

She contributes her successful teaching career to flexibility.

"To be a successful teacher you have to be someone who can look at each child and be able to grow and get excited with them and be excited when the light bulb goes on in their head. When you see the kids feel good about themselves and what they learned that's when you feel successful," she said.

After retiring at the end of this school year Kelly plans to travel and spend time with her five children and five grandchildren.

But those breakthroughs in learning that have marked her long career as a success will be missed.

"I'll miss coming into a classroom and getting totally immersed in the kids. You get a huge sense of revitalization in that — kids are revitalizing," she said.

Kelly and Henry joined 25 other OPIE honorees from area school districts served by the Michigan Education Association, at the last week's event hosted by the Inland Lakes School District.

"The schools are really easy to pick on. Nationwide people bad mouth schools. And yet when you talk to people in the community about their schools they are really proud. But those teachers are rarely recognized. This is a good opportunity to remind everybody of the good things our folks are doing," Cox said of the event.

Distinguished author, editor to speak at library

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

When Charlevoix graduate and author Larry Smith branched out from his traditional role as editor of the established Parade magazine and put on his reporter's hat for a fourth of July piece he never knew he would get a glimpse at veteran's world.

In interviewing 24 Medal of Honor recipients, six who served in World War II, seven in the Korean Conflict and 11 in Vietnam, he heard candid accounts of the horrors of battle and the bravery it took to survive and earn their valorous decoration.

The vast material he came away with was more than he needed for an article, it was enough for a novel.

In August of 2001 he got the contract to write the book. Smith started the project in December and in October of 2002 wrapped up the final manuscript called "Beyond Glory — Medal of Honor Heroes in Their Own Words." It was published in June of 2003 and has since become a New York Times best seller and successful play.

Smith, 63, whose professional success also includes work with six newspapers including a stint as editor of the New York Times and two decades as managing editor of Parade magazine, will be at the Charlevoix Public Library June 1 to discuss the novel and talk about the library and growing up in Charlevoix. He is traveling here from his home in Norwalk, Conn.

In a recent interview, he attributed some of his success as a writer to his local roots.

In 1950, following the divorce of his parents, Smith and his mother Mary Baumbach Smith moved from Dearborn with his brother Gary and sister Carole, to a farm in Norwood, about eight miles south of Charlevoix. The farm was owned by his aunt and uncle, Grace and Harrison Warner, and is still operated by his cousin, Doug, who Smith stays with when he is in town.

As a child, his uncle, a World War II veteran who owned and operated a lumber business, contributed to early calluses on his young hands.

"He was an ideal person for a young one to be around. He was always giving you things to do you didn't think you could accomplish," Smith said. "There is no doubt the training I got out there gave me the courage to believe there is nothing I couldn't do if I chose to."

Smith also attributes some of his professional success to a handful of his Charlevoix teachers like Laura Courtade, who taught English and Latin.

"I got an education from her in grammar that was equal to anything I later underwent at the University of Michigan," he said. "I got a solid ground in the basics of reading and writing because of Laura Courtade."

Geometry and algebra were never Smith's strong suits and at an early age he used his word savvy ways to his advantage.

Smith, a city-boy-turned-small-town-teen, teamed up with Michael McCann, a Catholic boy with few friends. The two thought of themselves as a band of outsiders. They memorized the works of Seventeenth century poet John Milton for fun. The duo would hang out at the ice cream parlor, The Big Dipper, that used to be located near the corner of Upright and Bridge streets, where they would try to impress young girls with their prose.

He said his love of literature was strong during his years in town, but he never imagined a future as a writer because it was almost holy, "the highest calling imaginable."

After graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1958 he enrolled at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor where he could finally pursue his passions — Shakespeare, Homer and French.

"I had access to learning and the world at large. It was exciting and frightening," Smith said.

In 1962, after four years studying English Literature and Art History, Smith graduated without a clue as to what would come next.

"I just knew I wasn't suited to much of anything," he said.

Smith was broke, had no professional prospects and he and his wife of just under a year, Dorothea, were expecting their first child.

The adventuresome family went to Denver, Colo. looking for work. Smith stepped into the Colorado Press Association office, filled out an application and printed his almost laughable qualifications, "can read, write and speak English."

Things didn't pan out in Colorado and he headed back to Michigan. Soon after he and his wife arrived, Smith got a call from the Wyoming Eagle in Cheyenne, Wyo., announcing an opening at the paper. He said he would take it and made the first small strides toward a long career in journalism.

Smith said, "The key to success in life and any career is sheer persistence, coupled with willingness to take an occasional risk."

Smith plans to further elaborate on his career and works at a talk hosted by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library. The free event will take place at 7 p.m., June 1 at the library located at 109 Clinton Street.

The visit coincides with the Memorial Day release of "Beyond Glory" on paperback which will be available for purchase at the talk. Part of the proceeds from the sale will go to the library.

For more information call the library at 547-2651.

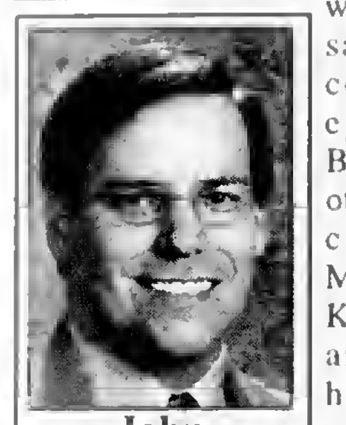
Kur, Jarema debate use of county money

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With governmental budgets in the red all over the state, money has become an important issue in every campaign, with the county prosecutor's race being no exception.

Mary Beth Kur



John Jarema

On one side, challenger John Jarema is claiming the current prosecutor is wasting taxpayer money and by cutting the staff and doing more trial work, he can save the county money on staff. But, on the other side, incumbent Mary Beth Kur cites examples of how she has saved the county money each year, why her staff size is important and how Jarema doesn't seem to understand what is a prosecutor's job.

Currently, Kur has two full time assistant prosecuting attorneys and one part-time attorney.

"I think that if the prosecutor does their fair share of trial work, the office should be able to run with three (attorneys)," Jarema said. "In a bigger county, perhaps."

Kur said, "We have one half-time person more than we had nine years ago when I started (working in the prosecutor's office). It would be a disservice, I think, to the citizens of Charlevoix County to make cuts to the chief law enforcement office."

But, Jarema claims that Kur does not spend enough time doing trial work. He said, if elected he will take on more misdemeanor trials and thus save the county one of its attorneys.

Kur said Jarema seems to think that trial work is the only thing a prosecutor does. What he does not take into account is that the prosecuting attorney for the county is also responsible for the office staff and tons of paperwork, such as writing massive grant requests which save the county money, and being a member of several beneficial boards, such as the SANE Board.

"These are boards that are very beneficial to the citizens of our county," she said.

Kur added she also works with the county commissioners with civil issues.

Kur has been the lead prosecutor on high profile felony cases, such as two murders that took place in Charlevoix in 2002.

But, to further charge his claim that the office staff is too big, Jarema cites statistics that show in 2001, Emmet County Prosecutor Bob Engel personally tried 20 misdemeanor cases. But, during that same time, Kur did not try any misdemeanor cases.

"A prosecutor that doesn't try cases, loses their edge," he said.

He added that Emmet County and Antrim County each have only two assistant prosecutors in their offices.

Jarema also pointed out that Kur has cost the county over $155,000 in legal fees to defend it and her against lawsuits brought out by himself and two other former employees of the prosecutors office. Jarema was given an offer of judgment — which is a form of settlement — that was requested by the county's insurance provider and the other case was thrown out of court.

He said while the insurance provider did pick up the tab on some of those fees, in his case alone, the taxpayers paid $35,000.

Kur responded that money had to be spent to fight Jarema's complaint. She added, her office has actually given money back to the county's general fund almost every year since 1995.

In fact, according to county statistics supplied by Kur, she has given back $133,913 to the county from her budget over that period of time. Plus, she was informed by the county that $9,000 of her unused money has been used to cover other county department deficits.

Furthermore, Kur said the county commissioners are the ones who decided how much each department has to spend of taxpayer money each year. And if a department goes over their allotted amount, they have to face the commissioners.

"I have never been questioned at all by any of them on how much we spend here," she said.

She added she is always looking at grants to apply for to keep saving the county money.

"I would like to get grant funding to keep the level of services we have. We provide high quality," she said. "I'll go after every single dollar of grant money that we can get."

Halverson uses contacts to track down teens

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Thanks to the dogged efforts of the local police chief and a Canadian assistant school principal, three students who made death threats to staff at Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District have been caught.

According to Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, he received a report that several death threats were left on the voice mail of four to six staff members of the intermediate school district. There were a total of about 10-15 threats made since March to these staff members.

"We don't toy with threats of violence in schools," Halverson said about the report.

Therefore he immediately started trying to find the culprit.

To start off the investigation, Halverson used the date and the time of the calls to determine what telephone number the calls were made from. He received a list of the telephone numbers that had called into the district's office during that time from the telephone company SBC.

Halverson said the telephone company can track any telephone number that calls your house or business, even if they are blocked.

However, Halverson discovered that the telephone number that the culprits called the intermediate school district from was in Montreal, Canada.

"I thought I hit a dead end," he said.

But, he was wrong. Halverson contacted a friend at the Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, City Police Department, who, in turn, contacted a friend in the Sault Ste. Marie, Canada, City Police Department, who contacted another person he knew in the Montreal, Canada.

Through this chain of contacts, Halverson discovered the telephone number was listed to a payphone in the lobby of a private school called Loyola High school in Montreal, Canada.

Using this information, Halverson hopped onto the internet, tracked down the main telephone number for the school and contacted an assistant principal.

That assistant principal asked Halverson to send him a tape of the telephone messages to determine if he could recognize any of the voices. He could not, but, during one of the messages, the assistant principal heard one of the suspects talking to another and use his first name.

Halverson said the assistant principal called in every student in the school with that first name. From this he discovered the identification of three freshmen students who had made the threatening calls.

"This guy did a heck of a job," Halverson said. "I wanted to make him an honorary police officer."

But the story did not end there.

The assistant principal contacted all of the student's parents and the Montreal Police Department. The Montreal Police Department called Halverson and asked him what sort of punishment would happen to a student in Charlevoix if they were caught making threats like this to a school official.

Halverson said the school district does not tolerate violence and the students, depending on their record, would probably serve community service, have probation and be put in some sort of counseling.

To Halverson's surprise, the local Montreal officials did just that to these three students.

Halverson added, "One of the parents even offered to fly his kid down to personally apologize to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School district."

Halverson said in many instances cases like this come to dead-ends, because it is so difficult to find information out about telephone numbers in different cities, much less than different countries.

"This one just kept going," he said. "Just when you thought I had a dead-end, I didn't."

3-year-old injured in accident on ATV

A 3-year-old Charlevoix boy was injured in an ATV accident around 6 p.m., May 19 in South Arm Township on Waterman Road, just north of Graham Road.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the boy was operating a mini ATV in his yard when he lost control and accelerated at a high rate of speed into a 500-gallon propane tank. He was thrown from the ATV into the propane tank and received serious head and neck injuries.

He was transported by East Jordan Ambulance to a waiting North Flight EMS and air lifted to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

The impact moved the propane tank about 18 inches off its base. The driver was wearing a helmet at the time.

The crash remains under investigation at this time.

Input sought for Venetian sports theme

As recently announced, the 2004 Venetian Festival theme will focus upon "Charlevoix's Sports Legends."

Since sports have long been an integral part of the heritage of Charlevoix, local individuals and teams which have become hometown sport heroes will be acknowledged and honored.

The festival has formed a Sports Committee consisting of Dean Davenport, Dave Novotny, Jack McKenzie, Jim Kanine, Ken Plude, Vane Smith, Ike Boss, Marilyn Novak and Toni Felter, to determine who will be recognized as Charlevoix athletic giants. The committee is seeking input from those interested in local sports.

"Fan input is critical to our project," said committee member Ken Plude, who is researching Charlevoix High School athletes who have received All State recognition, in order to create a "Wall of Fame" at the High School.

"We are looking for suggestions from Courier readers and have created a questionnaire to gather opinions from sport fans."

The first category to be reviewed is "Coaching Legends."

The committee has, for starters, identified for consideration several former Charlevoix High School coaches, including Ray Kipke, Don Carey and Del Terrill, all of whom coached both football and basketball, as well as Stewart Coleman, track and field coach and Pete Spieles, cross country and track coach.

The committee has also identified for consideration the following Charlevoix natives who have gone on to successful coaching careers elsewhere: Chuck Fairbanks - New England Patriots, University of Oklahoma, University of Colorado (football), Jim Bowman - United States Air Force Academy (football), Dean Davenport - Central Michigan University, California State University, Iowa Wesleyan and Ferris State University (basketball, baseball and athletic director), Walter Drenth - Central Michigan University and William & Mary University (cross country and track).

The committee asks interested sports fans to provide them with Coaching Nominations including: Name, years (if known), sport(s) and team location & name, to Venetian Headquarters, by June 15, 2004, at 309 Petoskey Avenue, P.O. Box 120, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

Charlevoix High School runners qualify for state

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Several Charlevoix High School students on the varsity track teams have qualified for the state meet following their competition at the regional tournament.

According to Ken Plude, boys' coach, the boys team finished third out of 16 teams at the regional tournament and eight Rayders qualified for state finals.

"The boys did an awesome job. Everybody gave everything they had," Ken said.

Those that qualified from the boys' team and their events were:

- 3200 meter relay — The team of Brian Christiansen, Scott Plude, Brandon Stevens and Ben Bergmann finished second in the regional with a time of 8 minutes, 32.2 seconds.
- 400 meter relay — The team of Rusty Walters, Jeff Urban, Bergmann and Kyle Kramer finished first at regional with a time of 45.6 seconds.
- Pole vault — Kramer also won this event at the regional with a height of 12 feet, 6 inches.
- Long jump — Mitchelle Klooster finished second with a distance of 19 feet, 4 inches. This was his third meet.

For the girls' team, only one qualified for the state finals. The team finished 15 out of 16 teams.

Lindi Edger finished fifth in the 3200 meter dash, according to girls' coach Mary Plude. Her time was 12 minutes, 12.4 seconds.

Mary said this is Edger's first time qualifying. Edger is a freshman.

"She ran a really good race. She is very competitive and a tough kid," Mary said.

The state finals will be June 5 at Comstock Park in Grand Rapids.

Soccer team playing strong

The Rayder girls varsity soccer team tallied two wins and a loss last week.

The team fell to 6-3 in a physical Lake Michigan Conference race at Harbor Springs May 17. The final score was 3-0 in favor of Harbor.

Charlevoix stayed with the Rams through most of the first half with strong defensive efforts from junior tri-captain Sarah Cross and sophomore Stevie Murray. Charlevoix's standout keeper Laura Nitchman had no trouble gathering in all the shots that Harbor could muster, recording 15 saves on the night.

The Rams scored their only real goal of the match early in the second half when they converted on the Rayders' inability to clear a corner attempt. Harbor's final goal came on a long ball which went into the net after the referee had whistled to stop play on the assistant's offside flag.

Head coach Carol Madison said, "Harbor is a talented and tough team but their yellow card for foul language is also indicative of their style of play. We played with them defensively but were unable to generate much offense with seven shots. Their sweeper came up strong on our few opportunities to

This was Nitchman's seventh shutout of the year.

Charlevoix managed 50 shots with 28 on net. The Rayders were led by senior tri-captain Alyssia McDonough with three assists and one goal, Drost with two assists and two goals, junior striker Jaime Pettis with three goals and junior back Madison McKenzie with two goals and one assist. Other goals came from Anderson and Murray. Assists went to Anderson, fellow freshman Lori Zimmerman and Cross.

Freshman Lauren Dupuis had a strong game in the midfield and was awarded the Radyers Player of the Game ball.

Charlevoix rounded out the week May 22 with another shutout, beating Big Rapids 3-0.

Charlevoix came out strong scoring in the first few minutes of play when Pettis sent a nice cross to Ramsey who tucked the ball into the corner of the net. The Rayders maintained good pressure, keeping the ball in their offensive zone for most of the match and catching Big Rapids on several offside traps.

The Rayders went up 2-0 early in the first half when Drost converted on a penalty kick awarded for a hand ball in the box. The Rayders final score was also on a penalty awarded for a catch of the hall in front of the net by a Big Rapids defender. Drost again buried the shot for Charlevoix, adding to her total as Charlevoix's all-time scoring leader.

Madison said, "This was our best full game effort of the season. We came out hungry and dominated the play, passed well and shot the ball on the net."

Midfielders Ramsey and McDonough and forwards Drost and Pettis won all the 50/50 balls. Defensively, Murray, Cross, McKenzie and Lisa Kuebler dominated the midfield, allowing Big Rapids only a few ventures into Rayder territory. Nitchman came up big on the three saves required of her, recording her eighth shutout, a new Charlevoix school record. Kuebler was awarded the Rayder Player of the Game ball for her aggressive defensive play.

Madison said the coaching staff is encouraged by this effort going into the final week of the season.

"This is the kind of play we all need to be successful in the district tournament," she added.

The Rayders improved to 9-5-1 overall, 7-3 in the conference. Charlevoix hosted Cheboygan in a non-conference match May 24, the final home game of the season.

Civic theater to open with Little Shop of Horrors

For the first time, The Little Traverse Civic Theatre will open its season with a summer production, "Little Shop of Horrors."

The musical, which is currently enjoying a Broadway revival and was made into a movie starring Rick Moranis, is the story of a nerdy florist's assistant who befriends a special plant, played by a series of puppets. It features what the critics have called a "gleeful 1960s-pastiche score."

Auditions for the production will be at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, May 26 in the Ross Stoakes Theater in the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey.

Director Pat Stedman and musical director Kathy Schanski are casting both male and female roles, and hope to fill several crew positions as well.

Those who audition will be asked to complete forms describing themselves, their interests, and their previous experiences.

They will also be asked to list time conflicts they might have with evening rehearsals, which begin in early June.

Those auditioning for performing roles will be asked to sing a popular song of their choice, and should bring either sheet music or a karaoke CD to the closed audition.

The director will select scenes and provide script cuttings at the audition, so it is not necessary to obtain perusal scripts.

Production dates are July 22 – 25 and 29-31.

For additional information call the director, Pat Stedman at 526-5553, the LTCT office at 348-1850 or visit the LTCT's web site, ltct.org.

Castle to show off renovations with open house

CASTLE

Charlevoix with Richard since 1967.

During their visits, from their home hase in Long Beach, Miss., the two watched as the Castle deteriorated over the years.

It was built in 1918 as a livestock farm for the well-known Loeb family. As time progressed, uses of the site strayed far from farming and included a concert venue, an outdoor event space and a broasted chicken vendor.

The renovation project has taken almost four years and $6 million to complete, but when Richard, the co-owner and general manager of Castle Farms, asked Linda if she would do it over again, without hesitation Linda said, "In a heartbeat."

Now that the bulk of the work is nearing completion Linda is looking forward to fewer agonizing decisions.

Last year around this time it looked like the Muellers were going to take a breather from those decisions. In early May of 2003 they opened the gates for their first open house celebrating what they thought would be the end of the first phase of renovations and the beginning of a rest period.

The first phase included roofing buildings, restoring windows and doors, fixing drainage issues, installing new floors, fencing the property, constructing parking lots and working on landscaping and lighting.

Following that $2.5 million undertaking the site served as the site for three high school proms, a 2,500 person open house, the Trimper Family Charity Benefit, 15 wedding and reception events, four concerts, tours, children and adult workshops and storytelling activities.

But it didn't stop there.

This fall, after almost four decades as owner and operator of RPM Pizza, Inc., Richard announced his plans to become a minority owner in his Domino's Pizza franchise company that operates 160 stores, to join Linda in Charlevoix. And that's when the two took a second major leap of faith with the Castle, dedicating another $3 million to the project.

The two entrepreneurs expanded their event space to accommodate 600 people year-round in one covered space and to offer families a unique destination.

The project included restoration of the large building facing M-66 called "The King's Castle," that used to have a concert stage attached to it.

They reworked the interior and exterior, piped heat and air conditioning inside it and added restrooms and two elevators. Its completion adds 20,000 square feet of event space that can accommodate 600 people year-round.

The top floor of this building will host the Michigan Regional Garden Symposium, a conference expected to draw 250 people.

They also built two 6,400 square foot covered pavilions that extend into the center grass field from the former cattle barn.

Then, they brought in sod by the truckload and crafted a courtyard area fit for a king.

Linda has transformed this area into a performing arts center catering to symphonies, outdoor theater shows and festivals.

On June 25 the Young Americans Musical group will play a fund-raiser here for the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

This inaugural show will be followed by Symphony on the Green, July 9, and the Piccolo Theater's Circo Piccolo Workshop and dinner theater, July 10.

When these events aren't going on in the courtyard, family fun will be.

The renovation brought with it The Castle Farms Activity Center which will be open from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Sunday through Thursday, May 31 through Labor Day.

In the center the public is welcome to picnic, play badminton, croquet, giant chess, horse shoes and shuffle board for $5 a family member.

Other events planned for summer include a July 11 Street Rods Car Show, a July 17 and 18 antiques show and the Venetian Festival's Kids Day July 20.

"We want this building to be here 300 years from now. It's designed like a castle and with proper care and proper maintenance it will last forever," Richard said.

Ad response

Editor:

There have been comments concerning the John Jarema for prosecutor ads that claim he has the endorsement of police unions in Charlevoix County that have been made to me because I am a member of the union at the sheriff's office. I have been asked why don't the police officers support the current prosecutor, Mary Beth Kur for re-election? The sheriff's office has a union of 12 members and there has been much discussion within our unit as to how many votes in our union constitutes a majority vote.

I am aware of only five union members who wanted our union to make a political endorsement of Mr. Jarema, or any candidate; which clearly is not a majority of twelve individuals; and yet the ads in your paper continue to make the claim that our Police Officers Labor Council is making this endorsement. Further, it is my understanding that it is a violation of POLC policy to use the POLC name in any candidate endorsement ad, I was told this by the executive director of the Police Officers' Labor Council, who stated that a candidate must first make a formal request for endorsement to his office.

Additionally, it should be noted that our office is comprised of approximately 38 people who are non-union employees, so as not to infer that our entire department is making any endorsement.

It is my opinion that using a union to make an endorsement is a choice made by those unwilling to publicly stand up for what they believe in, a way to remain anonymous, as it were, sit on the fence, but stir the pot.

I support Mary Beth Kur, her assistant prosecutors Brian Seelye, Jennifer Deegan, John Puzzuoli, Kerri Zahner, the support staff – Staci Seeyle, Deb Niswander and Sheana Burk for re-election. It is my opinion that we have a prosecutor's office that is of the highest caliber professionally and has done an outstanding job advocating for victims in this county and prosecuting the criminals. They are a dedicated, hardworking and committed team giving 110% to the people of this county. Mary Beth Kur has served this county well and deserves to be re-elected to continue this service.

I would like to see the 'police union' ads stop, as they are very misleading. If Mr. Jarema wants to be elected prosecutor, his campaign should state how he plans to do a better job than is currently being offered to the citizens of this county by Mary Beth Kur.

Make your own decisions as voters, do the research, talk to people. I believe that the citizens of this county will overwhelmingly support Mary Beth Kur as prosecutor in August.

Change the path

Editor:

Stuck again in another quagmire. No, it's not yet "Nam" redux with 50,000 body bags, but it could be if we continue the path we are on.

Let's bring the reservists and National Guard home and replace them with regular army whose members have been trained for this kind of combat. Where do we get them? With 60,000 troops in Germany, 41,000 troops in Japan (World War II ended in 1948 and Russia is no threat) who are they guarding? With 37,000 troops in South Korea, 11,000 in Italy and 11,000 in Great Britain it seems like it would be easy to shift them to Iraq and bring our strength up to 200,000. This would get some security to enable the new governing council to function. Also reservists and guard units should only be deployed for six months tours.

Thank you

Editor:

I am very proud of the results attained at the American Red Cross community blood drive in Charlevoix on May 13.

Thanks to volunteer efforts to get the word out about the blood drive, we welcomed 142 donors to the Community Reformed Church. From those donors the Red Cross collected 124 pints of blood.

Each productive unit of blood will be manufactured into three life-saving blood products.

These products will be available to hospitals because of the generosity of our volunteers and donors.

We are so fortunate in Charlevoix to have a wonderful facility in the Community Reformed Church and such a dedicated group of volunteers and donors. I'm very grateful!

Our next community blood drive is on July 22, during the Venetian Festival. It will be held at the Reformed Church from noon until 5:45. On July 29, Bethany Lutheran Church will host a blood drive for donors with type 0 blood.

It will begin at 1 p.m. and end at 5:45 p.m.

Please consider taking the opportunity to give the gift of life!

FOSTER BOAT CO. ADDS 3RD SHIFT

PRODUCTION STARTED MONDAY ON 24-HOUR BASIS

Satisfactory Progress Reported On Construction of 10 Seaplane Tenders for U.S. Navy

Production at the Foster Boat Co. went on practically a 24-hour basis Monday as work was speeded up on the construction of seaplane tender boats of the U.S. Navy.

The work program was augmented by addition of a third shift provided by the addition of new workmen and shifting of some experienced men from two other shifts which have been maintained for some time.

Under the present schedule, the first shift works from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., the second shift from 4 to 7:30 p.m. and 8 to 11:30 p.m., third shift from midnight to 3 a.m. and 3:30 to 7:30 a.m. The shifts are seven hours each, six days a week. A heavy increase in the payroll has been made since production started a short time ago.

The local concern is building ten 35-foot craft to be used as seaplane tenders. Construction on the first boat is practically complete and milling for subsequent boats has been brought up to a stage where construction will go forward rapidly, it is understood.

With efforts underway to obtain additional war contracts, officials of the company are looking forward to continued expansion.

Re-dedication of Park as Veterans Memorial Set for Memorial Day

The re-dedication of the park located between Antrim Street and Belvedere Avenue, east of Bridge Street as a memorial to the Veterans of World War 1 will be the highlight of the Memorial Day program Tuesday.

The parade to Brookside Cemetery will halt briefly at the park for the service at which Oscar P. North of Newaygo, World War 1 veteran and member of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, will deliver the dedication address.

A native rock and a bronze plaque will be unveiled marking the spot as a memorial to the men of Charlevoix and vicinity who gave their lives in 1917-18 as well as the veterans who have died since then as a result of disabilities received in the service.

The First dedication was held in the early 1920s with the planting of the trees. A memorial committee composed of Ralph Hamilton as chairman, Floyd A. Supp and Fenton R. Bulow of the American Legion and Leslie Everts and Clarence Rabach of V.F.W. have selected the rock and plaque and planned the rededication of the park.

Following the dedication program, the parade will continue to Brookside Cemetery where the Reverend L.L. Lewis will deliver the Memorial Day address.

The line of march and program follows:

The parade led by Floyd Black as Marshall will leave Park Avenue at 10 a.m. and march to the corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue for the rededication ceremony.

Judge Supp of the memorial committee will introduce Mr. North who will give the dedication address and unveil the rock and plaque. He will also place a wreath at the foot of the rock. The Rev. W.D. Wood will give the benediction.

The traditional ceremony at the waterfront honoring the sailor dead will follow with members of the veterans auxiliaries casting flowers into the water. Taps will be sounded and the Charlevoix High School band under the direction of C.A. Odmark, will close the brief service with the playing of "God Bless America."

The parade will continue to Brookside Cemetery where the annual Decoration Day program will be held.

The high school band will play "America" and will be followed by invocation by Rev. G. D. Howell; Rheta Boss will deliver the Gettysburg Address.

Rev. L.L. Lewis' memorial address will be followed by a floral tribute; salute; taps; Star Spangled Banner, high school band; benediction Rev. Joseph Bekkering.

Veterans organizations will meet at Brookside and St. Mary's cemeteries Monday evening to place flags on veterans' graves.

The band, the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and school children will meet at the school and march to Park Avenue where the parade will form.

WANT PHOTOS OF MEN IN SERVICE

DISPLAY PLANNED BY LOCAL SERVICE ORGANIZATION

Parents or Relatives Asked to Provide Picture to Mrs. P.R. Ross or Mrs. Charles Bellinger

So that everyone may know and recognize Charlevoix men serving in the armed forces of the United States during the present conflict, the Charlevoix Service Organization is planning a display of photographs of all service men.

Ralph Hamilton, chairman of the service organization, has announced that Mrs. P.R. Ross and Mrs. Charles Bellinger form a committee to obtain photos of service men and arrange the display. While it is not definitely decided, it is believed that the display will be made in the window of the Hime Pearl barber shop.

It is requested that parents or relatives of men in the armed forces provide photographs to either Mrs. Ross or Mrs. Bellinger. When all photos have been turned in, the display will be arranged and placed.

Committees of the service organization are working on plans to provide a send-off for Charlevoix County's June draft quota. While the number to be called has been set at 47, date of call and the names of draftees has not yet been announced.

Wal-Mart ends plans for Charlevoix Township

Corcoran said it does not seem that this is a temporary move by the company.

Notification of the decision was made to Rajewski in an e-mail and letter from Alan Oertel, the Wal-Mart project manager. In his e-mail he says that Wal-Mart is canceling its Charlevoix project.

In the letter, Oertel states, "Wal-Mart has authorized me to advise that Wal-Mart would like to withdraw its application for site plan approval. Although I recognize that the township believes that the application was not administratively complete, I am providing this notice to you as a courtesy."

Wal-Mart had submitted a site plan and some documentation to the township for its project in March. A meeting was then scheduled for late April.

However, it was determined that the company did not have all of its application in and that meeting was postponed.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, said this latest news is wonderful.

"It is good for the Charlevoix community," he said. "We intend to work with the city and township to make sure we don't have this problem again."

Dale Glass, Charlevoix Township Supervisor, said the township would welcome any valid information from any organization on its zoning ordinances or project.

He added, even before Wal-Mart expressed interest in Charlevoix Township, the township was working on revisions to its zoning ordinance.

"If our ordinance needs changing it will be done," Glass said.

Hoffman added the organization will help any other community in the area that wants to fight a Wal-Mart.

"We think this is a regional problem. It harms the character of the area," he said.

Wal-Mart did not return calls seeking comment.

Veterans' groups to be selling poppies

The members of the American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Unit 226 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Charlevoix Post 1153, and their auxiliary members will be distributing memorial poppies the next two weeks.

The Legion members will be selling the poppies on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 27 through 29.

The poppies are made by disabled veterans at the military hospitals, who earn a small amount by making the poppies. Then purchased by the local military veterans organizations, they are distributed to the public.

Money donated by the public for the poppies is used by both groups for relief to local veterans and their families, to assist with veterans' hospitals and others. Please be generous and buy both kinds of poppies to assist with these important relief programs.

Any member of either group who has not been contacted to sell poppies, should contact Katie Curtis 547-6943 or Rosalyn Goldstick 547-2636 for the American Legion poppies and Arlene Staley 547-2985 or Rosalyn Goldstick 547-2636 to assist with the VFW poppies.

Student dies in fire Tuesday

Slough was to graduate on Friday

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer
And by JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The halls at Northwest Academy were wet with tears Tuesday morning as students and teachers learned they lost a senior in a house fire, just days before he was set to graduate.

James Theodore "Ted" Slough, 17, was killed when his home in Ellsworth, outside of East Jordan caught fire.

"It's devastating," Gary Stutzman, Director of Bands for Northwest Academy, said.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater the fire department responded to the fire call at the Slough home, on Slough Road, around 2:30 a.m., Tuesday. As of Tuesday morning, fire personnel were still on the scene, but the fire was pretty much put out by 6:30 a.m.

Lasater said the house was a total loss. Slough's mother, father and older brother and a guest — who were also in the home at the time of the fire — were treated for injuries at Charlevoix Area Hospital and released.

No cause for the fire has been determined yet, Lasater added.

Slough transferred to Northwest Academy this year from East Jordan High School, because of the charter school's top notch music program, and instantly became Stutzman's right hand man.

In a previous interview Slough said the school "opened up doors" for him.

New library decision to go before the voters on June 14

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The fate of the new Charlevoix Public Library is in the hands of voters.

Registered voters in the Charlevoix School District which includes, the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix, Eveline, Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships, will head to the polls June 14 where they will be given a ballot asking them to support a new library project.

The biggest financial commitment to be considered is a .75 mill bond proposal that would cover $7.45 million of the $8.5 million transformation of the former Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street into a new library. If approved this millage would be levied for a time period not to exceed 20 years and will cost a homeowner whose taxable value is $100,000, $75 a year.

If approved, the renovation and expansion project at the 80-year-old school will result in a 24,000 square foot brick facility, with all the library's main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under 4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, quiet reading areas, gardens, a self check out, a

City, county law enforcement ticket seat belt violators

On Tuesday, May 25, the Charlevoix City Police Department, with assistance from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, conducted its first safety belt enforcement zone.

This was located on M-66, just east of US-31 and was conducted from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Seventeen vehicles were stopped, which resulted in nine seatbelt citations being issued. The fine for these tickets is $65.

The Charlevoix City Police Department will be conducting another enforcement zone from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 5. This will also be on M-66, near US-31.

According to the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning (OHSP), up to 50 lives could be saved and 653 injuries prevented each year if the state's safety belt use increased from its current 85 percent to 90 percent.

In a recent survey in the City of Charlevoix, there was an 80 percent compliance rate with the safety belt laws, 5 percent below the state average.

Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said, "These enforcement zones are about saving lives and preventing injuries, not about writing tickets, traffic crashes remain the leading cause of death before the age of 35. We're trying to impact and encourage safe driving habits with aggressive enforcement of our seat belt laws."

Sheriff offers boating safety classes

Sheriff George T. Lasater said the sheriff's office will offer boating safety classes from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on the following dates and locations:

June 5 at Boyne Falls School; June 12 at Charlevoix Middle School; June 15 at Beaver Island Public School; June 19 at East Jordan Public Library; July 10 at Walloon Lake Country Club; July 17 at Charlevoix Middle School; July 31 at Walloon Lake Country Club; Aug. 7 at Boyne City Middle School.

There is no pre-registration requirement. The minimum age for those attending is 12 years old. Students must provide date of birth documentation and a sack lunch.

Students who receive a satisfactory exam grade will be issued a Michigan Boating Safety Certificate at the end of the class session. Completion of the course is mandatory for anyone born after Dec. 31, 1978, juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16, to operate a boat and for parents who allow their children between the ages of 12 and 14 to operate personal watercraft.

Sheriff Lasater reminds parents they must be physically present (on board) with the child while the personal watercraft is being operated under this law.

Anyone with additional questions about these classes or marine laws should contact Sgt. David Beyer at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Division at 547-4461, ext. 320.

Marion planners vote for rezone

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The Marion Township Planning Commission voted against the grain of a recommendation made by the Charlevoix County Planning Department.

At a special meeting of the commission that took place May 25 the seven members government body considered a controversial rezoning request submitted in the fall of 2003 to the Marion Township Board by Charlevoix resident Wayne Boss and his family members, who are partners in Legacy Development Group, LLC.

The request is to rezone two parcels of land that the developers own, both fronting on Loeb Road around where it intersects with Veenstra Road, totaling 59 acres from agricultural to R-1, single family residential, to make way for 85 "affordable" home sites.

In a staff report written by Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan, he recommends denial of the rezone request until a municipal sewer line is run to the site.

Sullivan said in making this recommendation he reviewed soil and water suitability information compiled by Performance Engineers of Charlevoix for the township.

The engineering study found an adequate supply of water for individual wells to be drilled to service the homes.

But the soil study is where things became questionable for Sullivan.

The soil study, which looks at whether the land can support on-site septic systems for each individual home, came away with different results for the two parcels. The engineers found that soil on the north site is better suited for higher density development like what Boss is proposing. On the south site, they found more variation in the soil which would make it less suitable for this type of development in some areas.

Sullivan said the reports findings on nitrate levels in the aquifer that could result were the key factor impacting the staff report.

"The Performance Engineering Study found nitrate contamination in the top aquifer could result at levels exceeding safe drinking water standards," Sullivan said. "The way to cure that problem is to put sewers in."

Sullivan's report said his concern isn't with drinking water contamination at the site of Boss' development, it is surrounding properties with shallow wells and others off site that may be impacted.

"While this (the impacted aquifer) may not be the source of drinking water for this particular development, the water from this aquifer will drain into a lower aquifer at some other location resulting in drinking water concerns at another location," the report states.

Of specific concern to some members of the commission and to Sullivan were about 19 shallow wells within 600 feet of the property that could be impacted.

An evaluation of the Performance Engineering report, which was done by Ball Environmental Associates of Traverse City, suggests those shallow well owners monitor their water for nitrates or deepen their wells to ensure a long-term, high quality water supply.

While Sullivan recommended against the rezone, he isn't against developing the property and even said he supports higher density development than the minimum of 20,000 square feet per lot Boss is planning for if municipal sewer service is brought to the site. He said homes per every 10,000 or 15,000 square feet is a better use of the property, but under the current plan with on-site septic for each home, he said neither site should be rezoned.

While Boss said Sullivan's opinion of sewer service is a good plan for waste disposal, he told the commission the project would be impossible to do if the financial burden of running a sewer to the site was added.

After deliberating the information from Sullivan, the engineering report, Boss and residents, the commission opted to see merit in a partial rezone.

In a close vote, the commission voted 4-3 in favor of recommending to the township board that the north 36 acres of the property be rezoned and unanimously voted against recommending a rezone of the 23 acre south parcel.

Commission chairman Tim Matchett explained that those who voted in favor of the north parcel rezone request, including himself and fellow com-

Man killed in accident at Manthei

A 37-year-old Bellaire man was killed in an industrial accident around 8:30 a.m., May 27 at Manthei Development Corp. on US-31 South in Norwood Township.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Justin Paul Lowe was killed when the arm of a rock crushing machine came loose and struck him in the chest. At the time, several workmen were disabling the machine. Emergency personnel form Charlevoix EMS and the Charlevoix Fire Department responded to the scene. Lowe was immediately transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said he would like to recognize the employees of the Manthei Development Corp. who were making every effort to give aid to Lowe until emergency personnel arrived.

Have some fun, but be safe this summer

EDITORIAL

This weekend, several Charlevoix students at both of the local high schools will be entering a new phase in their lives.

With graduation, these students will embark upon that journey we all must take into adulthood. It is one filled with great stress, great sadness and great sacrifices, but also with great achievements, great happiness and great rewards.

There will be many challenges facing these students as they go out into the world to meet their destinies. We live in a nation that is at war, with an economy that goes up and down on a whim and facing many issues that need to be resolved — such as health care and social security.

These students that we will see off this weekend will be the ones that must face these challenges head on. They will be the ones who must come up with solutions. They will be our future.

That is a lot to put on the shoulders of any person, much less someone just starting out in their adult lives. But, from the looks of the achievements these new graduates have already done — example, there are four valedictorians this year because there were so many good students at Charlevoix High School — it appears these students are all ready to face these challenges.

In the meantime, graduates, have some fun with your lives. Enjoy the summer. Take in the sun and the beaches of Charlevoix — and yes, you probably should work a little here and there to make some money for college.

But, please, be safe this summer.

While you are enjoying your time off before life hits you full force, it is not the time to forget common sense and put yourself in harm's way — such as drinking, especially when driving.

Let the community continue to celebrate your achievements.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful clarification

Editor:

There has been some confusion as to the stand Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has taken on the proposed Wal-Mart being planned for Charlevoix.

On March 23, 2004 the Board of Directors of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful passed the following resolution: "Whereas part of the stated purpose of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is to support planning for orderly growth; maintain and enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix and work to protect the quality of the environment in the Charlevoix area and take whatever appropriate action is deemed necessary or desirable to accomplish this objective as determined by the Board of Directors.

"The Board of Directors supports This is Our Town, Inc. in their effort to stop Wal-Mart or any other development that threatens orderly growth from building in Charlevoix."

Vote for library

Editor:

It's a cool evening as we walk down the meandering pathway near the beautiful garden and hear the laughter and giggles coming from the children's play area.

As we enter the building we are greeted with the warmth of a lit fireplace and get cozy in an overstuffed chair to read a book with our grandchildren. There are so many books to select from that we browse for quite some time.

The friendly visitors that pass by us nod in approval. They are on their way to a meeting that takes place in another room that allows that same comfort. This is the picture we have in our mind when looking into the future of the new library.

From the student doing research to the senior citizen utilizing a reading machine, we can't think of a better resource for the community than a new library at the old middle school. We will be respecting the past by keeping and recycling a beautiful building. We can share with our grandchildren our own memories that were created there.

The planning and extra work done by many volunteers has impressed us so. We want to thank the trustees for a job well done. The meetings that were held to discuss the design and overall layout of this new and still useful facility allowed for much public input and were well run and organized.

You really listened and acted accordingly. It was never a case of tell us what you want and we'll do what we had planned to do all along. You really did listen to the community.

That alone gets you our yes vote for the June 14 ballot.

Wal-Mart will return

Editor:

So, Wal-Mart isn't coming to Charlevoix! Surprise, surprise!

That brings a couple of questions to mind. First, when did the citizens of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township need to have an outsider come to town to do their thinking? Second, how many of those folks who do not want Wal-Mart in Charlevoix spend their money in the different Wal-Marts in Petoskey, Gaylord and Traverse City instead of their hometown shops?

Wal-Mart will come back! It may take a few years, but the store will appear. Perhaps not in Charlevoix, but the approximate area. And they will draw paying customers from Charlevoix. All of this is a sure given!

Vote for library

Editor:

When I recently moved to Charlevoix Township there were two things I did immediately. First, I changed my address on my driver's license and then I changed my voter registration.

It will be a real privilege for me to cast my first vote in Charlevoix Township for the library millage! As a member of the Board of Trustees of the Library of Michigan I hear about many small communities in our state who have successfully passed a millage for a new library. St. Ignace just broke ground for their new library.

The board of our library has done an excellent job of getting people's input for ideas and needs of a new library building and now it's time for all of us to help create a wonderful heritage for ourselves and those who come after us.

I hope I'll see a large number of supporters of these library proposals at the polls on June 14 and that we will all be proud to be a part of a successful millage which will bring a beautiful, modern and functional library building to our community.

Thank you

Editor:

It's time again to say thanks to so many for helping make the 10th Annual "Bryan Roloff Memorial Benefit" a huge success.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Flight Deck and staff, and all the businesses that gave generous donations. Without you we could not have done it.

A big thanks to all of our volunteers working the door, selling shirts and tickets and serving food. We certainly could not have done it without your help!

For helping us keep Bryan's life and music alive - a very special thanks to the following bands: The Push, Mojo and The Boogieman, Namus, White Russian, Parallel 45, Los Americanos and Gary Grapp. You all did a wonderful job and your music was enjoyed by all. (I'm sure Bryan was there with you.)

Thanks to all of you for spending the day with us remembering our son (Bryan). What a great place to live, so many caring people and wonderful friends.

This year's proceeds go to two young men right here in Charlevoix. We wish both of them a quick and successful recovery.

We love you and thank you,
Shirley Roloff and

Editor:

In response to the recent criticisms to the validity of the police union's endorsement for John Jarema, candidate for Charlevoix County Prosecutor, I feel clarification is needed. After being a police officer for 12 years in Oak Park, I chose to take an early retirement from law enforcement and return to Charlevoix to raise my children and work for the family business.

During my career as a police officer our police union frequently took political positions on candidates. Endorsements given by police unions are not rare, but rather they should be expected. It's ludicrous to suggest that a police union would not take a position on choosing the chief law enforcement official for their county or that by doing so they are "sitting on the fence or stirring the pot." Freedom of speech and freedom of expression are constitutional rights that should be exercised.

The union stewards who brought the vote to their membership were merely doing the job that they were elected to do by the union members. It is the duty and responsibility of every member in that union to have their vote count. Whether they choose to vote, abstain or refuse to vote, they still have spoken. As in any election, a person is chosen by the majority vote. That's precisely what was done in this case.

It is true that in regards to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Deputies Labor Council vote John received five votes and the current prosecutor received one vote. According to Ken Nash, the Northern Michigan Police Officers Union Representative, this was a majority of the members who elected to stand up and be counted. This very union took another vote with eight votes in support of continuing the endorsement of John and one vote to discontinue.

For the record the final counts of the other POLC are as follows. According to the Boyne City Police union steward, John received five votes out of five members. According to the East Jordan Police union steward, John received two votes with one abstaining, and one not voting for any endorsement. According to the representative from the Michigan State Police Trooper's Association, representing local members, John received 11 votes out of 18 members, with seven members abstaining. Out of the 39 members eligible to vote, John received 23 votes and the current prosecutor received one.

I do agree with Ms. Sproul's suggestion that all voters should do their own research and talk to people. John's platform, what he stands for and what he will do to improve the prosecutor's office, which Ms. Sproul is encouraging everyone to seek prior to the election, can be found at www.VoteJarema.com.

He was born Feb. 5, 1924, and raised in Brethren, son of Joseph and Edith (Gilbert) McNamara.

He graduated from Brethren High School and served in the United States Army during World War II.

In 1952 he married Sally Campbell in East Jordan. She preceded him in death in January of 2000.

Charles J. Pontius: April 22, 1913 - May 25, 2004

Charles J. Pontius, 86, of Bella Vista, Ark. died Tuesday, May 25, 2004 at Concordia Care Center in Bella Vista.

He was born April 22, 1918 in Geneva, Ind. to Ellis C. Pontius and Ruth (Eggleston) Pontius.

His schooling was in Battle Creek schools and after graduating in 1936 from Battle Creek Central he then graduated from Wayne University in Detroit with a degree in Mortuary Science and Funeral Directing. In 1940 he then married Anita M. Howard of Battle Creek (Lakeview). Soon he enlisted in World War II and after he could, he entered Officer's Candidate School and upon graduation he was asked to remain as an instructor until his unit was sent to the Battle of the Bulge in Germany.

His unit was the Medical Division in the 87th Infantry. After five years in service and at war's ending the last act of his unit was to enter Buchenwald Concentration Camp in Germany and release and care for the prisoners. At the war's end he was a captain and discharged with honors. Upon return to civilian life he was offered a position in Security National Bank, Battle Creek and filled many positions, however he wished to acquire his own funeral business that he had prepared for. Soon a business became available and was bought in Charlevoix, Mich., namely the Pontius Chapel. During the years there a daughter was born, Denise Marie who survives him. Later there was a medical problem and it was thought a warmer and more stable climate would help so the family moved to Florida. The area was St. Petersburgh and Snell Isle with the busy Highway 19 just becoming built with new business. Chuck thought a Variety Store was needed so bought a Ben Franklin Franchise, building the first between St. Petersburg and Tarpon Springs. During these years Chuck became very civic minded such as: St. Petersburgh City Council, Kiwanis, 32nd Degree Mason, Hospital Board, National Board of Kidney Disease Foundation and Representative on the board of Arbitration of the New York Stock Exchange.

When the medical problem was resolved the family desired to return to Michigan and an offer was received from the bank to return to their employment.

During these years, Charles acquired a hobby of Standard Bred race horses and desired to have a farm to raise them. A complete renovation and modernization of 165 acres with buildings, corrals, stone hedges and beautiful green meadows became our "Stoneyhedge Farm." Then a change in the bank took place and Charles was asked by another financial institution in Hillsdale to come as president, CEO and board chairman. He accepted and the farm and stock were sold, a new home built in Hillsdale and the hobby continued on a small scale for 14 years as the bank grew and then Charles retired. A retirement home was then acquired in Florida and the move was made again, this time to travel around the world by boat, car, train and enjoyed every trip.

Charles was a true 'entrepreneur' even back in the big Depression when he was a very young boy with his paper routes, magazine sales and deliveries.

He is survived by his wife, Anita of 64 years, his daughter, Denise M. McAllister of Bella Vista, Arkansas; two grandchildren: Alana Kaye McAllister now graduated from University of Kansas and studying Medicine in Germany, and Sean Charles McAllister, grandson, student at University of Kansas, a sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Warner of Grosse Pointe, a brother-in-law and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Karl (Bill) Purdy, Charlevoix, many nieces and nephews and beloved cousins and the many, many friends loved and enjoyed through his life.

He was a member of the Bella Vista Community Church of Bella Vista, Ark.

A memorial service was given at the Bella Vista Community Church in Bella Vista, Ark. with the Rev. Richard Lindman officiating.

Memorials may be made to the Bella Vista Community Church, Building Fund, 75 East Lancashire Blvd., Bella Vista, Ark. 72714 or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Joseph honored by former high school

> Dick Joseph,
> Charlevoix resident on his Hall of Fame award

A Charlevoix resident was recently inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Charlevoix resident Dick Joseph is one of 17 inductees named by the Crawford-Au Sable school board to the Grayling High School Alumni Hall of Fame. The honor is the beginning of a new academic recognition that the school district initiated.

Superintendent of Crawford-Au Sable Schools, Milli Haug, said, "We want our students to see they can do what they want to do. And that we have people in our small community doing amazing things."

The induction ceremony took place May 2 in the Grayling High School in the packed, newly expanded 600 person auditorium and coincided with the dedication of the newly remodeled and expanded school.

Joseph joined his fellow alumni, including the president of Dow Chemical and a rescue worker who was the first person in the Pentagon following the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attack. Graduates honored stretched from as far back as 1935 and as recent as 1998.

As Joseph entered the school, his daughters, Alyssia and Savannah who attended with him, handed him a box of Kleenex in anticipation of a tearful award acceptance.

Joseph said they were right, tears of joy definitely streamed down his cheeks as he received a standing ovation for his accomplishments.

"It was one of the best days of my life — it was a lot of fun to go back," he said. "To get an ovation like that for academic achievement was really special. It sent a good message to all the kids."

Criteria that have to be met to be inducted include graduation from Grayling High School and one of three things, achievement of the highest degree possible in a chosen field, having accomplished a significant life feat, receipt of an honor or award or a significant contribution to the well-being of others.

Joseph's ventures since his graduation in 1975 to some degree have met all the criteria. He is a former fifth generation Grayling resident who after graduating attended the University of Michigan. After receiving a degree in business administration he returned to his home town to work in his family's stores.

After a few years in the family business he went on to attend Detroit College of Law. Joseph has since blossomed into an accomplished attorney with the local firm Joseph, Corcoran and Telgenhof which he helped started in 1998.

During his post high school days he has also been a vocal advocate for public education and was instrumental in the passing of the local bond issue to build the new Charlevoix High School and education millages in East Jordan and Grayling.

In its recognition of these accomplishments the award honored Joseph's ability to persevere in spite of his physical limitations.

In July of 2002, he fell off a ladder in his garage and due to rickets, a genetic disease he was born with that makes his bones brittle, he was especially susceptible to serious injury.

While hospitalized for his injuries, he developed meningitis that lead to a stroke in his spinal cord and was paralyzed.

After months of hospitalization, Joseph returned to Charlevoix, learned to drive again and immediately was back at work.

"I never quit and I never will. They admired that spirit," he said of the honoree selection group.

"For me personally this (the award) was important. It showed that people recognize that I worked to overcome a lot of physical challenges which I didn't let be an excuse. I put that aside and moved forward academically and did something with my life."

Haug said the event was so successful that the district plans to induct a new batch of academic all-stars annually the first Sunday of May. Nominations will be taken throughout the year and there is no cap on the number that will be inducted.

"I think that in a small town, people are more connected to their community and schools so when their school system says to them, 'Come on back we want to honor you,' they are excited," she said.

Charlevoix Public School Board Secretary Larry Levengood has contacted Joseph about starting a similar program locally.

Tickets being sold for annual symphony

It's time to pack up the picnic baskets and drag out the lawn chairs – this year's sixth annual Symphony on the Green is bringing the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra to Castle Farms.

With Bill Tole as music director and featuring Nancy Knorr as the soloist, this year's symphony will make its first appearance at Charlevoix's historic Castle Farms on Friday night, July 9.

Taking advantage of some of the new construction at the Castle, patron and tent ticket holders will have an opportunity to dance under the tent when the orchestra strikes up the band and offers the old familiar sounds of the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra.

This year the event will offer patron tickets with seating under the tent, a catered meal, cash bar, and a dance floor for just $200 per ticket — $120 of each ticket is tax deductible as a donation. Seating under the tent, including use of the dance floor is $50, and lawn seating is $25 per person.

All money raised through Symphony on the Green will be used by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation toward the purchase of a Computer Aided Detection System (CAD) Mammography machine; the expansion of Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City and for the their community outreach programs.

Grounds will open for the general public at 6:30 with the concert beginning at 8 p.m. Those with lawn tickets may bring a lawn chair or blanket and picnic baskets. No outside alcoholic beverages are allowed, but there will be a cash bar on site.

For ticket information or to reserve your tickets now, call 547-8685.

BUSINESS

Artform adds powder coating unit

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix fabrication business Artform has recently expanded its service to include a powder coating oven and sand blast booth — both made and installed by Artform owner Ben Whitley.

The massive metal units were fabricated by Whitley using his skills. He said he installed the unit in four months during the Charlevoix winter.

"I am definitely getting more business from it," he said. "I have been getting stuff from all over."

He said he gets car parts and frames, motorcycle parts and any other metal piece that needs to be powder coated.

However, Whitley said he originally put the unit in to powder coat his own work. Whitley does custom metal work, such as artistic fences, handrails or furniture.

Powder coating is basically a painting process that is stronger and faster than traditional painting. The powder coat also has less fading and holds up better the elements.

Whitley said the paint is sprayed on a metal piece in a dry powder. But the spray has an electrostatic charge, thus making it bond to all metal parts that are grounded.

Once the metal is painted with the powder, it is placed in a large overn where it cures.

Whitley said it takes about 10 to 20 minutes to cure. It is then taken out and cooled.

What makes powder coating great is the piece can be installed as soon as it is cool, rather than having to wait for the paint to dry with the usual process.

Artform Fabricating opened for business in 1998. It is owned by husband and wife team of Ben and Andrea Whitley. Both of the Whitleys are Charlevoix High School graduates, and Andrea graduated from Northwood University in 1997.

Artform is located at 12585 US-31 North in Charlevoix, behind the Head Start building. They can be contacted by calling (231) 237-9132 or visiting the web at www.artformfab.com.

How much do you pay for your television service?

The average person pays approximately $50.00 per month for their television service. (That amounts to approximately 5 mils on a home with a taxable value of $100,000.) At 1.4 mils, a brand new library downtown, that will last well over 50 years...

What a deal!

Rain couldn't stop her from planting

Ethel Brubaker, 95, wouldn't let a little rain stop her from taking part in the annual Operation Petunia Thursday. According to her family, Brubaker loves to garden and thought this was a great way to do her "civic duty." She recently moved to Charlevoix and this was her first opportunity to take part in Charlevoix's traditional petunia planting party.

When a couple learns they are about to have a child, they experience an enormous surge of pure joy!

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay
AFFILIATED WITH NORTHERN MICHIGAN REGIONAL HEALTH SYSTEM
www.hospiceltb.org

If things go wrong with a pregnancy, there seems to be no end to the pain. Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that the loss of an infant, by miscarriage, premature birth or stillbirth is perhaps one of the most difficult times anyone must face. And it ripples well beyond the parents - to other children, aunts and uncles and grandparents.

"Nobody knows what to say to a parent who has lost a baby. They have no experience of your baby, which I believe makes it hard for them to know how to acknowledge your baby's life and the impact that your baby's loss has on you, no matter how short the life was."

"After my son Alex died, almost no one simply said, 'We are sorry for your loss,' or 'Your hearts must be broken, we're so sorry.' What most parents who find themselves in this horrible situation really need is acknowledgement of their loss and a chance to talk about it if they choose to."

Quotes by Terry Tollas, Volunteer Mentor for HOLTB Pregnancy and Infant Loss Program

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay offers the Pregnancy and Infant Loss Support Program, providing the emotional and informational support, phone support, short-term counseling, a lending library and volunteer peer-to-peer mentors.

Kid's Corner to have 'early fives' program

Kid's Corner is celebrating 22 years of early education.

Kid's Corner Cooperative Preschool first opened its doors in September or 1981. It began with only four students and was located in the First Congregational Church. It was started by Phyllis Hess and Mary Lou Norton, two mothers trying to make a difference in children's lives.

Now, 22 years later, it is still serving the needs of our young residents. The dedication of parents, the strength of the program and, of course, the children have kept the program going strong. The names and faces have changed over the years, it has even relocated while the addition was being built at the church, but it has remained a constant in the community.

Kid's Corner has always put the needs of children first. Striving to give children an edge, it teaches them what is expected in school. Skills such as how to listen and follow instructions, how to cooperate with other children and how to dress themselves are stressed. Kids Corner also helps children develop a sense of self-worth that cannot be bought.

Kids Corner offers programs designed to meet the needs of 3 and 4 year olds. The two-day, three year old program is an introduction to behavioral protocol in school. Children learn to raise their had to speak, to wait their turn and how to respect others.

They also study the days of the week, months of the year, counting, colors and shapes. They learn about nutrition, the changing seasons, the weather and even butterflies. The three-day,.four year old class offers and introduction to number and letter recognition as well as word groups and writing. Small and gross motor skills are honed for both classes.

Kid's Corner is again trying to keep up with the needs of the community by offering an "Early Fives" program, helping those not quite ready for kindergarten. The program will be new this fall and run five days a week in the afternoons only. It will focus more deeply on number and letter recognition, letter sounds, site words and of course writing.

There will also be special projects.

There are still openings in all sessions. If you are interested in enrolling a student or would like more information please call (231)547-5437.

While many of the flowers did not have their colorful heads due to the cold weather, there were still a few to remind planters what Bridge Street will look like this summer. Planters put the flowers on both sides of Bridge Street and Petoskey Avenue in the city of Charlevoix. (Left) Ashley Marsh, 11, shows one of the plants she is about to put into the ground.

PUBLIC
NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Junior Golf registration to be June 10 at the city course

Plans for the popular Charlevoix Area Junior Golf Program have been released.

Registration will be on Thursday, June 10, at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

The summer program, in its ninth year will register 8-10 year-olds at 1:15 p.m. and 11-17-year olds at 2:30 p.m. Parents or guardians must also attend to take part in the orientation session and to sign a waiver of liability form, which must be filled before golfers can take part in the program.

There are two financial plans available for families. A one time fee of $45 covers all sessions for the seven week schedule which includes the pizza party, the picnic, a colored framed picture of each golfer and the evening league competition for those players that qualify.

A second option is a pay-as-you-go plan where youngsters pay $5 for each session they attend. Families where finances are a handicap are encouraged to contact Dean Davenport, executive director as some family scholarships are available.

Program emphasis is on teaching golf's basic fundamentals of proper grip, stance and swing but juniors are constantly exposed and reminded of the importance of golf etiquette, responsibility, honesty, social skills and consideration of others.

Sessions rotate among five local courses; the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, Dunmaglas, Antrim Dells and the Charlevoix Municipal Course. Play is scheduled for each of these courses and skill testing, rules and etiquette tests and tournaments are part of the program contents.

Program highlights are when several intermediate and advanced players are chosen to go to the Ferris State University week long golf school and the Boyne Golf Academy. In addition, qualified juniors participate in a Sunday evening league as a member of one of four teams at the Belvedere Golf Course.

Adult mentors interested in helping with the program are encouraged to contact Dean Davenport at 547-6433 or to register at the Municipal Course. Additional information can be secured by calling the City Recreation Department or Davenport.

Rayders go into district with two big wins under their belt

The Rayders girls soccer team closed out the regular season with two strong wins.

On May 26 they beat their rivals, the Ramblers 4-1.

Boyne City opened the scoring at home, converting on a breakaway opportunity resulting from a collision between two Charlevoix defenders early in the match.

The Rayders overcame a sluggish start, gaining the tying goal a few minutes later when Jaime Pettis sent a cross to Madison Ramsey who then converted the goal.

Charlevoix went up 2-1 before the end of the half when senior Alyssia McDonough scored off a throw-in from Pettis. The Rayders controlled the second half with Pettis scoring twice, on assists from Ramsey and McDonough.

Coach Carol Madison said, "Charlevoix shot the ball well, with 10 of 13 opportunities on the net."

Keeper Laura Nitchman notched five saves to earn the win in goal. The Rayders received strong play from midfielder Ramsey, forward Pettis and back Madison McKenzie. Rayders Player of the Game ball went to freshman Jennifer Rich who brought a strong, positive attitude tot eh match.

"The Ramblers played hard on their home pitch and won many 50-50 balls. They have improved a great deal over the season," Madison said.

Charlevoix played the fourth time in six days at Traverse City St. Francis May 27 for their final game of the regular season.

Even though the girls had played a lot, they showed no sign of exhaustion and bested the tough Traverse City squad 1-0.

The win locked Charlevoix in at least a tie for second place in the Lake Michigan Conference race, completing the conference season 9-3.

The match was well contested by both sides, with Charlevoix managing 11 shots on goal while the Traverse City group forced Nitchman into 12 saves. Nitchman made several key stops in securing her ninth shutout of the season, adding to her school record. Nitchman, honorable mention all-state in 2003, won the Player of the Game ball.

Charlevoix scored the only goal of the night when Ramsey fed senior Shayna Drost who put in an 18-yard shot from the left flank. Drost added the tally to her career school scoring record.

The Rayders received strong defensive play from Sarah Cross, Stevie Murray and Lisa Kuebler. Ramsey and McDonough had great nights in winning most of the midfield balls. Forwards Drost and Pettis again worked tirelessly on the forward line.

The Rayders end the regular season at 11-6-1 overall. Charlevoix opened district play against Boyne City at the Harbor Springs stadium June 1.

Results from this game were not available by press time.

Venetian Festival seeking nominations

The 2004 Venetian Festival theme of "Charlevoix Sports Legends" continues to gain momentum.

The Venetian Sports Committee put on its game face in its "Round One" review of "Coaching Legends."

The committee promises to hit full stride in its "Round Two" review of "Legendary Teams."

Several teams with outstanding legacies have been identified by the committee for consideration. They include the popular "Polar Bears," a professional Charlevoix basketball team which traveled the midwest throughout the 1930s and 1940s, taking on all challengers.

The undefeated and unscored upon Charlevoix High School football team of the 1960s quickly came to mind. Likewise, the Charlevoix County State Bank woman's softball team captured the State of Michigan championship during the 1960s.

True to recent form, Charlevoix High School basketball roots also run deep and strong. Seven Charlevoix High School hoops squads have risen to the prestigious "Final Four" plateau of the State Tournament, being the teams of 1931, 1938, 1948, 1952, 1999, 2001 and 2004.

The Venetian Sports Committee is again seeking public input to assist its consideration of every great hometown sports team.

Nominations for "Legendary Team" honors should include the team name, years (if known), sport and should be forwarded by June 22, to Venetian Headquarters at 309 Petoskey Avenue, P.O. Box 120, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Center hosts home tour

Each year, on the last Monday in June, the Crooked Tree Arts Center hosts their Annual Home Tour, and this year's tour will be from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday, June 28.

The 2004 tour features homes on Walloon Lake, with varied architectural styles including new log construction and traditional lakeside cottages.

Phoebe and Kurt Wietzke, of Boyne City, serve as the committee chairmen for the 2004 event.

"We hope visitors make a day of it — touring breathtaking Walloon Lake homes and stopping for lunch as Petoskey, Boyne City, Horton Bay and Bay Harbor are all within a few minutes drive," said Phoebe Wietzke.

"We are grateful to the home owners for opening their doors for this great one day fundraising event," added Kurt Wietzke.

Tickets are available at the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey. Admission to all five homes is $25. Tickets may also be purchased at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, The Appletree Gallery in Charlevoix and By the Bay in Harbor Springs.

To purchase tickets on-line, go to www.crookedtree.org.

The ticket includes a map to all of the homes on the tour, as the tour is self-guided and hosts will greet at each home.

Proceeds from this event support the arts center's programming, such as the Beginning Strings Program and the School Tour program.

For more information regarding the annual Home Tour, please call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337. The arts center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

County planner said plan should not be approved

LOEB

missioners, John Martin, Jim Shull and Walter Rosenthal, felt the balance between risk of contamination and the need for affordable housing in the township favored the housing crunch.

"What it came down to is there is always a risk with everything. Is there a potential for groundwater contamination, it's possible. We try and balance the reasonable risk that may be involved with providing adequate housing in the township," Matchett said.

John Ochs, a commissioner who voted against the project, disagreed with Matchett's rational.

He said, "The balance didn't come out for me the same as it did for Tim. I think Loeb Road is a logical place for higher density development, but I think sewer will eventually go out there and support it. And I would like to see it wait until then."

Residents with shallow wells who are concerned about the impact of this proposed development on their drinking water are angry with the commission's decision and said that if the board approves the rezone for either parcel they'll likely take the issue to referendum and let all the people in Marion Township decide its fate.

The next step in this rezoning process is a review of the request by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission to take place at 7 p.m., June 3 in Boyne Falls.

After the county planning commission makes its recommendation the township board will make the final call at its meeting June 21.

Boss said if the township approves the request as the planning commission recommended, the Legacy group will proceed with development plans for the north site, building about 40 to 55 homes.

He said the project would still be profitable in spite of the loss of development possibilities of the south site.

"We are undecided what to do with the south site — we don't know what we are going to do," Boss said.

Northwest mourns loss of beloved student

SLOUGH

The musical prodigy played viola, violin, drums, contra bass, clarinet, alto sax and guitar. He showcased his talents in the school's jazz and advanced bands.

"He was very, very, very talented," Stutzman said. "He was the kind of student every teacher loves to have in the classroom. He was smart, engaging and interesting to talk with. If there was any kid you would want other students to model, it would be Ted."

On May 28, the last day Slough was in school, he sat down with school administrator Scott Cochran to talk about where he would attend college in the fall.

Cochran said like many students, Slough hadn't pinpointed his major, but a focus on music was inevitable.

Cochran raved about his abilities and said he was blown away at a recent show he put on for the school's program called "Live at Northwest Academy." At the show Slough was a one man band strumming classical guitar and operating a three-piece drum set with his feet as he sang Eric Clapton's "Lay Down Sally."

One of Slough's best friends, Northwest student Gina Attee, said, "I think that was one of the coolest things he ever did."

His academic future would have had a music component to it and Cochran said his future also would have had shiny cars scattered throughout it. Everyone at school knew when Slough has arrived from the roar of his red Camero.

"Like Gary (Stutzman), he would always have a project car in his garage he was working on," Cochran said.

These plans that have been cut short will be on the minds of his classmates who will accept diplomas at the school's graduation ceremony set for 7 p.m., June 4 at the First Congregational Church.

Attee, Northwest's class of 2004 salutatorian, said she will struggle with her speech knowing her friend is not there to share the day they had looked forward to together.

"He was a great friend," she said.

To help students cope with the loss, a grief team was brought in for the week.

Voters to decide if library will go into old school site

LIBRARY

staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas for reading.

Library director Valerie Meyerson described what could be the final product as "a community gathering spot."

"What this space is going to do for this community is really exciting. The site is going to be a lovely space, centrally located downtown, easily accessible, with good parking — it's everything people are asking for," she said.

The rest of the $1.6 million price tag that isn't covered by the bond request is currently being collected in fundraising.

So far a library support group chaired by Charlevoix resident Don Heise has raised $1,009,000, two thirds of the way to that $1.6 million goal.

"We are way higher than we thought we would be. We expected to be one third of the way there by June 13," Meyerson said of the fundraising effort.

The other piece to the library request that will be on the ballot is an operating millage of .65 mills for 20 years that will allow the library to double its collection budget to buy more books, add new collections like music, double its staff and beef up resources like computer classes and coordinated programming with the schools.

This operating millage would bring in approximately $395,063 in 2005 and would be in addition to the .46 mills currently levied for operations. The additional millage would cost a homeowner whose taxable value is $100,000, $65.

Kay Heise, President of the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, said it will be money well spent for every resident as the new facility will have something for everyone.

"When people think about what it is they can do at the library they'll be able to think beyond checking out a book and meeting a friend. The choices that will be available will make more sense to someone's daily life," she said.

Meyerson said that both the building and operation millage requests have to pass for the project to move forward.

"We would not go forward with the project until we had the funds to operate the facility," she explained.

If voters give the project their support, post election community fundraisers will kick off. Funds donated beyond the $1.6 million goal will go to reduce the .75 mill bond.

Meyerson explained that if the two pieces to this puzzle do pass, the library will start a six to nine month design process and will likely break ground on the project in the winter of 2005.

If the bond issue fails the library will do some polling to see why voters didn't approve it and if they find residents take issue with the project they'll tweak the plans and may put it on the March 2005 ballot for a second go at it.

However, there is no guarantee that the former school site will be available then.

The current plan is for the library to buy 10 of those 13 lots from the city which currently owns the school site for $488,460 if voters pass the bond issue. Their option to buy the school property from the city ends in February of 2005. If that bond doesn't pass, Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority has discussed having to sell the property which would likely end up in the hands of a private developer.

"This is our chance; we can't hold another election before then," Kay Heise said.

Election polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., June 14.

Voters will also have to decide whether to renew a 1.16 mills special education millage for the Charlevoix and Emmet Counties Intermediate School District and a five-year 18 mills non-homestead property renewal. School board secretary Larry Levengood and trustee Dianne Kilkenny are both running unopposed on the ballot.

Four students named valedictorian

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

As the Charlevoix High School band performs Pomp and Circumstance this Sunday the school's 10J class of 2004 graduates will make their way into the gym.

Standing among the group of students will be Joshua Fassett, Rebecca Kanine, Amanda Boss and Andrea Ruhlman four scholars sharing the valedictorian spotlight, and salutatorian Cody Priess.

Each member of the valedictorian entourage will graduate with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. They credit their flawless academic performance to hard work and diligence.

Fassett, 18, is the son of Martin and Karla Fassett of Charlevoix. He attributes his academic success to hard work and sacrifice. During high school he played on the tennis team, ran cross country, volunteered at Charlevoix Elementary School and was named class president.

His hard work paid off with a $7,500 scholarship from Aquinas College in Grand Rapids where he will study business administration in the fall.

Kanine, 18, is the daughter of Jim and Jane Kanine of Charlevoix. She said graduating at the top of her class didn't come easily.

"For some people it comes naturally. But that's not me, I'm just a hard worker," she said.

When Kanine wasn't hitting the books she was busy with the volleyball and basketball teams, the Spanish Club, the Peer-to-Peer mentoring program and tutoring.

This fall she plans to attend the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor where she may major in psychology.

"I'm looking forward to being in a new environment. I've lived in a small town for so long. But I'll miss walking down the hall-and knowing 90 percent of the kids I see," she said.

Like Kanine, Boss said she had to work hard to graduate on top.

"I had to stay organized. I have so many things going on — I have to stay on top of it," she said.

Boss' many extracurricular activities required her to manage her time. These included softball, basketball, volleyball, performing arts, the Spanish Club and more.

Those skills will come in handy this fall when she moves to Holland to attend Hope College to pursue a nursing degree.

While she is looking forward to a "fresh start" at Hope, the Rayder graduation to be June 6

CHARLEVOIX

18-year-old daughter of Charlevoix residents Bud and Judy Boss said she will miss her friends and family.

Rounding out the top four students is Ruhlman, who will join Kanine at the University of Michigan this fall.

Ruhlman, 17, will leave behind the only community she has ever know Charlevoix, and her mother and father, Mike and Barb Ruhlman, to start this next adventure.

She said she owes her high school success to her own desire to succeed and to her parents who encouraged her to do well.

Ruhlman's ability to multitask, that she learned as a Rayder student athlete will help her balance her work load in Ann Arbor.

During her four year high school career she played softball and volleyball and was a member of the Spanish Club.

While none of the four members of the valedictorian squad were able to edge the others out of the running, a fifth contender, Cody Priess, almost made the cut too.

Priess will graduate with a 3.976 just a hair shy of a top seat, making him the one and only salutatorian.

He is the son of Diane and Dennis Priess of Charlevoix.

He plans to attend Michigan State University in the fall to study engineering or history and said he's looking forward to being on his own.

These top academic achievers for this year's graduating class at Charlevoix High School will join their classmates, friends, family and teachers to wave their final good-bye to high school at the baccalaureate ceremony scheduled to take place at 2 p.m., June 6 in the high school gym located at 5200 Marion Center Road.

Trudeau, Attee tops at Northwest

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

> "It took dedication, hard work and a lot of late nights."
> Kristy Trudeau, Northwest Academy valedictorian

The high school careers of Northwest Academy's top graduates were marked by quality performances on stage and in the classroom.

The charter school's valedictorian, Kristy Trudeau, 17, the daughter of Art and Shawn Trudeau, started at the school seven years ago and has since become an accomplished flutist playing in the school's jazz and advanced bands.

She said her experiences at Northwest have better prepared her for college than the education she would have gotten in a typical classroom.

"It's a different experience. It's not like normal schools — we have more freedom and do different activities that open us up to things that most schools don't," she said. "I think I'm more prepared because I've been exposed to so much."

While her flute was a focus of her studies, Trudeau excelled in traditional classes as well and closed out the year with a 3.91 grade point average.

"It took dedication, hard work and a lot of late nights," she said.

Outside of the classroom Trudeau was a prom committee member and was involved in class government.

This fall she will attend the Art Institute of Portland in Oregon to study design management in hopes of becoming an events coordinator.

"I'm looking forward to new experiences, meeting new people and seeing new places," Trudeau said.

Northwest's salutatorian Gina Attee, the daughter of Keith and Karen Attee, was a new face at the school this year.

The 18-year-old trumpet player transferred to Northwest from Charlevoix High School to participate in the school's well-known band program.

But when she made the move, Attee brought with her more than just stealthy musical performances, she brought a strong work ethic. Her desire to succeed in the classroom earned her a 3.89 grade point average and admission to the Grand Valley State University Honors College located in Allendale where she will pursue an English degree this fall.

These two graduates will join their 10 classmates at 7 p.m., June 4 at Charlevoix's First Congregational Church off State Street to celebrate their accomplishments at a baccalaureate ceremony and take the next step toward their future.

Gillespie named top graduate at Beaver Island

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

> Kerrie Gillespie,
> Beaver Island salutatorian

Following a 12 year run as a dedicated student, in just two weeks Kerrie Gillespie will graduate from the Beaver Island Community School with top honors and officially start the next chapter of her life.

Kerrie, 17, the daughter of Rich and Laura Gillespie, was named the school's salutatorian for 2004.

"I had to work hard to stay on top," she said.

During her high school career Kerrie balanced a busy schedule filled with athletic practices and games, community outreach efforts and of course academics.

Kerrie worked with Beaver Island Helping Hands visiting with the elderly and also spent time with Americorps Peer Mediation, a group specializing in conflict resolution at schools.

Her senior year included major milestones like being named captain of the successful volleyball team and the season's most valuable player. When she wasn't on the court you could find her putting her best effort forth on the soccer field.

Kerrie's athletic prowess and giving spirit coupled with her academic strength earned her two college scholarships, a $200 TDS Telecom Scholarship and a $400 21st Century Learning Scholarship. Both will be used to help fund her next big step, college.

Kerrie, an island native will make her mainland debut in the fall of 2004 at Lansing Community College.

She plans to take general studies courses there and then transfer to Michigan State University in East Lansing where she will study psychology.

Graduation marks an important time for native islanders like Kerrie, some of who will accept their diploma and say good-bye to their unique way of life.

"I've loved living on the island all my life. But I'm ready for a change now. I'm looking forward to moving to a bigger place, meeting new people and trying new things — new experiences," she said.

Kerrie will join her six classmates at the community school's graduation to take place at 1 p.m., June 5 in the Holy Cross Hall on Beaver Island.

Vet gets degree after 60 years

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Almost 60 years after dropping out of Charlevoix High School, Winston "Lovell" McGinnis was handed a diploma.

At the commencement exercises June 6 at the school, McGinnis, 73, was the first person in the class of 2004 to cross the threshold and become an official graduate.

"It was awesome. It meant everything in the world to me," he said.

McGinnis, who currently lives in Melbourne, Ark., is one of many service men who served in World War II or Korea who due to a special act of Congress can be granted their diploma. He is the first to take advantage of this at Charlevoix High School.

"What is right about America you see in his eyes. He's a great man," Charlevoix High School Principal Gary Grundman said.

In 1947, McGinnis was 15. That year he decided to turn in what his fellow graduates remember as four, fun-loving years and lied about his age to enlist in the United States Air Force.

This was the same path his three older brothers had also chosen.

He then served in the Korean Conflict and in Vietnam.

After his tour in Korea, McGinnis was stationed in England. During his time there a devastating tidal wave hit a small town. He took it upon

Fire department gets grant for new equipment

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

City firefighters are breathing a sigh of relief thanks to a sizable federal grant the department received last week.

Congressman Bart Stupak announced last Friday that the city of Charlevoix Fire Department will receive a $60,712 federal grant from the Assistance to Firefighter Grants program at the Department of Homeland Security.

"This grant will help our small town and rural fire departments improve firefighter operations and safety," Stupak said. "This federal funding will help support the hard work and dedication of local people as they serve their own communities with a little bit of federal help. It's a good partnership."

According to city fire chief Paul Ivan the money will be used to replace the department's over 10-year-old self-contained breathing apparatuses.

This piece of equipment is what the firefighters wear including the oxygen tank, the regulator and mask.

The 25-member department currently has 14 of these devices. With the grant they will be able to buy 18 new ones. Ivan said the tanks they currently have cost about $1,700 and the new systems run about $3,700 a unit.

The new systems are equipped with several modernized features that will assist the firefighters. These include a buddy breathing system which will allow them to share oxygen, a heads up display in the mask that allows them to check their oxygen level without looking down at a gauge and a pass alarm hooked to the tank that alerts others when a fireman goes down.

"We'll be able to issue each firefighter their own mask," Ivan said. "It's big. Everyone is pretty excited around here."

This grant is part of what will ultimately be a pool of about 7,000 grants worth $850 million in direct assistance of firefighters. More of these grants will be announced on a weekly basis through the fall of 2004 as the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the U.S. Fire Administration distribute the program funds.

Donations coming in for pool auction

Items are arriving for the annual Pool Auction at 6 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 1, 2004, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

There are many donations, such as 16 pairs of snowshoes, a week in Hawaii near Waikiki Beach, gourmet dinners at area homes, antiques, golf at Bay Harbor, Charlevoix Country Club and the Belvedere Golf Club and a birthday party at the pool this year which will include a ride on the City fire truck.

The public is invited to come to a dinner Saturday night, July 31, 2004, at the Charlevoix Country Club for an auction preview. Call 547-9796 for reservations. At the Pool Auction on Sunday, the charge is $50 per person and reservations can be made by calling the Pool at 547-0982 or the Club at 547-9796.

Committee members Nicki Thomas and Katie Stone are suggesting a nautical theme and guests are encouraged to dress accordingly.

Appealing to those who are unable to donate an item or attend the annual event at the Charlevoix Country Club, fundraising committee chairman Bruce MacArthur suggested that there are other ways to help underwrite pool expenses.

"One can help by becoming a sponsor at levels of $1,000, $500, $250 or $100," he said.

Donation may be dropped off at the pool, 11905 US-31 North. Those who wish to become sponsors should call auction coordinator Sue Herzog at 547-4077.

Time for staff writer to take a leap in life

Julie Witthoeft

Goodbye Courier

At 5 p.m. today, Wednesday I'll leave my familiar desk with its familiar view of Round Lake, city hall and downtown, turn in my office key and take a deep breath as I move my life in a new direction.

I've accepted the marketing coordinator's position at the local lighting and refractor manufacturer, LexaLite. Oddly enough, I start on June 14, my first day at the Courier four years ago.

It doesn't feel like it was four years ago when I first walked into this office — wide-eyed, a little blonder and a little thinner.

I started with the paper in June of 2000, just over a month after graduating from the University of Michigan. I got lucky; I had moved to Charlevoix, a small town where professional positions for new grads are few and far between. Thankfully, Courier editor Jeremy McBain took a chance on a young, inexperienced reporter. I was excited and clueless, a perfect fit for the cuddly "cub reporter" tag my dad assigned me.

Since then, I've grown my bear claws, a necessity to survive in this business. They sharpened a little more with each story as I scratched my way to the truth or fought back tears in covering tragic deaths and other losses. Since I started I've covered exciting political showdowns, six deaths of children, school happenings, environmental snafus and community outreach efforts.

Each story and event I covered brought me closer to the pulse of Charlevoix and introduced me to new people across the country.

It is these people, my sources of information and inspiration, that made my stories in the Courier strong, trusted news. In some cases these sources have also become friends, who after being drilled about the latest happenings, sigh and ask me about life and share glimpses into their world with me.

But the true backbone of the Courier can't be attributed to sources or the fact that Charlevoix, in spite of its size, is a political hotbed. The over 30 awards that the Courier has won for excellence in news and advertising, the top notch county-wide guide we put out called the Charlevoix Community Compass and the skyrocketing circulation are the results of blood, sweat and tears from the four-person team the Courier staff has become.

Anyone who has been in the Courier office on a deadline day knows the joint's downright hums. We pride ourselves on the quality product we publish each Wednesday. There isn't an issue that goes out that doesn't challenge us mentally and physically.

The real glue to the operation isn't just our desire to cater to the needs of readers, it's our belief in one another.

Valerie Pedersen, Kim Taylor and yes, even the pit hull I call my boss, McBain, have become an extended family — three people I was excited to come to work and see. Three people that mopped up tears when they fell, calmed me down during moments of frustration and celebrated life's greatest successes.

While the past four years have gone quickly, they have been packed with some of life's greatest moments for the Courier staff.

They were there for my marriage and to support me during my pregnancy and delivery of my first child. I have watched as one lost a parent, another sent a son off to war and a third struggled with a disease and prepared for the birth of his first child.

I sat next to Pedersen at Charlevoix High School's graduation Sunday and got to share another amazing moment — the celebration of watching her youngest child, Danielle Kimble, accept her diploma.

The commencement was my final weekend photo shoot, a fitting way to bid adieu to this phase of my life and start fresh.

While I'm excited about this next phase, change is never easy and I'm anticipating the walk down the two steps that lead out of our office today feeling like a leap off the roof.

I'm sure the graduates over the weekend felt the same uneasy excitement of a new world peppered with fear of change that I feel now as they left the hallowed halls of the high school.

But as I learned in a recent interview with renowned author and journalist Larry Smith, professional success comes from taking chances and it is time for me to take that leap.

So, bear with our strong staff as they train a new reporter. McBain is in the process of interviewing candidates and the quality product readers have come to expect will continue to be found in the pages of the Charlevoix Courier.

Botanist group can help you with your love of area plant life

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

I spent most of the Memorial Day weekend in the company of an interesting group of people.

The Michigan Botanical Club met at St. Ignace and operated field trips for three days over much of the Upper Peninsula. You might not automatically think of a group of botanists as interesting, but bear with me. Some of the members are serious professional botanists who spend their lives finding, studying and writing about plants, but the majority of the membership consists of very interested amateurs who care deeply about the wild flowers and trees of Michigan.

If you have some interest in the wild flowers of Michigan you might consider becoming a member of the organization. The goals of the club are worthy ones.

They include conservation of all native (wild) plants in Michigan, and the education of the public to appreciate the magnificent plants that surround us. They sponsor legislation to promote and preserve our plant heritage, and they were very instrumental in having the Dwarf Lake Iris declared the state flower a couple of years ago.

The organization can have considerable legislative clout. And finally, they cooperate with other individuals and groups on wise use and conservation of Michigan's natural resources and scenic features.

One of their most interesting projects is to find, measure and catalog the largest of each kind of tree and shrub that grows in the state. Up to now almost 250 different kinds have been designated as champion trees and shrubs — champions being the largest of each kind in Michigan. The club members and other interested folks are constantly on the lookout for additional large trees of all kinds.

Up to now, only one of those 250 is to be found in Charlevoix County: a white poplar more than six feet in diameter and almost 90 feet tall, growing along Barnard Road. Maybe more could be found if more of us begin looking.

The club publishes the Michigan

True patriots

Editor:

Recently, our President Bush attending a Republican congress pep rally, refused to acknowledge any questions about his Iraq war, whereupon Congresswoman Nancy Pelosi said his mishandling of the Iraq war shows, "AN INCOMPETENCE IN TERMS OF KNOWLEDGE, JUDGMENT AND EXPERIENCE IN MAKING THE DECISIONS THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN NECESSARY TO TRULY ACCOMPLISH THE MISSION WITHOUT THE DEATHS TO OUR TROOPS AND COST TO OUR TAXPAYERS."

Predictably, house majority leader, Tom Delay, weighed in with a standard right-wing, neo-con response as follows, "...her words are putting American lives at risk," and that she has "a responsibility to the troops and to this nation to show unity in this time of war."

But House Majority Leader, Delay, has it bass-backwards. As fellow Republican John McCain, retorted when asked about dissent while he suffered in a prison in 'Nam, "That's what I was fighting for!"

And what had President Theodore Roosevelt to say? "To announce that there must be no criticism of the President, or that we are to stand by the President right or wrong, is not only unpatriotic and servile, but is morally treasonable to the American public."

Let us support patriots like Nancy Pelosi and condemn unpatriotic and treasonable people like House Leader Delay.

Keep eyes on the ball

Editor:

"The law does not make mere size an offense," the Supreme Court declared famously in a 1920 antitrust suit against U.S. Steel. So despite the giant company's control of one-half of the country's steel business, the court refused to dissolve it.

Today, most people think the court was right. For myself, I disagree. I think the existence of huge unelected corporations like U.S. Steel or Wal-Mart dominating the marketplace and controlling people's lives around the world offends democratic ideals.

But sometimes there are ways to fight back. The people of Charlevoix Township and surrounding communities showed the way in stopping Wal-Mart last month.

Even if the company is not a monopoly, under the township rules "mere size" made all the difference. The supercenter would have been more than twice the size of any other area retailer. Sites are supposed to be harmonious with the vicinity. They are supposed to preserve natural resources.

Just as important was the united effort of community people. It was unusual because everyone in town — left, right and center — kept their eye on the ball. The ball was Wal-Mart's mere size and the economic dislocation that would have caused.

One of the reasons U.S. Steel won in 1920 is none of its customers or competitors would testify against it. Just the opposite happened in Charlevoix.

The effort here was led by "This Is Our Town," formed last fall. Today, "mere size" can be used in a positive way, as this small and democratic organization grows in numbers and expertise. Our mission now is to promote zoning changes to prohibit big box stores county-wide.

We have regular meetings. You know where to find us. The more people that attend (and increase our size!) the better we will do the job.

Vote for library

Editor:

Voters in the Charlevoix School District will soon have the opportunity to vote for two millage proposals that together will vastly improve our community's library and the services it offers to area residents. It has been said that the quality of a community can be judged by the value it places on its schools and library. This observation seems particularly apt in an age when access to information plays an even more important role in our work, entertainment and continuing education.

The millage proposals before the voters on June 14 will greatly and appropriately expand the library facilities, staff and the multimedia services it offers the public. Among its many other benefits the proposal will rehabilitate one of Charlevoix's historic buildings while at the same time create a safe and comfortable learning environment for people of all ages. Yes, the millage proposals entail a sacrifice but it is also an investment in our collective future. We hope you will join us in supporting both proposals.

Thank you Hoffman

Editor:

Thank you Bob Hoffman and his crew and all the people of Charlevoix who banded together to "Keep Charlevoix Beautiful." It just shows when people pull together what can be accomplished.

Also I want to mention the editorial in the May 26 paper stating that perhaps the merchants would take in consideration the needs of the residents who live in Charlevoix year-round and who make it possible for merchants to get through the winter. There, too, it's a pulling together, being aware of each other's needs. Walk hand in hand.

Vote yes on library

Editor:

The citizens of Charlevoix can stand tall. Our lone voices merged and were raised as one, and David slew Goliath. The experts said it couldn't be done, but our town persevered and we saved ourselves from the "big box" mentality and indifference.

The citizens of Charlevoix must once again stand and be counted. The charm of our downtown is wonderful and a good library is a must to ensure the cultural quality of our community.

The Charlevoix Public Library's mission is to support the community by providing resources which aid the pursuit of information and by providing recreation and cultural enrichment throughprint media, electronic resources, and planned programs.

space, additional services and many more books and movies for 1.4 mills! This is a very exciting concept. It is time to update and expand our library. The library will meet the expressed community needs for a one floor library. Community meeting space, program rooms, youth and children programming centers, quiet reading areas and special collections. Remember to vote yes, twice, on June 14.

Vote for library

Editor:

The Charlevoix area community has the unique opportunity to preserve the past, serve the present and meet the needs of the future.

We are talking about the Charlevoix Public Library building project. The 1927 old middle school will continue to be a building where learning takes place by providing resources and information, and cultural enrichment through print media, electronic resources and planned programs. The new library will provide increased library services, school collaboration, computer services, youth and adult programming and community meeting space. We feel this is a worthwhile project for the entire community.

The cost for many of us will be much less than basic cable. We support the library millage. Please vote yes on Monday, June 14.

Support library

Editor:

I would like to express my support for the Charlevoix Library building project. The trustees have listened to the public in regard to the project by utilizing the old middle school, a symbol of community history.

The current library has fallen short in all library standards for years due to under-funding. My concern is the children. They need ready access to material for study and a quiet place to use it. There are a number of taxpayer funded buildings going up in the area, isn't it time for a new library?

Please vote yes on June 14.

Thank you

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to more fully thank all the people and organizations that made the 2004 Memorial Day Celebrations a successful event.

Numerous individuals assisted in this event; however, by group I would like to thank Coast Guard Station Charlevoix and the Michigan Army National Guard; the Rayder Marching Band and it's director Jane Bennett, Gary Stutzman and the Northwest Academy Choir for both technical support and wonderful singing, American Legion Post 226 and Auxiliary, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153 and Auxiliary, the Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League; Charlevoix Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the Charlevoix Civil Air Patrol. We were also honored by the presence of the Charlevoix Friends of the Library, Dale Boss and the Charlevoix "Custom Classics" Car Club and special thanks to Gregory Henderson of Crown Motors.

We continue to collect names of those deployed to the theater of operations for our "Yellow Ribbon" honor roll and the names of those who have died in active service to our nation. Once again, thanks to all these groups and to the community for contributing to our remembrance celebrations.

Say yes to library

Editor:

Kudos to the Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees for their planning of the new Charlevoix Library. The trustees have asked and listened to the public in regards to their project. The public said one floor, they are planning one floor.

The public requested that the library utilize the old middle school in order to save a piece of our community's history, and they are planning to renovate the school as our new library. Thank you, trustees, for a job well done. Good luck on June 14.

Yes on library

Editor:

Congratulations to the Library Board and administration! You asked for public input regarding future library needs and are presenting a plan which reflects that input.

Our community has progressed nicely in the past few years with improvements made in our hospital, government buildings, parks and school facilities as examples. In order to keep this progress balanced, we feel a new library is in order.

Someone once said that a lihrary is a reflection of the quality of the community it serves. Let's continue the quality of our community hy approving the library proposal.

Please vote "YES" on June 14.

Support schools

Editor:

Proposal 1 of the Charlevoix Public School's Annual School Election on Monday, June 14, would renew the district's operating millage of 18 mills against non-homestead property for five years. This is a renewal of the current millage which expired with the 2003 tax levy.

There would be no increase in millage for non-homestead property such as commercial properties, second homes and vacant land and it has no effect on homestead property tax rates for people like me that call Charlevoix home.

Although this proposal hasn't had much publicity, it is vitally important for the operation of our public schools. Almost half of the Charlevoix Public Schools' entire operating budget this year came from non-homestead tax dollars. Our schools are already having to make significant budget cuts for next year. Defeat of this proposal would be nothing short of disastrous to the quality of education our schools would be able to provide.

Therefore, as president of the Charlevoix Elementary Parent Teacher Organization, an organization of parents that works cooperatively with teachers in the education and best interests of our children, I urge you to support the renewal of the operating millage. Vote yes on proposal 1.

Good job Seidel

Editor:

I have been a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary to V.F.W. Post 1153 and also of the Ladies' Auxiliary to American Legion Post 226, for several years. I have participated in all the parades in which both veterans organizations were involved.

In spite of the chilly and damp weather, the Memorial Day parade in Charlevoix on May 31 was the best parade we have had. The enthusiasm and appreciation of the spectators gave a real boost to the spirits of the marchers. There were more groups involved than ever before: The Coast Guard, Northwest Academy, Charlevoix High School marching band, Friends of the Library and Boy and Girl Scouts.

Everything was very well organized and went very smoothly.

Joe Seidel, commander of the American Legion Post 226, did an excellent job in making this not only the largest, but the best Memorial Day parade.

The ceremony in Veteran's Park was most appropriate and moving. As a community we owe our thanks to Mr. Seidel for his leadership.

Boss honored

The 2004 Margaret Duerr Book Award has been presented to Marilyn Boss by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library.

She was honored for her love of local history and her efforts to preserve Charlevoix's past. "The Living Great Lakes: Searching for the Heart of the Inland Seas" by Jerry Dennis has been added to the collection in the library's Michigan Room with Boss's name inscribed on the inside bookplate.

Boss has been a contributor to the Charlevoix Courier since 1996, writing under the title "Days Gone By" with recollections of life in Charlevoix as a young girl, as a Charlevoix High School graduate, as a mother of seven and now as a grandmother.

A talented illustrator, she has done the ink drawings for books of two local authors.

With her husband of 53 years, Dale, she was instrumental in the revitalization of the Charlevoix Historical Society in the 70s and helped secure the Harsha House as a permanent home for the organization. She served as president of the group three different terms and annually compiles and presents the society with a scrapbook of the news articles of each year, creating a priceless record for future generations. Boss is the second recipient of the annual Margaret Duerr Book Award. The first was presented last summer to Margaret Duerr for her many years of service to the library and for her special interest in the Library's Michigan Room. Boss (center) is shown here with her husband, Dale.

Builder's North wants to build your home

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents Bruce Beaudoin and Craig Seidell can help you build the house of your dreams.

Beaudoin, a licensed builder, along with his manager Seidell, also a licensed builder, started the new business Builders North on Aug. 1, 2003. With 35 years of experience between the two of them they can help you build or remodel your Charlevoix home.

They are members of the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders and the Michigan Association of Home Builders.

The two's relationship started back when Beaudoin was working for Seidell when he owned his own company. But, Beaudoin branched off into his own business and Seidell sold his company and came to work for Beaudoin.

Seidell had been in business for himself for 23 years.

The homes that Builder's North works on range from glitzy to affordable. One of their larger homes is a 3,200 square foot with a lot of wood work and a cathedral ceiling.

"It is a beautiful home," Beaudoin said.

However, he added that he would like to do more affordable homes or homes for middle income people. These range from $200,000 to $220,000 and ranch style to two stories.

Beaudoin said the time it takes to build a home depends on the customer and the difficulty of building the home. For example, a home with a lot of detailed wood-work will take more time.

The average time for home construction according to Beaudoin is five months to a year.

Beaudoin, whose family goes back many years in Charlevoix, is a graduate of Michigan State University. He has a wife, Karen, and two children, Jake, 2, and Abby, 9 months. Beaudoin's grandfather, Bert, used to own a gas station across from the Dairy Queen on Bridge Street.

Builder's North can be contacted by calling (231) 547-5000 or e-mailing brucebeaudoin@chartermi.net. Builder's North also has a Gaylord location.

Crooked Tree to host orchestra Sunday

The Crooked Tree Arts Center presents the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, in concert, at 4 p.m. Sunday, June 13.

The orchestra will perform the Peterboro Suite, a musical piece written by Lynn Palmer Warren and inspired by artist Betty Beeby. The Little Traverse Civic Theatre will read excerpts from the letters. Betty Beeby's artwork is currently on display in the Edith Gilbert Gallery of the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

The Peterboro Letters Suite was composed by Lynn Palmer Warren as a musical narrative, a tone poem, to Betty Beeby's set of lithographs and the story behend them. Beeby, an Eastport artist, discovered well over one hundred letters from Peterboro, Ontario in an old barn near Traverse City.

Tickets are $10 for all seats. For more information, please contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center, 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org.

The arts center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

Young Americans to sing at Venetian fund-raiser

In its ongoing effort to secure the financial future of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the Venetian Board is promoting another professional entertainment offering for area residents and visitors.

The Young Americans, acclaimed coast-to-coast in reviews by such critics as the Los Angeles Times and New York Times, will perform the inaugural concert at the beautifully renovated Castle Farms on Friday evening, June 25, 2004.

The two hour, open air show will be the only 2004 Charlevoix performance by the Young Americans and will feature a rare combination of both the Boyne and the Traverse City performing troupes, comprising a total of 50 Young American singer/dancers.

"The festival continues to actively pursue income generating opportunities, so that we may maintain the quality and array of Venetian events such as fireworks," Venetian President Dan Barron said. "With the generous support of the owners of The Castle, Richard and Linda Mueller, we have been provided a wonderful opportunity to raise money and bring great entertainment to town."

Seats will be provided on a general admission basis.

No lawn chairs, coolers, food or beverages may be brought to the concert. Food and refreshments will be offered for sale the night of the show.

Tickets are $20 each and may be purchased in downtown Charlevoix at Bridge Street Book Shop (phone 547-7323).

Because the number of tickets is limited, tickets will be sold at the door only if they remain available.

Gates will open early at 5:30 p.m., to allow concertgoers to select their seating and to enjoy free of charge, Castle Farms lawn games such as shuffleboard, croquet, bocce ball and badminton. Showtime is 7:30 p.m.

Concert proceeds will help fund the sensational fireworks displays of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, which will be shot on July 23 and 24.

Venetian Festival looking for local sports stars

The Venetian Sports Committee has rounded second and is heading to third base in its pursuit of the 2004 Venetian Festival theme of "Charlevoix Sports Legends."

The current focus of the Committee is on Charlevoix athletes who have excelled in team sports.

Any list of Charlevoix candidates has to start with Bob Carey, a multi-sports star at both Charlevoix High School and Michigan State University. While a collegian Carey earned All American football honors, started as the center for the Spartan basketball team and won the Big Ten shotput title. He later played in the National Football League with both the Rams and Bears. Carey's accomplishments were recognized through his induction into the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame.

Carey's twin brother, Bill, also had a tremendous sports career at CHS and was one of a select few Michigan State Spartans who played and lettered in both football and basketball. Still another Carey, Keith, excelled in basketball at Alma College after a great stint at Charlevoix High School. Keith Carey finished his basketball career by playing professionally with Midland Dow.

No one in "softball crazy" Charlevoix accomplished more than fireball pitcher Bob Klooster. The Michigan Softball Hall of Famer captured state championships and appeared in the National Finals several times. Years later, Charlevoix High School graduate Scott Kelly pursued his own dazzling baseball career at Ferris State University leading the Bulldogs, as team captain, to several league championships while notching up the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference MVP award and the league batting title.

The Klooster and Kelly baseball trails may have been cleared as far back as the 1940s by the exploits of the brilliant and colorful pitcher Amos John, the only local player known to be given a professional minor league baseball contract.

Another Charlevoixian to brake into the ranks of the National Football League was Dick VanRaaphorst, who kicked his way to stardom at Ohio State University and later with the San Diego Chargers. Bob Alger was likewise an outstanding football player and team captain at Ferris State University, where his 104 yard interception for a touchdown still stands as an NCAA record.

Many Charlevoix women also attained athletic excellence. Meg Fowler Kitson distinguished herself as a two-sport star at Alma College in both softball and field hockey, following a standout multi-sport career at Charlevoix High School. Cheryl Pence also capped a fine Charlevoix High School basketball career by playing hoops at Central Michigan University.

Other standouts identified for consideration by the committee include: Mark Beaudoin-football (Michigan State University), Bill Bennett-basketball (CHS), Nate Boss-softball (Charlevoix), Jim Bowman-football (CHS and University of Michigan), Billy Carey-basketball (CHS and Princeton University), Dean Davenport-basketball (Central Michigan University), Chuck Fairbanks-football (Michigan State University), Melinda Klooster-basketball (CHS), Bud Klooster-basketball (Albion College), Kraag Lieberman-football (CHS and Alma College), Tiller Otis-basketball (Hillsdale College), Ted Potter-softball (Charlevoix), Ken Wojan-football (CHS), Ken Balch-softball (Charlevoix).

Sports enthusiast are encouraged to nominate other stars of the past who played team sports. Make your opinion known by calling Venetian Festival Headquarters at 347-3872. Star athletes from individual sports will be the next and final focus of the committee.

Heritage Garden unveiled at Depot

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

A bright, new, colorful world is in bloom on Charlevoix's north side.

The Depot Heritage Garden was officially dedicated June 1. After the red ribbon tied to two pines was cut by former Depot property owners Mary and Robert Pew, a group of about 100 dedication attendees walked through the lush landscape.

The site is tucked behind the historic railroad Depot Museum, owned by the Charlevoix Historical Society, which shoulders the ever popular Depot Beach off Dixon Avenue.

Historical Society President Dave Garland said, "I just love it down there now. It's really beautiful."

While the heritage garden is a perfect fit that appears to have been there since the beginning of time, the site used to be a grassy area with little of the plant life passers-by see there today. The vibrant show piece is the product of 33 months of planning, digging and planting by three local service groups, the Charlevoix Historical Society Board of Directors, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and the Charlevoix Evening Garden Club.

The huge undertaking started in August of 2001 when the Historical Society decided to install a set of gates dating back to the 1900s at the Depot.

Mary Adams, a member of the society who is also a Charlevoix Area Garden Club member, has an old photo of the Depot site that shows a garden area. Using this photo as her template she suggested recreating the garden in conjunction with the gate project.

The project then landed in the laps of garden club members Patti Aikin and Rhea Dow. Club members have said Aikin has determination and a keen eye for detail and Dow is known in the club as the plant expert.

After discussing the antique quilt show hosted at the Depot two years ago which is making its return this July and talking with club president Joan Nowak about the history of the Iris in her family, the dynamic duo recommended that the garden be dedicated to plants that grew in Charlevoix from 1870-1930.

"We wanted to tell the story of the historic plants so they aren't lost," Dow said. "To transplant history."

The garden club joined the Charlevoix Evening Garden Club and members of the historical society in gathering information about plants that have been part of Charlevoix's history. During this

Charlevoix Public Library

What will the Library vote on June 14th mean to you?

A "YES" vote will save the middle school from development or demolition and create a community gem that will be with us for over fifty years. A "YES" vote will result in a yearly cost $140 for every $100,000 of TAXABLE property value. The taxable value of your home is listed on your property assessment and is much different than the assessed value. Assessed value is generally one half the amount of the actual property value. Due to the Headlee Amendment, the taxable value of your home cannot increase more than inflation. This means that if you have owned your home for a long time, the taxable value will be much less than the assessed value, which will result in a lower per year cost on your tax bill. Check the chart to find out how much the new library will cost you. Add or subtract $14 for every $10,000 in taxable value. Remember to figure your cost on the Taxable Value of your home.

A "NO" vote may result in the public losing the old middle school property to developers. The public will have no control over what happens to the building or the property. There would be a good chance the public would lose their land to private developers.

The library board would like to continue servicing the community from the downtown area and what better spot than the old middle school property?

The Library will continue downtown; the community saves an historic & memorable building; the community keeps public land in public hands.

Taxable Value of:	Equates to an Annual cost of:
$20,000	$28
$40,000	$56
$62,000 (average in our district)	$86.80
$80,000	$112
$100,000	$140
$120,000	$168
$140,000	$196
$160,000	$224
$180,000	$252

discovery phase they even gathered a number of existing plants that have been in local families for ages. Some include the Loeb peony, Loeb narcissus, several types of hydrangea and Indian rose hollyhocks.

Nowak said the plants are a key element in creating an authentic heritage garden.

"Every plant has a story," she said.

While their stockpile of plants grew they planned their permanent home, the heritage garden. To do this they hired Brian Devlin of Garden Concepts in Livonia, a landscape architect who specializes in period specific garden landscape.

The layout he masterminded included four rooms to situate these budding beauties into.

The first room is where you enter the garden after coming through the old steel gates. Dow described it as a pleasant formal greeting.

Then, as walkers stride across the velvety grass they enter room two, where the child in all of us is alive and well. Dow said this was designed to evoke youthful feelings in those who experience it. Flowers here include daisies, black-eyed Susans, dahlia, snap dragons and other colorful and wild blooms.

Just when you thought there was no place more lush and alive, you enter room three where Dow said you can rest on a bench and feel right at home as you look out over Lake Charlevoix through a fragrant peony portal. She said this was created to epitomize a young woman in her 30s — "mature, a good friend you can sit with and chat forever." It is full of softer, delicate colors and flowers.

The group is currently in the process of rounding out the garden with elaborate amazing plans for room four. The proposal is to include a pergola that is 30 feet long by 10 feet wide with vines covering it. Behind the pergola they plan to build a gate like the metal one that sparked ideas for the garden. And in front of it, they'll extend a rose garden. They have already collected two historic roses that will some day make the garden their home.

So far about 50 volunteers have put over 5,000 hours into this project. They are continuing to raise money to make room four a reality. Funding for the project has come from grants and donations. While the group lines up funding for room four, 23 volunteers have signed on to maintain the site which is the garden club's largest garden in its group of 11. Room three will be maintained by the evening garden club.

Dow and Nowak said so far about 20 people walk through the garden every day. It will be a major attraction at the club's Sixth Annual Garden Walk July 14 when the Depot will host a standard flower show from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The garden was also recognized by the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc. with an Award of Merit and a $100 prize.

Those who want to donate a historic plant, their time or money can contact Dow at 547-5301 or Nowak at 547-1388.

Alano Club decreases hours

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The local substance abuse support hub, the Alano Club, cut back its hours to address budget problems.

The club which is located at 106 Mason Street went from an all day refuge for people and families suffering from substance abuse to a part time place they can go. Its support groups meetings did not change.

The decision to make the change at the club house located at the front of the property came in early January when a new board of directors took office and quickly found the club's financial picture wasn't pretty.

Scott Kelly, a founding member of the club who has served on and off the board since the mid 1980s, said that when he came aboard as treasurer in January, the club had $340 in its checking account and over $1,000 in bills.

The new board, lead by president Sue Goodwin, decided to pursue a 90 day emergency plan that included cuts. They wanted to make sure the 20 plus support meetings that account for 35 percent of meeting attendees in Charlevoix and the surrounding counties were unaffected by any changes.

"AA meetings are critical for keeping hundreds of people sane and safe," Kelly said.

So, the first place they looked was at three part-time employees that staffed the club house from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. six days a week. This was costing the club about $3,000 a month as each was paid between $8 and $10 an hour.

"We can't continue spending 75 percent of our income on employees," Kelly said. "We were raising money to provide a job."

Consequently, all three workers were laid off effective Jan. 17 and the club house was closed completely for six weeks.

Kelly said the visitors the employees were interacting with in person and by phone, which former club manager Dave Juilleret estimated to be between three and 20 people a day, didn't justify the expense.

But Juilleret, who lost his job as a result of the board's decision after working there part time for about three years, disagrees.

"When you talk about numbers and helping people, as far as I'm, concerned, if you help one person, I'm happy," he said.

Kelly said in spite of the reduced hours people are still being helped.

Since March the club has been open when volunteers offer to staff it. Kelly said that means it is generally open during meeting times for various support groups and the board is trying to make sure it is open from noon to 1 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Juilleret is sad to see the club house closed most of the time.

AA programs not affected

ALANO

"The important thing was, it was a place for people to hang out if they were early in their recovery," he said.

Kelly said he is hoping to reinstate the former club hours with the help of volunteers, but at this time does not plan to hire employees to work there. To see what volunteer interest is out there a survey was recently sent to members.

"I want to see what the community and members are willing to participate in," Kelly said. "I am hoping members will volunteer. If not, we'll keep the meetings going, and how to use the club house aspect is the big question."

Charlevoix resident Bob Pardee who used to spend afternoons there and has been sober for 14 years said he hasn't been impacted by the change. He said he is retired and has opted to volunteer at Charlevoix Area Hospital and at Boulder Park instead of spending time at the club.

"The last thing I'm going to do is drink," he said.

Aside from this refuge the club provided when it was open more, Juilleret said it also served another important purpose for those that couldn't come in but called in.

"If someone was having a bad day, they knew they could call and get a human being to talk to," he said.

Currently if you call the Alano Club during hours that it isn't open a recorded message directs callers interested in Alcoholics Anonymous information to an "AA hotline" at 348-5005. Others are asked to leave a message.

Juilleret is also concerned that this new approach takes away from what he used to do with families that needed help understanding the disease. As a recovered alcoholic who has been sober for about 20 years Juilleret said he knows the importance of this service.

Aside from being a voice on the other end of the line and a safe harbor for those in recovery, Juilleret said the club was also a hub for those ready to go into treatment.

Kelly said those seeking either family counseling or treatment can call him at BASES at 547-1144 or Harbor Hall at 347-9880.

While these services are currently being out sourced, Kelly hopes that some day the club will be able to provide those services as a cooperative effort with area substance abuse clinics. But this will take money and time.

Since the club started its restructuring plan in reaction to the grim financial picture, they have increased membership from nine to 77 people. Membership dues which are $5 a month are one way the club generates income. Other sources are grants, projects like the food vending during the Venetian and Apple festivals and rental of the upper level apartment. The back building is leased to the Alcoholics Anonymous group who also pay the club.

This money helps cover their $10,000 a year expense budget.

Meeting schedules are posted on the door of the club house and are also available on the Internet at www.basesteencenter.com.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.
